NOTICE TO ALL PROPERTY TAXPAYERS OF LOCH LYNN HEIGHTS, MD

Pursuant to Tax-Property Article 10-204.3 of the Annotated Code of Maryland requiring counties and municipal corporations to notify taxpayers of the availability of the semi-annual property tax payment option for owner-occupied residential property that is the principal residence of a homeowner.

If a taxpayer elects to make semi-annual property tax payments, ½ of the municipal taxes will be deferred until January 1. The second payment, due January 1, will incur a service charge reasonably equivalent to the anticipated lost interest income associated with the delay in the payment of the second installment and covering administrative expenses associated with the semi-annual payment not exceeding 10% of the charge of the lost interest.

To be eligible to make this election of semi-annual payment, all previous year taxes must be paid in full by June 1. Taxpayers not making their first semi-annual payment by September 30 are automatically waived out of the semi-annual plan and must pay the full tax bill.

If the taxpayer wishes to participate in the semi-annual payment option, the appropriate coupon should be returned with the payment before the September 30 deadline.

It is the responsibility of the taxpayer to notify his mortgage company of his wishes to pay on a semi-annual basis if he has an escrow account. The town is not responsible for any involvement in the semi-annual payment process.

Among Who's Who

A former resident of Garrett County is among the 26 Western Maryland College students who have been selected for the 1998 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, the annual directory of the nation's most outstanding student leaders in higher education.

WMC students named to Who's Who will be honored at the annual Senior Investiture and Honors Convocation in May.

Jason A. Barr, son of Nancy and Allen Barr of Forest, Va., is a senior working toward a mathematics major and computer science minor. A consistent dean's list student with highest honors, he is a member of Kappa Mu Epsilon (math) honor society. He also is a member of the tennis team, the student government association, Christian Fellowship, and Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. After graduation he will pursue a career in networking.

He is a 1994 graduate of Southern Garrett High School.

According to officials of the 64-year-old publication, campus nominating committees and directory editors select these students for inclusion based on their academic achievements, service to the community, extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success. They join an elite group of students selected from more than 1,900 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and several foreign nations.

Snowy Creek Case Handed Over To FBI Investigators

The investigation into allegations of fraudulent financial business dealings that resulted in the recent arrest of Snowy Creek Power Equipment owner Thomas Steven Blakeney, 39, Terra Aita, W.Va., has been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), according to Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney for Garrett County. Blakeney was arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office on March 17 after several of his business associates reported that they were being billed for loans to Snowy Creek that they had no knowledge of, and several customers alleged that they were being double-billed for purchases made from Snowy Creek.

"We believe there has been criminal activity in Garrett County," Welch said, "however, the evidence necessary to thoroughly investigate and prosecute this case is scattered throughout a number of states. The FBI, in conjunction with the U.S. Attorney's Office, has people specifically trained to handle this type of investigation. Further, the federal government has the resources to bring in all of the witnesses that will be necessary. The State's Attorney's Office and the Sheriff's Office will continue to assist in the Snowy Creek investigation," she said.

No Insurance On Burned Property

It was incorrectly reported last week by Maryland Deputy Fire Marshal Bruce A. Shafer that the owner of an unoccupied building at Keyser's Ridge that was damaged by fire on March 20 had insurance on the property.

Paul J. Tasker contacted the news office of The Republican last week to state that he, in fact, does not have insurance on the property, which sustained an estimated $15,000 in damage/loss. The fire has been ruled arson by Shafer.

Tasker, who is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of a suspect(s), said that he wants people to know that he has no insurance and, thus, there has been no insurance claim, "because those who know something about who started the fire might be more willing to come forward and provide information."

PLOWING WHILE THE SUN SHINES — Unusually warm weather has graced the Garrett County mountaintop this past week, sending children flying out the doors with no jackets and farmers racing out to fields to hook up the plows for dirt, not snow. The farmers would actually like to have been out sooner, but the ground has been too wet. Jamie DeBerry is the driver shown in the photograph, preparing a field (owned by Clay Winters) for the planting of oats. The forsythia bushes are blooming, as are crocuses, daffodils, and even some hyacinths. Sunburned faces were all about last weekend, as seemingly everyone escaped to the great outdoors to breathe in the warmth. In the back of nearly everyone's mind, though, is the fairly sure knowledge that temperatures will dip again before spring turns to summer. Maybe this year will be unique, though. We can only hope. Post #71 Member Named Legion Volunteer Of Year

Dayton Alexander, a member of Proctor Kildow American Legion Post #71 in Oakland and a resident of Aurora, W.Va., has been named the first "American Legion Volunteer of the Year." The annual award was created by Maryland's American Legion to recognize a Legion member for outstanding volunteer service to Special Olympics Maryland, one of the many causes supported by Legion members.

"This is quite an honor," said Alexander, who has coordinated volunteers from across the state as Special Olympics Maryland's Winter Games chairman since the first winter games in 1982. "The real credit goes to all the volunteers, especially at the Legion post in Oakland, Grantsville Post #214, and all the posts across the state that donate time and money to help make the games possible. Everybody is always willing to help. When you ask for assistance, they just say 'What time should we be there and what do we need to do?' They are the greatest."

The American Legion is a major supporter of Special Olympics in Maryland, in financial as well as volunteer terms. For example, Alexander's Post #71, one of five platinum-medal sponsors of the 1998 Winter

Sincell Publishing Co. Receives Maryland Governor's Arts Award

In recognition of a long-standing commitment to the arts in Garrett County, the Sincell Publishing Company Inc. has been named the recipient of this year's small business Governor's Arts Award. Robert and Donald Sincell, co-owners of the publishing company (and father and son), were notified this week of the honor and have been invited to attend the "Governor's Arts Awards at ArtSalute" event to receive the award.

The event, sponsored by Citizens for the Arts in Maryland Foundation with the Maryland State Arts Council and the Maryland Chamber of Commerce, will take place at the Peabody Institute in Baltimore on June 10. The local company will be among nine honorees from across the state, all recognized for their contributions to the arts in Maryland. The winners were chosen by a 24-member board, with individuals representing the three organizations noted above.

"This was the most competitive round in our history and our selection panel spent hours reviewing the applications and making final recommendations," said Mary E. Toth, executive director of the Citizens for the Arts in Maryland Foundation. "The decisions were based on the length of time the nominee worked in the field and the overall excellence and impact of that contribution on their community."

Sincell Publishing was nominated for the award by Steve Schlosnagle and the board of directors of the Garrett County Arts Council. Schlosnagle is the arts council's administrator.

"The independent press exercises tremendous influence over the role the arts play in the development of a civil, democratic, and humane society," Schlosnagle said. "Through liberal coverage of local visual and performing arts programs, The Republican newspaper has long demonstrated a basic commitment to freedom of cultural expression in Garrett County. This is appropriate recognition of good work well done."

In a narrative written by Schlosnagle for the nomination, he outlined several areas in which the newspaper has supported the arts over the years.

"Operating as a small business, the Sincell Publishing Company has demonstrated an outstanding and dedicated commitment to the arts and the development of the arts community in Garrett County during the past two decades under the direction of editor-in-chief Don Sincell," Schlosnagle wrote. "While editors of other news publications often relegate coverage of the arts news to inside pages, Mr. Sincell and his affiliated editors routinely integrate arts news with front-page coverage of important local affairs . . ."

Schlosnagle noted that a survey of successive issues of The Republican (Sept.-Dec. 1997) showed front

Field Review For Oakland Bypass Slated

Officials from the Federal Highway Administration (FHA), the State Highway Administration (SHA), Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and local individuals will conduct the first field review next Tuesday of the Oakland bypass proposal. John Nelson, director of the Garrett County Office of Planning and Zoning, announced the review at this week's county staff meeting with the board of commissioners.

Nelson said the group of individuals will be looking at all bypass proposals and will go to the actual sites to inspect the properties involved. They will review the actual expected land and property impacts of each proposal and then will prepare for the first public hearing on the issue.

This hearing will be a "public workshop meeting," Nelson said, and is to be held sometime in late May or early June. A definite date has not yet been set. At this hearing, the officials review the alternatives and will take public input.

"After that, the officials will focus in on the preferred alignment. A public hearing will then probably be held in January or February of 1999," Nelson said.

Health Dept. Phone Survey On Child Safety In Progress

The Garrett County Health Department has announced that it has started to conduct an automated telephone survey of local households in an effort to measure the general public's knowledge about child abuse reporting protocols. The "Child Safety Survey," slated to run for two weeks, is gathering data for the Personal Safety Initiative, a Maryland Child Abuse Trust Fund grant administered by the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth and Families (OCYF).

Approximately 300 residents, whose phone numbers are being generated at random, are being called by Health Department's automatic phone dialer and are being asked to participate in a "Child Safety Survey." At the beginning of the survey minor children who answer the phone are instructed to ask a parent to come to the telephone. During the subsequent phone interview, the telephone number of the OCYF is given several times for the respondent's own information.

The survey begins with some general questions about whether the participant thinks that child abuse and neglect is a problem

OAKLAND GYMNAST W.VA. STATE CHAMP AGAIN - Laura Preston, a sixth grade honor roll student at Southern Middle School and daughter of Jim and Liane Preston of Oakland, recently took the West Virginia state title in gymnastics for the second year in a row. Competing in the Level 8, age 9-11 category, Preston earned a personal best of 9.25 to place first in balance beam, an 8.75 to take first place in the vault, and 8.5 and 8.3 scores, respectively, for floor exercise and uneven bars. Her 34.80 all-around tally gave her the title, following last year's state title in Level 6. Preston trains with the "G-Force" at the West Virginia Gymnastics Center in Morgantown, W.Va., and is coached by Gary Rafoloski and Brad Roberts. Her final competition for the year will be at the Level 8 Regionals, which are slated for the weekend of May 9-10 in Aberdeen.

GCM Hospital Doing Feasibility Study On Affiliation Possibilities

Officials at Garrett County Memorial Hospital today confirmed that the organization is exploring the feasibility of linking the hospital with other regional or national health care service providers. The feasibility study is being conducted as an outgrowth of the hospital's strategic planning efforts begun over a year ago.

According to Walter Donalson, GCMH president, the hospital has been monitoring the national, regional, and local healthcare environments closely and had previously held informal discussions with the board of governors and select members of the medical staff leadership about the subject of an affiliation. Last year, the board of governors concluded that a more formal exploration of the potential benefits of establishing an affiliation might be in the best future interest of the hospital and the communities it serves. Such future affiliation could potentially assist the organization in its ability to fulfill its community mission in the face of an increasingly challenging, competitive, and financially restrictive healthcare environment, Donalson explained.

"The healthcare industry continues to experience dramatic changes that will ultimately lead to a complete transformation of the healthcare system nationwide. The major shifts underway include: the declining use of inpatient hospitalization in favor of more outpatient care, including outpatient surgery; the trend away from traditional indemnity or fee-for-service types of health insurance to more managed care health plans (HMOs); increasing pressure on cost reduction and concurrent demands for quality and clinical outcome data; and a decrease in the number of freestanding, independent hospitals, particularly in rural areas, as more regional health care delivery systems are established, and as more and more hospitals are acquired or merged with other existing larger hospitals and health care systems," he said. Throughout the United States, there are now several hundred health care systems, including several such systems in Maryland. Over one-third of all hospitals nationwide are currently part of a health care system, and the ranks are rap-

Grand Ole Opry Music Legends To Appear At Southern High School

JIM & JESSE McREYNOLDS

In what is being billed as a "bluegrass music spectacular," Nashville's Grand Ole Opry artists Jim and Jesse, their Virginia Boys Band, the Lewis Family, and world renowned harmonica virtuoso Mike Stevens will appear in concert at 7:30 p.m. on April 17, in the Southern Garrett County High School Gym. The event is being sponsored by the Southern Garrett Band Boosters.

Winners of the 1997 National Heritage Award, presented to them by Hillary Clinton and the National Endowment for the Arts at the White House last fall, Jim and Jesse McReynolds and their Virginia Boys have become known around the world for their bluegrass and country music styling on radio, television, and the Capitol, Epic, Opryland, Rounder, and Old Dominion record labels.

Songs such as Paradise (which is John Prine's recognized ecological and environmental lament about industrial progress at the expense of lost childhood traditions) and other releases such as Cotton Mill Man, Diesel On My Tail, Better Times A' Coming, and Sweet Little Miss Blue Eyes have kept them in the forefront of the music industry since they joined the Grand Ole Opry in 1964. They have received their own star in the Walkway of Stars at the Country Music Hall of Fame in Nashville, with membership in the Bill Monroe Hall of Fame, and with numerous other awards and recognitions. They appear as regular headliners at many of the nation's top bluegrass festivals, cultural affairs, and concerts.

Jesse, the younger of the brothers by two years, has developed a personally distinctive and highly imitated mandolin style known as "cross picking." He also sings lead vocals and blends with his brother Jim's high tenor and acoustic guitar accompaniment, and along with the Virginia Boys' banjo, fiddle, and bass backup. They have traveled to London, England, where they have played the renowned Wembley Festival, and have gone on tour to other European countries, such as Switzerland, France, Holland, Ireland, Austria, Sweden, and Germany.

Jim and Jesse released a two-record album after a successful Far Eastern tour, which culminated in Tokyo, Japan. More recently, they were featured on a tour of Africa, sponsored by the U.S. State Department.

Also appearing at the local show will be the legendary Lewis Family, known as the "first family of bluegrass gospel music."

The Lewis Family has been featured on the Grand Ole Opry, TNN's Gospel Jubilee, and the major television networks. Coupled with the comedy and musical prowess of banjo picker Little Roy Lewis, they have appeared at the nation's leading colleges and universities, New York's Lincoln Center, the Dove Awards Show with Pat Boone, bluegrass supercruises in the Bahamas, and Opryland USA. They appeared in the movie Sing A Song For Heaven's Sake, and have hosted their own syndicated television show. Their more than 50 nationally released albums have appeared on Canaan/Word Records, Thoroughbred Records, and, since 1985, exclusively for the Benson Company. In addition to their sound recordings, they have also been featured in three music video productions.

Tickets for the show are $10 for adults in advance and $12.50 at the door. Student tickets are $5.50 in advance and $6.50 at the door. Children under 6 will be admitted free. For further information or to order tickets, persons may call 301-387-9275 or the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce at 301-334-1948. Tickets are available from any member of the Southern Garrett High School Band Boosters, Bill's Marine Service at Deep Creek Lake, Cannon's Ace Hardware south of Keyser, W.Va., and Englander's Pharmacy, Oakland.

EYM To Perform At Special Event In Hagerstown

Garrett County State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch has announced that the Ecumenical Youth Ministry of Oakland has accepted an invitation to perform at the Crime Victims' Rights Week Memorial Service for western Maryland, to be held in Hagerstown on Sunday, April 19. The Ecumenical Youth Ministry, which consists of approximately 40 local youth ranging in age from 12 to 18, has performed to over 10,000 people in concerts, worship services, and with three theatrical productions since its inception in November 1995. The ministry is under the direction of Lynn Broderick.

"This is the first time the EYM has been asked to perform outside of a worship service or concert production in an activity which unites the secular and religious leaders of our counties in an outpouring of love and hope," stated Broderick. "It is a great opportunity for the youth to be visible witnesses against violent crime in our country, especially those crimes directed towards youth."

All youth in the region are invited to travel to the service with the EYM by calling the EYM office at 301-334-6300. EYM singers and youth participants will travel by bus to the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Hagerstown. The bus will leave from St. Matthew's Episcopal Church at 1 p.m. and return at 7 p.m.

According to Ms. Welch, the memorial service will be presented at three locations across the state simultaneously, and is being held for two purposes: to honor the memory of innocent victims who have lost their lives to violent crime in Maryland, and to initiate the state's observance of Victims' Rights Week. During the service in Hagerstown, the names of victims who have died as a result of homicide or automobile manslaughter from the western region of Maryland will be read. A reception will follow the service.

Family members or friends who have returned registration forms to the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention in the past two years are being sent invitations to the memorial service. Anyone wishing to complete a registration form to have a loved one honored and to attend the memorial service should contact the victim witness coordinator, Carolyn Hegeman, in the state's attorney's office at 301-334-1974 as soon as possible. Registration forms must be returned no later than April 10 to ensure that the victim's name will be read at the service.

Friendsville To Host Bloodmobile

The next visit of the American Red Cross Bloodmobile to Garrett County is scheduled for Friday, April 10, at the Friendsville fire hall. Donors will be welcomed from noon until 6 p.m. and the goal for the visit is 40 units.

According to the Red Cross, there is a need for a unit of blood by someone in the country every two seconds. "Blood doesn't just appear in hospitals," stated Leslie Nicholson, ARC donor resources field representative, "and it can't be made in laboratories. It's available when needed only because people are willing to donate it."

Persons who are at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 105 pounds, and are in generally good health may donate blood. Persons desiring more information may telephone the Red Cross toll-free at 1-800-732-0383.

AHEC Slates Health Forum, Town Meeting

The Western Maryland Area Health Education Center, in cooperation with the Maryland Rural Health Association and A Star! in Western Maryland, an AmeriCorps program, will hold a health forum/town meeting Saturday at Garrett Community College.

This meeting, which will begin at 3 p.m. in the Continuing Education Building, will provide an open forum to discuss issues and concerns related to health care, such as access to and payment for services.

Consumers, health care professionals, legislators, and others interested in the delivery of health care in western Maryland are welcome.

Walter Donalson, CEO of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and representatives from the Garrett County Health Department and the Maryland Rural Health Association will be present.

Issues raised at the meeting will be communicated to legislators and policy makers through Health Voice, a newsletter edited by Nathan Blatchley, Rural Health information facilitator at the WMAHEC. "This is a way for people in Garrett County to access the system and have their voices heard," Blatchley said.

The meeting is one of a series to be held in the three westernmost counties of Maryland. For further information, persons may contact Blatchley at 301-777-9150, ext. 149.

JUST CATCHING SOME RAYS - Everyone enjoyed the three or four unusual summer-like days this past week, including Atlas, a 90-pound champion boxer (sans the gloves) owned by Rob Leuba, Accident. Atlas took full advantage of the wonderful sunshine by sliding out the back window of his owner's pickup truck when Leuba stopped at the McHenry Plaza. Despite the forbidding rhetoric on the window ("Mad Dog; Fear Me"), Leuba said that his friend loves children and is quite docile. His favorite sports are full-contact Friebee and swimming. Atlas hails from Small Pak Kennels, Kane, Pa., which has been breeding champion boxers for 35 years. He looks so nice in the above photo, though, because his "mother" (Rob's wife Patty) is a professional pet groomer. Photo by Eric Jones.

Two Plead Guilty In Treasure Island Shoplifting Case

Two defendants who had been arrested by Garrett County Sheriff's deputies for allegedly shoplifting one Super Nintendo video game and six music compact discs from Treasure Island department store each pleaded guilty in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings.

Timothy David Hare, 26, Glen Burnie, and Carrie Lynn Cosner, 20, McHenry, each faced charges of misdemeanor theft stemming from the January incident. Hare was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, fined $355, and placed on 18 months of unsupervised probation. Cosner received a 60-day suspended sentence, was placed on 18 months of supervised probation, and was ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

In other recent district court news, Franis Wade Hinebaugh, 49, Oakland, was found not guilty of second-degree assault, and was not prosecuted on charges of felony theft and violating an ex parte order. The charges stemmed from a domestic dispute and alleged altercation with his ex-wife, who claimed that property of theirs that Hinebaugh had taken did not solely belong to him.

here in Garrett County. Then, 12 "situations" that may or may not mandate a report by a third party to local authorities are reviewed.

Respondents are given the following instructions as a prelude to the 12 situations: "The second set of questions will be about definitions of child abuse and how to report child abuse. In Maryland, all professionals who 'have reason to believe' that a child has been abused or neglected are mandated to report to local law enforcement or to the Department of Social Services. The identity of the person who reports suspected child abuse or neglect is kept confidential. If an investigation does not find evidence of abuse or neglect, there is no liability for reports made in good faith.

"Citizens are also encouraged to report any suspected child abuse to local law enforcement or to social services. Citizens may also report without giving their names, and they are not held liable for reports given in good faith."

The Child Safety Survey is part of a public awareness campaign to educate Garrett County residents about prevention of child abuse and neglect. The campaign's kickoff is scheduled for Thursday, April 16, at the 1998 Family Violence Planning Forum, to be held at the Will O' The Wisp from noon to 4 p.m.

As part of this public education effort, the OCYF and The Republican will be publishing followup articles to provide information on how citizens should respond to the situations presented in the Child Safety Survey.

For further information, interested persons may call the OCYF at 301-334-1189 or the Health Department at 301-334-8122.

In addition to the new shelter, the park will benefit from the installation of lights on the volleyball courts.

The cost for the two current projects will total $44,000. Funds for the improvements were obtained from several sources including a Program Open Space grant, the volleyball association, Grantsville Lions Club, Grantsville Lioness Club, and the Town of Grantsville.

Open dates are available for use of the new pavilion. Reservations may be made for any of the pavilions in the Grantsville Community Park by contacting Dr. Ronald Gillum at 301-895-5107.

page news coverage of the arts in 11 of 15 issues. He also cited the paper's coverage of the arts council's request for county funds this year, and Sincell's editorial in that edition supporting the funding request. He said the nearly every press release submitted having to do with the arts is printed in the paper, from exhibits and performances to competitions and festivals.

Also given regard in the nomination narrative were the weekly columns and essays in the paper, which Schlosnagle said "reflect the wit, insight, and personal experience of staff writers and guests engaged in communication and dialogue through the imaginative art and craft of creative writing." He also said the "frequent reproduction of fine photographs suggests the emotional appeal and power of the visionary art of photography."

In addition to publicizing the arts of Garrett County, Sincell Publishing is also a monetary supporter of the arts, as pointed out by Schlosnagle. The company has contributed $5,000 or more annually for the past four years in support of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's "Symphony at Deep Creek," which Schlosnagle said provides a "world-class symphony to a broad segment of a rural community (characterized by high chronic unemployment) at an admission of $12 or less per person."

The company is also a founding funder of Our Town Theatre, and makes regular cash contributions in support of a broad range of arts programs sponsored by youth groups, school and civic organizations, and the Garrett County Arts Council.

"Sincell Publishing is a powerful voluntary partner in the promotion of Western Maryland's emerging arts community," Schlosnagle said. "The arts council, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, the Spruce Forest Artisan Village, the Garrett Choral Society, Our Town Theatre, the Chamber of Commerce, the board of eduction, and many other local organizations are obligated to Sincell Publishing for The Republican's long-standing commitment to promoting the arts as an integral part of vibrant community life."

Don Sincell said he was very pleased about the award.

"It was very thoughtful of the arts council to submit the nomination for our paper," he said. "I know Steve took a lot of time to write the nomination narrative and we greatly appreciate his efforts. We hope this kind of recognition will encourage others to support the arts. They truly are a wonderful and vital part of life."

Governor Parris N. Glendening will be the host of the ArtSalute event on June 10, at which Sincell Publishing will be honored with the eight other awardees. Glendening and his wife Frances will join James Brady, secretary of the Maryland Department of Economic and Business Development, his wife Francine, and several honorary chairpersons. Also expected to be in attendance are representatives of the Maryland General Assembly and members of the Washington Congressional Delegation.

Police reported the incident occurred Saturday around noon as Calhoun was stopped, waiting for another car to make a turn. Lance E. Umbel, 21, Friendsville, also traveling on Fearer Road at the time, was reportedly following too closely and rear-ended the Calhoun vehicle.

Police charged Umbel. Calhoun was released from the hospital following treatment.

A Wise Investment...

We feel truly honored to have been named Maryland's recipient of the 1998 Governor's Arts Award (Small Business division) for our support of the arts in Garrett County. Fortunately, though, there are many businesses and individuals in the county who do much to support and promote the arts, not only with their money, but also with their time, often with lots of sweat, and through their willingness to share their own artistic talents. We have some amazingly gifted residents, many of whom do so much to enrich life in Garrett County.

While support for the arts from businesses, individuals, and foundations is crucial for their survival, we become a bit distressed at the level of support from the federal, state, and local government, and what we believe are some rather gross inequities in how tax-generated funding for the arts is allocated. We received, for example, a supplemental list of capital projects submitted by Governor Glendening to the General Assembly. We were pleased that there was among the amounts listed $226,000 to finance a new slate roof for the Oakland B&O train station. However, also on that list were: $1.5 million grant for acoustical and structural improvement to Meyerhoff Symphony Hall (Baltimore City), $1.7 million for design and construction of a concert hall and education center on the grounds of Strathmore Hall (Montgomery County), $2 million grant to construct a new theater and associated site improvements at the Olney Theatre Center for the Arts (Montgomery County), $2.2 million for the conversion of a former high school into a community center (Anne Arundel County), $1.7 million for renovation of the Hippodrome Performing Arts Center (Baltimore City), and various other related projects.

These, of course, are areas of much greater population (and votes) than Garrett County, but these are also areas that have 100 times the resources in terms of business and industry, foundations, and wealthy individuals than does Garrett County. They also have numerous theaters and performing arts centers in their areas already. We certainly appreciate the funds for the new roof on the train station, but it's a real shame that we can't seem to secure similar funding to support the fine arts in Garrett County. In a multi-billion dollar state budget ($800-plus million for capital projects alone), surely there is an extra million or two to build a real performing arts theater in Garrett County. (The amphitheater at Deep Creek Lake State Park will be nice, but its usage will be severely limited.)

Perhaps we have not done our homework, or have not been aggressive enough at the state and federal level. A great first step, though, to securing state funds, and possibly some federal funds, for this purpose would be for our own county commissioners to include money for the arts in the county budget this year. After all, if our county elected officials choose not to support the arts, why should the state and federal governments do so?

Please, Wayne, Wayne, and Gary, give this strong consideration in your budget deliberations. It would be a wise investment in our county's future that would reap great dividends.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I just had to let you know how much I appreciate and enjoy Joan Sussman's "Notes From Bittinger" each week. It is so much fun to read, especially March 19th's "March Madness." It is bright and breezy, light and witty.

Keep it up, Joan! I'm really looking forward to the next publication.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

I understand that not everyone has a computer or even wants one, but I've found it to be a most wonderful aid to genealogical research. Garrett County is represented on the World Wide Web — US GENWEB at: http://www.rootsweb.com/~mdgarrett/garrett.html. I supervise this site and would like to post upcoming family reunions on the web page. This could conceivably locate some long lost relatives who might liven up your reunion.

To have your reunion announced on the WWW, please notify me at least a month or more prior to the reunion. There is no charge for this. Everything on the US GENWEB is done by volunteers, including me. I will need the name, date, and location of the reunion and the name and phone number of the person in charge.

Information on reaching me is as follows: Connie Beachy, 458 Meadow Mountain Trail, Swanton, MD 21561-2417; 301-387-7378; e-mail — cbeachy@gcnet.net.

To the Editor:

I am writing to encourage parents, grandparents and anyone who cares about children to attend the Garrett County Youth Tobacco Prevention Summit, Saturday, April 4, 10 a.m. at Garrett Community College. Tobacco is America's #1 killer. Each year it kills more Americans than crack, cocaine, heroin, homicide, suicide, car accidents, fires, and AIDS combined. More than 3,000 teens begin smoking each day in the United States.

Dr. Victor DeNoble, a one-time employee of the tobacco industry, will be the guest speaker at the Youth Tobacco Summit. Dr. DeNoble made history when he testified before Congress in 1994 and blew the whistle on the tobacco industry. Since then he has had major television appearances on "60 Minutes," "Good Morning America," Dateline," "David Brinkley Sunday News," "Primetime," and ABC, CBS & NBC news. He has also testified before the FDA and served on the Vice President Gore's Tobacco Settlement Committee.

I strongly encourage parents to hear his message. For more information, call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-8111.

To the Editor:

We would like to bring up another community service activity going on during Service Club Basketball that is also very worthwhile and teaches our 6-12th graders love of God, theatre, music, and getting along with one another — The Ecumenical Youth Ministry. The Ecumenical Youth Ministry presented its third musical "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Thank you to the 30+ actors and musicians who performed their hearts out for a very receptive community of 400 audience members per night (approximately 2,000 viewers) for 5 nights, which spanned two weekends. Lynn Broderick and her husband Michael and Pastor Chip Lee were burning many hours each evening and on weekends to put this musical together. We, the youth, the parents, grandparents, and friends of the EYM would like to thank them for their dedication to EYM, and this year's "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown."

The EYM went to Solomon's Island again this year to present the musical to the Episcopal Church in southern Maryland. Thank you, Lynn and Michael, Pastor Lee, Don Sincell, Jeff Gilbert, Susan Peterson, Mary Lynn Bosley, Teresa Vandevender, and Berthe Green for chaperoning the EYM musical group at Solomon's Island.

Thank you to the sponsoring churches: St. Peter's Catholic Church, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, St. Paul's United Methodist Church, and St. Matthew's/St. John's Episcopal Church for funding EYM for three years now. We are still hearing positive remarks about the Charlie Brown EYM production from audience members.

We are blessed to live in such a caring community.

Sincerely,
Janet and Rex Archer

To the Editor:

I have read previous letters to the editor (March 19th and March 26th) about Equal Pay Day and would like to add my support to this worthy cause. It often has been reported that women earn only 74 cents for every dollar a man earns in jobs with similar job descriptions. What happened to women's 26 cents? Until last month I had no first-hand knowledge of this practice since in my field—education—salaries are set without reference to sex and kept strictly according to job descriptions.

But in February I traveled to work on the other side of our state and had occasion to visit our nephew who is employed at a local motel in that area. While we were at dinner he leaned across the table and mentioned that he was paid more per hour than the women who worked at the same establishment. I asked why, thinking he must do more than his women friends. He maintained that everyone at the front desk, male or female, did the same job as was described on their contract. When I asked him how he felt about that, he said that when he a asked the manager about it, she had no answer. That was just the way things were. The men did no more security work than the women, had no special equipment, and were asked to do nothing more than what the women were expected to do. Our nephew said that when he finishes his schooling he will "do something about it."

He plans to have a long conversation with his manager about why he feels that the practice of unequal pay for the same job description is very wrong. What he could also do is notify the Labor Board. It is illegal for an employer to fire a person for questioning his/her rights. Nevertheless, he has decided to wait until he no longer needs the job.

I was glad to think he will become an advocate for the women he works with. I wish he would do it tomorrow on Equal Pay Day, but like many women, he is afraid of losing his job.

Collectively women lose hundreds of millions of dollars each year. This struggle for pay equity is part of America's evolving sense of what's fair and just. In the past, union demands were an illegal restraint of trade, slavery was an accepted practice of our democratic nation, married women once had no property rights, and women workers often had no right to their own earnings. We've come a long way.

But today the practice of unequal pay for women can still be found, and it hurts families, hurts children, hurts women. Let's show our support for our friends, our sisters, our wives, our mothers, by raising awareness. Ask someone on April 3rd; "Where's your 26 cents?"

Sincerely,
Gail N. Herman

Doing Study

idly growing.

The goal of this feasibility study, Donalson stressed, is to guarantee continuing local hospital access to high quality medical care through GCMH for the residents of Garrett County and surrounding West Virginia counties which are served. Also, the board of governors desires to position the hospital for success in the future healthcare environment while maintaining appropriate local control at the board of governance level.

The hospital has formed an Affiliation Study Task Force of trustees, physicians, and management staff and has engaged an experienced national consulting firm to assist them in a formal process to evaluate the feasibility of an affiliation. Part of this process is to determine the various ways such a potential relationship could be structured to benefit GCMH in the future and assure meeting its stated mission and goals. The hospital expects to issue a Request for Proposal, through its board of governors, to previously identified potential affiliation partners shortly. The effort of obtaining and evaluating proposals is expected to continue into the summer months. The Affiliation Study Task Force will carefully review each proposal received to determine if such potential affiliation would be in the best future interest of GCMH and help the organization to meet its mission and goals. No recommendations from the task force to the GCMH board of governors is expected before the fall, Donalson concluded.

EATING FROM LENT TOWARD EASTER

Lent is about to merge into Holy Week. While still fasting the great feast of Easter is within sight. There are few places better to consider these shifts in the ascent to Easter than a monastery kitchen.

For everyone who does not have ready access to a monastery, I suggest From a Monastery Kitchen ($24, Triumph Books) by the Benedictine monk Br. Victor-Antoine d'Avila-Latourrette. This book advertises itself as "The Classic Natural Foods Cookbook," and has dozens of splendid recipes which arise from a religious lifestyle and many of which also evoke religious themes.

The whole life of a monk should have a Lenten character. Abstinence from the flesh of four-footed animals is central to the dietary implementation of that principle.

So these are largely—but not strictly—vegetarian dishes. Vegetable-cheese casserole, potato and carrot puff, and spinach casserole with tomato topping are just three of the many main course dishes that sound simply delicious.

The format of Br. Victor-Antoine's cookbooks is that each recipe is accompanied by a word of wisdom and a beautiful woodcut. The recipe for egg noodles with basil and cheese, for example, is accompanied by a woodcut of a medieval king strumming a harp.

The word of wisdom, by W.H. Auden, is especially appropriate for the waning days of Lent, when the Christian longs for the "Alleluia!" of Easter. "In the deserts of the heart/Let the healing of the fountain start;/In the prison of his days/Teach the free man how to praise."

One dish I plan to sample when the first rhubarb is ready for pulling is Benedictine rhubarb and raisin pudding. This is a rich bread pudding with honey, raisins and, of course, rhubarb. My mouth waters just thinking about it.

Another of Br. Victor-Antoine's books is Twelve Months of Monastery Soups ($25, Triumph Books). In this age of fast food, we have forgotten the culture of soup that was the staple of the average table until a few generations ago. Br. Victor-Antoine quotes the French proverb, "Eat soup first and eat it last,/and live 'til a hundred years be past."

The reason that soup was so important, from times immemorial, is that there was always a fire in the hearth (or, in recent centuries, in the stove). Very often there was only one pot in the house, and that pot was forever over the fire. In it was soup which, with bread, comprised the basis of every meal.

Br. Victor-Antoine carries us back to the culture of soup with his 12 months' worth of recipes. A few of these might serve for a first course of a larger meal, like Colbert clear soup or parsley soup. Most, however, are worthy of consideration as a meal alone. As in all his books, Br. Victor-Antoine is concerned to instruct us in the philosophy and theology of his cooking, as well as in the practice of it.

Part of the genius of his book on soup is that the foundation stock consists of what the modern world throws away. Did you boil your vegetables last night? Well, save the water. That becomes the basis for your next soup. Were there trimmings of your vegetables and meats which, ordinarily, you would throw away? Put those in the water you save, and boil it up. You are on your way to soup as it was made for millennia.

This is a cookbook for those who delight in soup and for those who would like to recover a style of cooking which is amazingly simple because it is continuous with the rest of life.

The works of Br. Victor-Antoine are a rich treasure trove for Christians engaged in spiritual pilgrimage through this world toward the heavenly country and for cooks of any faith. Blessed are they who are both Christians and cooks!

Unique Birthday Party Slated As Benefit Event

In an effort to teach their children how much more satisfying it is to give than to receive, two Garrett County mothers are staging a unique birthday celebration for their two children turning 5 this month. Brenda Thomas and Lori Malcolm, Creative Momz of Emily Thomas and Nixon Malcolm, respectively, have staged the second annual Festival for Friends birthday party, the proceeds of which will benefit both the Grant-a-Wish Foundation at Johns Hopkins Children's Hospital and The Republican newspaper's Warm the Children campaign.

Funds are being raised chiefly through a "Beanie Baby™ Raffle," with the drawing slated for April 26 during a birthday bash at the McHenry House at Wisp. The raffle tickets are $10 each and give the purchaser seven chances to win one of seven baskets full of Beanie Babies™. The grand prize is the "Colossal Beanie Baby™ Basket" containing 30-40 current and retired Beanies. Six other prizes consist of six to nine of the popular stuffed creatures.

The tickets can be purchased only at the Reminisce Antique Mall, located along Rt. 219 next to the Lakeview Exxon. The prizes are on display at the shop. Persons who would like to request the raffle tickets by mail may do so by sending a check (made out to Grant-a-Wish) and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Reminisce Antique Mall, 25297 Garrett Highway, McHenry, MD 21541. All donations are tax-deductible.

The April 26 party for Nixon and Emily is by invitation only, although the Creative Momz said they hope to be able to stage more of a "carnival" type event next year. At the party this year, more money will be raised through various games and activities for those attending. The Creative Momz said several businesses and individuals have donated either items, accommodations, or money to the event. Any business that would like to donate toys, raffle items, or gift certificates may contact either Malcolm at 301-387-7535 or Thomas at 301-387-6445. All money raised will go to the two charities.

The Grant-a-Wish Foundation is a program of the Children's House at Johns Hopkins, similar to the Make-A-Wish program. Children dealing with life-threatening illnesses are granted their wishes, which have ranged from a visit with the president of the United States to simply a pair of roller skates or items of clothing. For the past 10 years, the foundation has been sending families to Deep Creek Lake as a part of the Beach & Mountain Retreat Program.

"This program gives families an opportunity to get away from the stresses of a hospital or home environment and relax," said Audrey Braude, special events coordinator for the program. "Grant-a-Wish retreats are available free of charge and families are encouraged to use the condominiums on an ongoing basis throughout the course of their child's medical treatment."

The Warm the Children campaign was initiated last fall by The Republican newspaper. Money was donated to the cause, which was then used to take local needy children on shopping trips to buy new winter clothing and footwear. Every dollar donated went directly to the children, as the newspaper can do its own advertising and publicity without any overhead costs. There were 122 children served in this first campaign. The newspaper staff will engage in the effort again this fall.

For more information about the birthday event, persons may contact the Creative Momz at the numbers noted above.

"We are anxious to teach our children and the children of our community the joys and rewards of giving to others," Malcolm and Thomas said. "This special event is a great way to bring the community together to work as a whole to teach our children core family values of giving to others."

BEANIE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR CHARITY SLATED — Nixon Malcolm and Emily Thomas, pictured here with loads of popular Beanie Baby™ stuffed animals, will celebrate their 5th birthdays in a unique way, thanks to their Creative Momz Lori Malcolm and Brenda Thomas. This is the second year the Creative Momz have planned a bash for their youngsters, with the purpose of helping local charities while teaching the kids about giving. The Frontier Festival for Friends party is slated for April 26, at which a raffle drawing will be held for a variety of Beanie Babies. The raffle tickets, which are $10 for seven chances to win, are on sale now at the Reminisce Antique Mall, located along Rt. 219 next to the Lakeview Exxon. The money raised will benefit the Johns Hopkins Grant-a-Wish Foundation and The Republican newspaper's Warm the Children campaign. A grand prize consisting of 38 Beanie Babies will be raffled off, as well as a first prize Princess Diana Beanie Baby™. Five other prizes will also be won, with baskets of six to nine Beanies included. The children's mothers said they initiated the Frontier Festival for Friends party in an effort to teach their families about the importance of giving. "Our kids already have everything," said Mrs. Thomas. "And the thought of even more stuff being bought and given to them on their birthdays was just too much. We wanted to do something different that benefitted someone else, and it worked out great last year." The Creative Momz were able to donate over $500 to the Johns Hopkins Grant-a-Wish Foundation, and Children's House, as well as the Ali Ghan Shriners Children's Hospital Transportation Fund. "I think we're going to raise a lot more this year," she said. "We're very excited about it."

Health Department Strives To Improve Length, Quality Of Life

This week the Garrett County Commissioners signed a proclamation recognizing Public Health Week. This action designates a time to focus on the public health system's progress and successes.

Dr. Rex Archer, health officer for Garrett County, spoke about assessment of public health. "Public health is not what the health department does, but what we, the public, do to improve our health," he stated.

What the people of Garrett County have been doing since the advent of the state public health system in the region is showing improved longevity and quality of life, Dr. Archer pointed out.

Maryland has had a state public health system for over 200 years. The Garrett County Health Department was set up 67 years ago, in 1931. Since that time, improvements have been made in sanitation, immunizations, and there has an increase in healthier lifestyles, Dr. Archer said.

Dr. Archer outlined three main roles played by the health department in helping people of the community enhance their chances for better health.

The health department, he said, serves as a lighthouse to alert people about the health problems and risks that they may face. A second role played is that of a facilitator bringing people together "around the table" to pursue solutions to common problems.

The third health department function he described as "watch dog." In this capacity the department assures compliance with health regulations and follow-through on what has been decided by the community.

The health department does provide services that are not available elsewhere, he explained, though delivery of services is not its main function.

In reviewing progress made toward improving health and quality of life in Garrett County, Dr. Archer indicated some statewide statistics broken down by counties. "Our cancer rates are the lowest in the state. We are also low in the category of low birth weight," he said.

He credits some of the positive statistics to education and outreach programs. The WIC (Women, Infants, and Children) programs offer support, education, and information so that children get a healthier start on life. "Moms are taking good care of themselves. We're doing well in prenatal care, too," he added.

A free screening program for breast and cervical cancer is administered by the health department. This program has been beneficial in reducing risk and in early detection of cancer, Dr. Archer explained.

Services and educational projects sponsored by the health department include those as varied as safe water programs, and geriatric evaluation. "The health department provided over 180,000 services in 1997," he stated.

To reach the maximum number of people and address the many health issues in the county, the health department participates in a range of cooperative efforts. "We are active in dozens of partnerships," he said.

Some of these partnerships deal with issues of environment, transportation, and education. The roles that the health department plays in these groups include advisory, referral, issuing of grants, and joint programming.

The Garrett County Health Department plays and active role in education, prevention, and outreach to improve health in the community. Dr. Archer reflected on the results of public health efforts. "Garrett County residents are living longer, healthier lives," he said.

Services Provided By The Garrett County Health Department

The health department provides a variety of services to address health needs in the community. Services are offered in the following areas:

- Environmental protection: water testing, radon testing, perc permits, restaurant inspections, and rabies vaccinations.
- Community outreach: tobacco control programs, prevention programs, nutrition counseling, safety programs, child safety seats, WIC, and prenatal care.
- Personal health: health screening for breast or cervical cancer, immunization clinics, flu shot clinics, and AIDS education.
- Home care services: Registered nurse and aide home care, and geriatric evaluation.
- Community mental health clinic.
- Addiction services.

Family Violence Prevention Forum Set For April 16

The Garrett County Local Management Board/Office for Children, Youth, and Families and the Garrett County Family Violence Coalition are sponsoring the Family Violence Prevention Planning Forum, scheduled for Thursday, April 16, from noon to 4 p.m. at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

The forum is the introductory event for the Personal Safety Initiative Project. Curricula to be used in the Family Safari, specific to three age groups (grades 4-6, 7-9, 10-12) will be presented for review. The concept of personal body safety is central in the Family Safety Safari and includes standard responses for youth to employ when encountering potentially dangerous situations.

Invitations have been sent to approximately 150 parents, organizational and agency representatives, and community leaders. Pre-registration is required and the first 70 respondents will be able to attend the event and receive materials necessary to prepare for the afternoon breakout session.

For more information, persons may contact Lyz Biser at 301-334-8889 or Susan Athey-Oxford at 301-334-1189.

Trades Council, Contractors Assn. Sign Labor Pact

The 300 Garrett County construction workers laboring in the basic building trades who are represented by the Western Maryland Building and Construction Trades Council (BCTC) stand to benefit from a five-year labor agreement signed recently. This agreement, negotiated with the Western Maryland Contractors Association, is expected to bring added stability to the worker/contractor relationship in the region's construction industry.

Based in Cumberland, the BCTC represents construction workers in Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties. The basic building trades membership consists of bricklayers, carpenters, cement masons, iron workers, laborers, operating engineers, and teamsters. Other BCTC-represented building professions not included in this new agreement include plumbing and heating and air conditioning. The five-year pact, first ever in the history of the basic trades, was accepted by the council membership two months before the expiration of the current three-year agreement.

Terry L. Bowman, BCTC president, praised the pact. "The far-sighted benefit of the new agreement allows Western Maryland contractors to remain responsive to changing economic needs of the community and individual contractor growth goals, providing for a 3 percent per annum boost to cover basic cost of living increases," he said. "The settlement meets the expectations of the local craftsmen, who are looking forward to an excellent working relationship (with contractors) throughout the duration of the agreement."

Bowman said that the early settlement eliminates the posturing between labor and management to reach a resolution, thus providing for a normal construction season start-up and sequence. The building outlook for both Garrett and Allegany counties appears to be on an incline from the extremely slow growth over past years, he added.

Massage Course Slated At GCC

Beginning later this month Garrett Community College (GCC) will offer a course titled "Overview of Bodywork and Massage," an introductory course covering the concepts and techniques of massage therapy. The 30-hour course will meet for five Saturdays beginning April 18, and will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day.

This massage course will include a variety of topics such as the history of massage, relevance of touch to wellness, strokes of Swedish massage, how to set boundaries, the various modalities of massage, the importance of touch to mental and physical development, indications/contraindications for massage, and business/professional guidelines. Students will also learn about the nervous system, touch concepts and research, and modalities.

A prerequisite course for entry into the massage therapy curriculum, "Overview of Bodywork and Massage" could also be of interest to any individuals in the caregiving field and to those who enjoy massage for themselves or giving massage to others. A certificate is presented upon completion of the course.

The cost of the course is $160 for Garrett County residents, and Maryland senior citizens over the age of 60 may enroll tuition free. Non-Garrett County residents must pay an additional differential fee. As space is limited, persons interested in registering should do so as soon as possible at GCC's Continuing Education Office, located in Room CE-300 of the Continuing Education building. For further information, interested persons may call the office at 301-387-3069.

In Memory of William J. Speicher who passed away October 4, 1997

It hasn't been long since you were taken away.
There are so many things we didn't have a chance to say.
Not a day goes by, we still don't get the urge to cry
Over our memories of you, when you were still by our side.
There are so many things we do
That can't help but remind us of you.
We miss you more each passing day,
And wish you were here with us still today.

Sadly missed by wife Anna Speicher and children Rosie and William Speicher

Southern Softball Team Opens With Two Convincing Wins

Two convincing wins, including a 13-1 thrashing of Westmar on Saturday in Lonaconing and an 11-1 whipping of host Flintstone Tuesday, may be an omen for a winning season for the Southern High School girls' softball team and their coach, Dave Bosley, as the Rams will attempt to improve upon their 7-10 mark last year. The Rams will go after win number three this afternoon at Northern.

Jennifer Teagarden and Pickle Reese paced the Rams' six-hit effort against previously unbeaten Westmar in their opener Saturday, as each smacked two-run doubles, while Mika Meyers hit a pair of singles. The Rams were also aided by the Westmar defense, which committed eight errors.

Teagarden was the winner on the mound, as she allowed only one hit and pitched a shutout through the first four innings. The only run scored by the Wildcats was unearned, as Mindy Fazenbaker scored on a two-out double after Southern's only error.

It was the first loss in three starts for Westmar.

The Southern junior varsity was defeated in the second game, 10-5, as the Rams managed only three hits off Christina March and Jennifer Barb.

Teagarden also earned the win on the mound Tuesday at Flintstone, as she struck out nine and allowed five hits in going the distance. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning because of the 10-run rule.

Erin Shaffer recorded a double, a single, and three walks to lead Southern's nine-hit effort. Teagarden and Jennifer Sanders each contributed a pair of singles.

Pacing the Aggies at the plate were Erica Heavner, who hit a home run, and Jennifer Whorton, who stroked a double. The loss evened Flintstone's mark at 1-1.

Northern Girls Fall To Indians, But Then Whip Salisbury, Beall

After dropping a 10-2 decision to host Mount Savage last Friday, the Northern High School girls' softball team came back Monday to crush Salisbury, 19-3, on the Elks' diamond and then record a 21-13 win over host Beall on Tuesday. The results left the Huskies with a 2-2 overall mark and a 1-2 record in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League.

The Huskies held a brief, 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning of Friday's game with Mt. Savage, but the Indians (1-1) erupted for three runs in the bottom of the inning and three more in the second frame en route to their eight-run win.

Laura Booth was the winning pitcher, and aided her own cause with a home run and a triple. Casey Thompson rapped a double and two singles for three RBI, April Skidmore finished with a double and a single for three RBI, and Heather Abucevicz added a triple.

Mimi Harvey singled twice for the Huskies, Kerri Brantner doubled, and Erin Butner had an RBI single.

The Northern junior varsity team was also defeated, 8-3.

Jenny Thomas recorded a no-hitter for the Huskies on Monday against Salisbury in a game called after four and one-half innings because of the 10-run rule.

The Northern offense, which produced seven hits, was aided by the Elk defense, which committed 13 errors. Jennifer Murray and Mimi Harvey each had two hits for the Huskies.

A home run and two singles were recorded by Harvey in Tuesday's victory over Beall, while Brooke Brenneman ripped a pair of doubles that brought home four runs.

The Huskies took the lead for good in the top of the first with three runs, scored four more in the second, one in the third, four in the fifth, five in the sixth, and four in the seventh. They finished with 10 hits, but also drew 18 walks.

Heidi Frazee also had a pair of hits for the Huskies, both singles, while Jenny Murray added a double.

Leading Beall's hitting was Shannon Hetz, who hit a homer and three singles for five RBI. Amy Ballases recorded three singles, while Donna Skidmore and Nicky Williams each rapped two singles.

It was the third loss in as many starts for Beall.

Coach Lynn Brenneman's Huskies will try to extend their winning streak this afternoon in their home opener against cross-county rival Southern. They will entertain Hyndman on Monday, travel to Fort Hill Tuesday, and host Flintstone next Thursday.

Huskies Lose Three In A Row, Then Rebound For A 10-0 Win

It's been a tough week on the baseball diamond for the Northern High School baseball team, as Coach Phil Carr and his Huskies dropped three straight Western Maryland Interscholastic League games and saw their record dip to 1-3. The losses were to host Westmar last Thursday, 7-0, to Mount Savage on Saturday, 4-3, on the Indians' field, and to host Fort Hill on Monday, 8-1.

But the Huskies came back Tuesday to record an easy 10-0 win over Hancock on the Panthers' diamond to improve their record to 2-3.

The Huskies out-hit the Wildcats of Westmar last Thursday by an 8-7 margin, but left everyone stranded on base to give Josh Broadwater the win on the mound.

Taking the loss was Jeremy Reed, who gave up a 400-foot, two-run homer and a triple by Brandon Foutz. Josh Broadwater had a run-producing single for the Wildcats, who upped their record to 2-0.

Leading the Huskies' hitting were Chris Herman and Matt Fritz with two hits apiece.

The Huskies had a 2-0 lead going into the bottom of the third against Mount Savage on Saturday, and were also on top by a run, 3-2, after six and one-half innings, but the Indians rallied for two runs and the victory in the bottom of the seventh.

The Huskies took a 1-0 advantage in the second when Herman drew a walk and later scored on an infield error. Northern made it 2-0 in the third behind an RBI single by Zach Rawe.

A bases-loaded single by Mount Savage's Jason Skidmore, plus a throwing error, tied the score in the bottom of the third.

Matt Settle singled in the top of the seventh for the Huskies, advanced to second on an error, and scored on another throwing error to put his team up 3-2. But the Indians won the game in the bottom of the seventh with a ground-out which scored Adam Moulden and an infield roller that plated freshman John Emerick with the winning run.

Emerick and Larry O'Baker each had two singles for Mt. Savage.

The game featured outstanding pitching, as Northern's Matt Fritz fanned a dozen batters and walked five in six innings, and Brian DeHaven and Skidmore teamed up for a two-hitter for the Indians.

The Huskies could not get much out of their bats Monday afternoon against Fort Hill's Jimmy Barrett, as he went into the seventh inning with a no-hitter. He finished with a two-hit, nine-strikeout, five-walk effort, while Northern's Jeremy Reed and Matt Settle yielded eight hits.

Most of the Sentinels' scoring was done in the first and second innings, as two first-inning runs resulted from two walks and a throwing error. Two-out, two-run singles by Josh Logsdon and Brandon Jenkins highlighted a four-run second inning.

The Sentinels (2-1) added two more runs in the fifth on a run-producing single by Jenkins and an RBI double by Jason Hamilton.

Jenkins finished with two singles and four RBI.

Northern pinch-hitter Ryan Butler finally halted Barrett's no-hitter with a one-out double in the seventh. Dennis Martinez followed with a single that sent Butler home to avert a shutout.

Scott Sisler led the Huskies to their 10-0 shutout of Hancock on Tuesday, as he fired a two-hitter. Sisler gave up just two singles, issued no walks, and struck out 14 in seven innings of work.

Leading the Huskies' 10-hit effort were Zack Rawe with a double and a single, Fritz with a pair of singles, and Settle with a two-run single.

The Huskies will play a doubleheader at Mapletown, Pa., this Saturday. Then they will play their home opener on Monday against Allegany and host Fort Hill next Wednesday.

Husky Jayvees Blank Preston

A two-hit pitching effort by Josh Hook highlighted a 15-0 rout of the Preston County junior varsity by the Northern High School jayvees yesterday at the Cove. It was the season opener for the Huskies.

Offensively, the Huskies pounded out 10 hits, with Adam Brenneman recording a double and a single and T.J. Workman getting a pair of singles. The Huskies also capitalized on six walks. The game was called after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

The Huskies will play again next Tuesday at Allegany.

Rams Edged In Final Inning By Preston County

A solo home run in the bottom of the eighth inning resulted in a 6-5 opening-game loss for the Southern High School baseball team Saturday afternoon, as the Rams fell to Preston County.

The Rams, who have won four straight Area Championships under head coach Jim Bosley, held a 5-3 lead going into the seventh inning, but allowed the Knights to score two runs in the bottom of the seventh to knot the game at 5-5. The winning home run in the eighth was recorded by Danny Liston with one out.

Preston's Anthony Kroneck smacked a solo homer in the sixth and was also responsible for the two runs in the bottom of the seventh with a two-out, two-run double.

Jordan Uphold hit a two-run homer for the Rams in the third inning, while Jason Bernard recorded three singles for the afternoon.

Matt Street, who relieved Nathan Haskiell in the fifth, earned the win on the mound over Southern's Derek Everd, who took over for Chad Warnick in the seventh.

The Rams finished with a 10-7 advantage in hits.

Southern was to have played at Tucker County yesterday, but the game had to be postponed because of a wet field. The Rams are slated to play Saturday at Beall, host Preston County on Tuesday, and travel to Allegany next Wednesday.

Lakers On A Roll, 7-1 For Week, Stand 12-3 Overall

Last week's full slate of baseball action saw the Garrett Community College (GCC) Lakers put together seven victories (two by forfeit) to a single loss, boosting their season record to 12-3. The convincing triumphs, which came in single-game wins over Frederick and CCAC-South, and a doubleheader sweep of Anne Arundel, combined with a doubleheader forfeit by Westmoreland, were marred only by a doubleheader split with Hagerstown in which the Lakers dropped the top of the twinbill by just one run.

At Frederick on Thursday, a 12-4 win was paced by the pitching of freshman Chad Ord. The 6-foot 4-inch southpaw, an imposing sight on the mound, pitched eight innings, striking out six, walking just four batters, and giving up only one earned run. Rick Swanger came on in the ninth inning for the mop-up. "Chad pitched a fine game for us," GCC head coach Ed Wildesen said afterwards, "and even though we committed three errors we're doing better defensively than we had at the beginning of the season."

The Lakers' offense flexed its muscles for a pair of four-run innings, the first coming in the second inning. They added a single run in the third, a pair of scores in the sixth, erupted once more for four runs in the seventh, then topped off the offensive fireworks with a single run in the eighth. Matt DiAngelo scored three runs, going 2-for-4 including a double. Chris Powell scored a pair of runs, both of his hits in a 2-for-6 effort coming on doubles, Jason Davis went 2-for-4 with a double and two runs scored, Denny Rulli was 2-for-5 with a double, and Joe Cusato went 2-for-4 with two singles.

Next up was a road trip to West Mifflin, Pa., where GCC downed host CCAC-South by a score of 8-5. After taking the mound in relief of a shaky Matt Stollings with one out in the third inning and down by a score of 5-4, sophomore Rulli hurled shut-out ball over the remaining six and two-thirds innings. Rulli gave up just two hits, striking out six and walking two. Just prior to coming on the mound he had helped his teammates on the scoreboard by whacking a two-run homer in the midst of a four-run Laker outburst in the top of the third inning, and later he added a single.

GCC took the lead for the first time by scoring two runs in the eighth inning to go up 6-5. After walking, Joe Eisner stole second and then scampered home on an RBI single by Brian Hays, who moved to second on the throw to the plate. Hays was sent home on a single by DiAngelo, who had tripled several innings earlier. Two added runs in the ninth put the lights out for the Lakers' opponents.

Saturday was marked by a doubleheader split in Hagerstown. GCC dropped the opener to Hagerstown 4-3, but roared back to take the second half of the twinbill by a 7-1 margin.

In the first contest, the Lakers relinquished a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the fifth inning when Hagerstown scored three times. GCC's one-run rally in the seventh stirred Laker hopes, but wasn't enough to catch the Hawks. Garrett managed only three hits, including doubles from DiAngelo and Powell, off Hagerstown hurlers Ira Carlson and Bill Dilley. Carlson started for the Hawks and held the Lakers heavy hitters at bay through the first six innings. GCC's Mike Maravich took the loss although he put in a complete game and held Hagerstown to just six hits.

Garrett took revenge in a big way in the second game, pounding out seven runs, two of which were driven home on a pair of DiAngelo RBI singles and two knocked in by a single from Harper. Hays contributed one single and scored twice. A superb pitching effort from Mike Johnston, who tossed a four-hitter and struck out four while walking only one batter paced the victory. "Mike was the difference in the second game," coach Wildesen commented. "He took control, and we also played better with runners on base."

The next day a home doubleheader against Westmoreland Community College was canceled because of personnel difficulties on the visitors' part. Both games were credited as Laker victories due to forfeit.

A doubleheader sweep of Anne Arundel Community College capped the week's action for the Lakers, as they dominated the hosts 8-0, 6-2, and Rulli connected for a round-tripper in each end of the twinbill.

In the opener, Rulli's solo shot and single effort at the plate was duplicated by freshman outfielder Andy Blackwell's hitting performance. Jason Davis whacked two doubles and a single, and former Southern Ram standout Jeremy Fitzwater's double and single drove in a pair of runs. Freshman Chad Ord hurled a complete game shutout, allowing just five hits on the day.

Rulli drew blood early in the second game, swatting a two-run homer in the first inning. His power at the plate helped him on the mound, as he pitched the first four innings, giving up just two runs before Fitzwater came on in relief with the Lakers up by a 4-2 margin. GCC added a pair of runs in the top of the fifth to seal the victory. Blackwell's two doubles drove home a pair of runs, Powell doubled and singled for two RBI, and Lee Pennington doubled.

The Lakers' upcoming schedule for the week includes a road trip to Cumberland to take on perennial powerhouse Allegany College for a Saturday doubleheader beginning at noon. On Sunday Alfred State visits McHenry for a noon doubleheader, on Tuesday the Lakers host Rockville in a 3 p.m. twinbill. A week-long layoff follows before their next outing at Essex on Tuesday, April 14.

Northern Net Teams Split With Vikes, Sentinels, Alco

The girls' tennis team of Northern High School opened its 1998 season last Thursday with a 5-2 victory over host Frankfort, and was then edged, 4-3, by Fort Hill on Monday in Cumberland and tied host Allegany Tuesday, 3-3.

Meanwhile, the Northern boys' team earned a 4-3 victory over the Fort Hill boys before being blanked by Allegany, 7-0, Tuesday. Both teams are slated to host Frankfort next Tuesday and Fort Hill next Thursday.

In the Northern girls' win over Frankfort last Thursday, Cathy Arnold, Dana Braskey, and Abby Bruch all recorded singles wins for the Huskies. The teams of Arnold and Kristin Wright, and Braskey and Bruch each won in doubles.

Alyssa McAvoy was the only Falcon to record a singles victory, while the doubles team of Julie Wolford and Tabitha High also won.

It was also the opening match of the season for the Falcons.

Against Fort Hill on Monday, Braskey and Bruch were singles winners for the Huskies, and the team of Arnold and Wright won in doubles.

Getting singles wins for the Sentinels were Jessica Hovatter, Kari Wilson, and Casey Hook. The deciding point was earned by the doubles team of Bruszewski and Lancaster.

Braskey and Bruch were again singles winners against Allegany on Tuesday. Winning in doubles for the Huskies was the team of Tauwaya Wilkins and Katie Sisler. The number one doubles match had to be called because of darkness, which is why the match ended in a tie.

Earning singles victories for the Campers were Anne Failing, Natalie Hodges, and Brook Fredenburg.

The Northern boys were led to victory Monday over Fort Hill by Joe Weimer and David Butler, who each won in singles and then teamed up to win in doubles, 9-8. Also winning in singles for the Huskies was Pete Brosnihan.

Randy Welsh and Brock Shriver were singles winners for Fort Hill.

In Tuesday's loss to Allegany, John Failing, Fredrico Tino, Chin May Hegde, Scott Crawford, and Kevin Drew swept the singles competition for the Campers. The doubles teams of Failing and Tino, and Matt Stafford and Justin Carter were also victorious to complete the shutout.

Railey's Advances In Tournament

The local youth basketball team sponsored by Railey Realty has advanced to the semi-finals of the 15th Annual Silver Hoop Classic being held at the Washington Middle School in Cumberland. Railey Realty's second win of the tournament was a 56-51 victory over Tuscarora of Waynesboro, Pa. Justin Liller led Railey's with 12 points, followed by Nathaniel Panther with 10, Justin Stephens and Mike Browning with 9 apiece, Ryan White and Jason Finch with 6 each, and Jamie Bosley with 4 points.

The local team faced some stiff competition in its next outing against Stan's Auto Body, an all-star team from the Cumberland area featuring players from Fort Hill, Allegany, East Hardy, and Bishop Walsh. Stan's came on strong in the second half to roll the Railey team by a score of 75-52. Liller again led Railey's with 13, while Finch and Stephens scored 10 each.

In a quarterfinal game played last evening, Railey's got back on the winning track by defeating the Frankfort District team for the second time in the tournament, this time by a score of 74-39. The win puts Railey's in the semi-final game next Tuesday, April 8, at 6 p.m. against Doc's All-Stars of Cumberland.

Scoring leaders for last evening's game were Browning and Liller with 14 points each. Stephens and White had 11 each, Bosley and Finch scored 10 each, and Panther had 4 points.

Gordon Savage Among Top Ski Racers For Army

Captain W. Gordon Savage, formerly of Deep Creek Lake, helped lead the U.S. Army ski team to victory during the annual Armed Forces Winter Games at Hill Air Force Base in Snowbasin, Utah. It was the first time Army won the coveted trophy, doing so in a sweeping victory as team members all placed within the top 10 racers. Savage, the son of Drs. William and Ruta Savage, placed seventh overall in the five-day competition.

The inter-service ski competition consisted of the slalom, giant slalom, dual slalom, dual giant slalom, and the super giant slalom. Eleven teams, composed of 75 individual skiers, competed, all hailing from the various branches of the armed forces.

Savage was invited to ski on the four-person Army team because of his success racing for West Point's ski team when he was a student there from 1988 to 1992. He is also a graduate of Southern High School.

Interstate 79 Speedway Racing Schedule Set

Interstate 79 Speedway promoter Steve Baker has announced the 1998 racing schedule, which will begin with a practice night on Friday, April 3, followed by 26 racing events at the speedway. The practice night admission is free for fans as the drivers get their final test and tune session before opening night on Friday, April 10.

Regular Friday night racing programs will begin each week at 8 p.m. and will include late models, semi lates, UMP modifieds, pure stocks, and 4 cylinders. Spectator admission prices have been lowered to $7.00 in 1998. The dwarf cars will make four special appearances throughout the year, on April 17, May 15, June 5, and July 3.

The 9th annual West Virginia State Championship Series will include four races for the Shinnston Plumbing late models. Race No. 1 will pay $1,500 to win on Friday, May 1. The Short Track Auto Racing (STARS) drivers make their first of two appearances on Sunday, May 24, for the Frank Baker/Paul Richards Memorial, paying $5,000 to win. On Sunday, July 5, a $3,000 to win show will cap off the holiday weekend. Finally, the STARS drivers return for the annual Mark Balzano Memorial on Saturday, September 5.

The "ever popular" Enduro returns to I-79 on Sundays, June 14 and September 27. A demo derby will also be part of the final Enduro show.

Many exciting nights are planned by the speedway management, including autograph and picture night, gold rush, candy rush, and bike races for the kids, along with two fan appreciation nights and two pit appreciation nights. Also, one lucky child under the age of 12 will be chosen as the junior fan each week. The child will meet his/her favorite driver and have a picture taken with that driver. There is something for every member of the family at Interstate 79 Speedway, with lower prices in 1998.

Interstate 79 Speedway is located at Exit 125 near Clarksburg, W.Va.

Bowl For Kids' Sake Saturday At Par-Matt

The Garrett County Branch of Big Brothers/Big Sisters will hold its 9th annual Bowl for Kids' Sake at Par-Matt Lanes this Saturday, April 4, beginning at noon for individual and team bowling. The corporate tournament will begin at 4:30 p.m.

"Little bowling skill is required, because everyone is guaranteed to score at least 100 points just for showing up," stated Karen Keefer, Big Brothers/Big Sisters director. League and non-bowlers can help by signing up sponsors and then taking part in the festivities. Door prizes have been donated by local businesses and will be awarded to bowling participants. Bowlers who raise $50, $100, and $150 will have their choice of various incentive prizes and do not have to compete to win. Door prizes will be given away every 10-15 minutes.

Grand prizes are competed for by those individuals who bring in the most money in their age group. In the adult category, the winning bowlers have their choice of an off-peak ski pass at Wisp Resort, a color TV from Cumberland Electric, a one-night stay at Alpine Lake Hotel, or a weekend retreat at Herrington Manor State Park in a rustic cabin.

The youth prizes are for youngsters in grades 6-12. They will choose between a portable CD player, a $25 gift certificate from Treasure Island, or horseback riding for two at Western Trails.

Children from preschool to 5th grade will compete to win one free pizza and one movie for a year (compliments of Reel Video and Pizza Hut), a McDonaldland party for 10, or one month of free classes at Brenda's Body Shop.

A family of immediate or extended family members will be able to choose from a pontoon rental for a day from S&H Marina; a party of golf, lazer tag, and pizza for 10 at Smiley's Pizzeria; movie passes and gift certificates for a family of four from Uno's Restaurant and Garrett 8 Cinemas; or Western Scenic Railway passes for four.

Trophies will be awarded to the school, law enforcement agency, human service agency, state park, and Boy Scout/Girl Scout troop that have the highest pledge totals. Service learning hours are available to students who collect pledges and bowl.

The Bowl for Kids' Sake raises funds to support Big Brothers/Big Sisters services in this community for children who are from single parent homes. "We are able to provide assistance to these parents by matching the child with a mentor (Big Brother/Big Sister). We currently provide services for 53 children in Garrett County. There continues to be a real need for adult volunteers, or 'Bigs,' who could share some laughs, some smiles, and some time with a child," Keefer said.

The Bowl For Kids' Sake is the major fund-raising event of the agency for the year. "We hope to raise over 70 percent of our funds from the bowl-a-thon," Keefer said. Pledge sheets are available at Par-Matt Lanes, Reel Video, McDonald's, or by calling the local office at 301-334-3591.

Tajiana Gets Special Help From New Friends In Grantsville Salon

by Peggy Santamaria

It was a warm, sunny Saturday morning and Tajiana Richardson, like many other young girls, was walking into a hair salon.

But unlike other young girls, Tajiana had left home at 4 a.m. to keep her appointment with the stylists. And unlike other girls, Tajiana was not going to have her hair cut or permed. In fact, Tajiana has no hair at all. She suffers from alopecia, which is a permanent condition that causes the body to reject its own hair.

Eight-year-old Tajiana had traveled from Burlington, Del., to Main Street, Grantsville, with her mother Robin, her sister Dinina (NeNe), and her aunt, Laura Lipscomb, for a very special appointment at Hair Shapers Salon, with owner/operator Sara Durst and her associate, Debbie Yoder. Tajiana is going to be fitted with a vacuum wig.

Hair Shapers is one of seven salons nationwide that offers this unique wig service to help people who are experiencing hair loss. The creator of the vacuum wig process, Peggy Knight, trained Sara and Debbie in the process two years ago.

How did Tajiana's mother learn of the service provided by Sara Durst in Grantsville? The Richardsons' journey from Delaware to Hair Shapers actually came about as a result of the Oprah Winfrey Show, Tajiana's mother explained.

In December the show had focused on Peggy Knight's Locks of Love program, which accepts donations of hair for the vacuum fitted wigs. Tajiana's grandmother saw the show and told Tajiana's mother about it. "Then classmates wrote to Oprah to say that Tajiana really needed one of these wigs," Robin said.

Peggy Knight was contacted by Winfrey's staff and Knight called Sara Durst in Grantsville. Sara said she would donate her services to assist Tajiana.

Before beginning the wig fitting process, Sara talked about it with her young client. She explained how the wig would be measured and made, and how it would feel on her head. She explained that it is the vacuum fit that makes this wig different. "This wig won't come off. You can swim in it or ride in an open car. Even if someone pulls your hair, it won't come off," Sara told Tajiana.

Sara also described the removal of the wig. "It's something like opening a Tupperware container. You have to 'burp' it to break the seal," she said.

Tajiana already knew quite a bit about the process. "She has read every piece of literature on this she could get," her mother said. And Tajiana was excited about what she had learned. Was she looking forward to hair? "Yes. I'm excited. It will be wonderful," she said, with a wide, happy smile.

Sara talked about the steps in the process of vacuum fitting. The first is to create a plaster form of Tajiana's scalp, marked with hairline and part. The silicone cap will be made from this cast and tinted to match her skin shade. To this cap, thousands of human hairs will be attached individually. In about four months the completed product will be ready to wear. Tajiana will have a normal looking head of hair.

When she was born, Tajiana had hair. "She had thick, soft hair," her mother said. But when the little girl was about 18 months old, something changed. "Her hair got dry and brittle. Then it starting falling out. Then it was coming out in plaits," she described.

Robin said she didn't know what to think. When she finally got the diagnosis of alopecia, she was astounded. "I had never heard of it," she stated. "It really upset me. My nerves got very bad."

Sara understood, she said. Her son also has alopecia. "It really scares you at first, doesn't it?" she empathized with Robin.

A source of strength for Robin came from Tajiana herself. "Believe it or not, she helped me through it. She had such a positive attitude. She never let it get her down, even when the other kids teased her," she said.

Yes, kids teased her a lot about not having any hair, Tajiana said. "But it doesn't bother me because I know what I am on the inside," she explained simply.

Anyone who would like to get more information on vacuum hair prothesis or who would like to donate hair to be used in creating wigs may contact Hair Shapers at 301-895-4030. Locks of Love may be contacted at 1-888-896-1588.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving memory of my son "Dink" who died on Good Friday, April 1, 1983.

It is lonely here without you, so sad along life's way. Life does not seem the same to me, since you were called away. It broke my heart to lose you, but you did not go alone, for part of me went with you that day God called you home. They say time heals all sorrow and helps us to forget, but time so far has only proved how much I miss you yet.

Dearly loved, fondly remembered, and sadly missed.

THE NEWTON BOYS

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:02

Back in the days when bank robbers were gentlemen and the general public thought of people like Dillinger and Bonnie & Clyde as folk heroes rather than criminals, there rode a gang of four brothers named Newton. This movie is the true story of their exploits in the early part of this century, exploits that resulted in their being referred to by some as "America's most successful bank robbers."

The four Newton brothers, Willis (Matthew McConaughey), Joe (Skeet Ulrich), Jess (Ethan Hawke), and Doc (Vincent D'Onofrio), reunite after Willis has completed a jail sentence. Along with Willis's friend Brentwood Glasscock (Dwight Yoakam), who is a specialist in explosives, the boys go right back into the business with little hesitation except on the part of Joe, the youngest, who resists but finally goes along to prove he's "not scared."

During the early '20s, the boys rob banks night after night, exploding safes and then politely asking the alarmed townsfolk to go back to sleep. What they are doing is not really wrong, as Willis explains it, because now that the banks are all insured, the customers don't lose their money--the wealthy insurance companies do. "We're just little crooks robbing the big crooks," he explains with a charming smile. And for most of the simple folks living in the shadow of those large corporations, it's hard to disagree.

Along the way, Willis meets a young single mother named Louise Brown (Julianna Margolies). His growing relationship with her, and her uneasiness with his profession, make him want to go legit and realize his dream of becoming an oil baron. But before he does that, the Newton boys must make the big score.

This is a fun movie, penned by Claude Stanush (who wrote the book), with assistance from Clark Walker and director Richard Linklater. The fact that it's more or less true (supported by actual interviews with the elderly ex-cons during the closing credits) adds a measure of credibility to the proceedings. The acting is solid, and the four brothers' characterizations are adequately separate to show four different personalities: Willis is the mastermind who always wants more; Jess and Doc are generally fearless and willing participants (as much for the fun as for the money); and Joe, the conscientious objector, is always a bit leery of meeting Willis's ever-increasing demands.

Unfortunately, the choice of director Linklater to include so much of the boys' story causes the movie to stall in the middle. After the successful period is capped with an enjoyable montage of bank robbery scenes, the film seems to spin its wheels for a long time before leading up to the climactic train robbery sequence. It seems much of this section, including a botched attempt at robbing a Canadian bank during a transfer of funds, could have been omitted. This would have helped portray the gang as advertised (i.e., successful) rather than just greedy and, usually, lucky.

Still, despite this dead spot in the middle, The Newton Boys is an enjoyable romp through the world of early-'20s bank robbers, with little violence or unsavory subject matter. And the interviews at the end are especially interesting. ★★★★

DANGEROUS BEAUTY

Rated R - Running time: 1:51

I like period movies, and I like this one better than any I've seen lately. The richness of Dangerous Beauty is evident from the first few moments; the settings and costumes of 16th century Venice burst on the eye with the honey-toned warmth of a beautiful sunset. And this film's performances match its technical achievements across the board, rendering a well-balanced, textured, and at times humorous romantic drama.

The story is about a young woman, Veronica Franco (Catherine McCormack), who is in love with a wealthy senator, Marco Venier (Rufus Sewell). Though Marco loves Veronica, he cannot marry below his class. When he admits this to her, she is so hurt that she decides to follow her mother's (Jacqueline Bisset) advice and become a courtesan, as mother had once been.

At first this is meant simply to make Marco jealous, but Veronica soon finds that being a courtesan is not all that bad: in exchange for their virginity and their honor, these women basically run the town. Unlike the proper ladies, who were not expected to do anything but make babies and do needlework, Venetian courtesans in 1583 were the wealthiest, best-educated, best-dressed, and most desired women around. They were trained in poetry and the classical arts so that they could entertain the menfolk outside the bedroom as well as in. Unlike today's prostitutes who simply exchange sex for money, they were more like professional lovers.

Marco does become jealous, of course, and though he is married to a very honorable woman with whom he cannot begin to relate, he continues to pursue Veronica, singing to her balcony even as she is entertaining another. Nowadays, we would call this "stalking." But she eats it right up. All the flirtatious fun comes to an abrupt end, however, when Venice goes to war with Turkey. Marco must join the battle, and while he is gone the plague breaks out back home. Seeing the population dwindling, a group of religious zealots accuse the courtesans of drawing God's wrath. As Marco returns from the war, he finds half his city dead, and the other half pointing fingers at his beloved Veronica and her colleagues.

This film, a true story based on the book The Honest Courtesan by Margaret Rosenthal (who also wrote the screenplay with help from Jeannine Dominy), is a noteworthy achievement by director Marshall Herskovitz. Exquisitely bringing to life the lovers' relationship, he uses the cinematography by Bojan Bazelli to great effect, complemented by George Fenton's beautiful music. It's clear Herskovitz took the film's title seriously, emphasizing the beauty of the settings and costumes, contrasted by the danger of living in such a time.

Superb supporting performances are rendered by Oliver Platt as Marco's friend and poet, whose unanswered lust manifests itself as a deadly vendetta; and former courtesan Bissett, whose motherly advice encompasses subjects at which most parents would blush. One memorable scene has her educating Veronica on the finer points of sex--with the help of a naked, virile young Venetian man serving as "guinea pig." It's a tough job...

This film deals frankly with adult subject matter, but the story is not cheapened by the strong sexuality portrayed. It is a complement to all the other elements: the emotion of the love story, the drama of the climactic tribunal, and the overall richness of the production itself. Dangerous Beauty is enjoyable for all, but probably best for consenting adults. ★★★★½

MEET THE DEEDLES

Rated PG - Running time: 1:32

As I have said in the past, I have barely been able to contain my excitement in the recent avalanche of quality Disney fare. In just a short period, they have given us such instant classics as Mr. Magoo, Krippendorf's Tribe, and Flubber. By far the best Disney movie in the last six months was The Little Mermaid, a re-release of 8-year-old goods. And the multi-million-dollar company's latest offering continues the trend. Meet The Deedles, written by James Herzfeld and directed by Steve Boyum, is passable as comedy only if you're under 7 or your I.Q. is under 70.

A pair of rich Hawaiian twins, Stew and Phil Deedle (Steve Van Wormer and Paul Walker) have skipped school to surf once too often. Their detached father sends them away to a reality camp in Wyoming, but on the way they have a series of mishaps, finally ending up at Yellowstone National Park. The ranger in charge, Capt. Douglas Pine (John Ashton) and his stepdaughter, Lt. Jesse Ryan (A.J. Langer), who is also a ranger, think the Deedles are Mel and Mo, a pair of naturalists who are supposed to be on the way to eliminate a problem the park's been having with an infestation of prairie dogs. But the real Mel and Mo (Ana Gasteyer and Megan Cavanaugh) are detained as a direct result of one of the Deedles' aforementioned mishaps.

The Deedles decide to use this little confusion to masquerade as Mel and Mo, because they like the uniforms and because Lt. Jesse is a really fabulous babe. So they sign on and begin working on the prairie dog problem while concurrently trying to schmooze Jesse, who is watched like a hawk by her overprotective stepfather. But the prairie dog problem is no accident of nature: it was engineered from the vast underground lair of Frank Slater (Dennis Hopper), a disgruntled former ranger who was let go and wants to ruin Pine's upcoming celebration of the one billionth eruption of Old Faithful.

Can the boys pull of this charade without anyone finding out who they really are, or will the real Mel and Mo show up and ruin all their plans? Can they foil Slater's plot and solve the prairie dog problem before the celebration? Can they get in Jesse's pants without her dad knowing? Do we care? All these questions can be answered, but the downside is you have to pay the admission price to find out.

I admit there were a few moments in this movie when a smile may have been detectable on my face. The boys' characterizations are the kind of valley-boy schtick one may remember from Bill And Ted's Excellent Adventure (1989) or anything ever done by Pauly Shore. If you can stomach that for an hour and a half, and if you really don't have anything better to do, you might get a laugh or two from The Deedles. But don't say I sent you. ★½

Maryland Army Nat'l. Guard Cited For Recruitment

The Maryland Army National Guard achieved national recognition this month for its recruiting success during the first quarter of the state-wide recruiting campaign, according to a spokesperson from the Oakland armory office.

This year's recruiting campaign, dubbed Operation Cobra II, is intended to increase the total number of Maryland National Guard members by 3 percent before the end of the training year in October, the spokesperson said.

Sixty percent of the recent enlistments are attributed to Maryland guardmember referrals, or soldiers telling others about the benefits they can receive by joining the Maryland National Guard.

These benefits include the Montgomery G.I. Bill, State Tuition Assistance, and the Tuition Waiver to pay for school, as well as specialty training that can be applied to a civilian career. Members also receive pay for attending drill one weekend each month, and two weeks during the summer, the spokesperson said.

Online Business Tax Registration Being Utilized

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said new businesses have opened 137 different accounts using the Internet since he kicked off the first-in-the-nation online registration system March 2, 1998. New business entrepreneurs and accountants can register for sales and use tax, employer withholding, unemployment insurance, admissions and amusement tax, tire recycling fee, and transient vendor accounts online at www.comp.state.md.us.

"Thus far, businesses have opened 53 employer withholding accounts to collect and remit state and local income taxes for their employees," Goldstein said. Businesses have also opened 44 sales and use tax accounts, 36 unemployment insurance accounts, and four of other types.

"While we still receive hundreds of paper combined registration applications each week, we expect the popularity of online registration to grow as more and more people become aware of it," the comptroller said. "One big advantage of the online application is it only requires you to look and complete those sections that pertain to the type of business you are requesting."

Maryland is the first state in the nation to offer the online registration, which was developed in partnership with Microsoft Corporation Dynatech Integrated Systems of Columbia, Md.

News notes

Kathryn Bowser spent the weekend with Hazel and Wayne Gaumer, Hagerstown, and attended a bridal shower for her granddaughter Cheryl, who will be married on April 18.

Edna Beitzel had Sunday dinner with her daughter Hilda at Starner Hills Apartments on Sunday. Edna, one of our community's best, celebrated her 89th birthday on Saturday. Congratulations and many more happy ones.

Ruth DiPaolo treated Harriett and Ken Buckel to a dinner on Sunday at the Finzel fire hall. They were celebrating Harriett's birthday last week. They also visited with Harriett's sister, Mary Harman, and other residents at the Goodwill Mennonite Home. While there they also had a nice visit with Olis Brenneman, who is a resident for a short time, hopefully, while receiving some therapy. Olis will be looking forward to returning to her home at Starner Hills Apartments. Ruth visited with June Durst at Starner Hills.

Another new baby recently appeared at the Sussman's household. Mike and Carol Vokel and their 4-month-old son Zach, a chubby and good humored little fellow, accompanied by daughters Megan and Sara, had dinner and a nice visit with the Sussmans. Mike and Carol were eager to break out of hibernation caused by the winter and a new baby. Earlier that day, Megan and Sara met the girls and Lloyd at the pool at Wisp for a little workout conducted by Lloyd. Kelsey Morrison was part of the group also. Six little girls in the pool at one time were a little too much for Lloyd, but he survived it.

Margaret Hershberger-Wagner was a weekend guest of her daughter, Ann McLister, and family in Frederick on Saturday and Sunday.

Last week, one of the Grande Dames Club of Bittinger, had a 93rd birthday, which is no big deal in that club. The Grande Dames of Bittinger (I just made that one up now) is a whole host of my generation's grandmothers, etc. Even though we are not related, one of my favorites is Ida Reckner, the birthday girl just mentioned. Of course, she was not just a close neighbor who gave me cookies and my pony a treat when we passed through her neck of the woods. Her late husband, John, was a taxidermist, and I loved to look at his collection in one of their long rooms in their house. I was fascinated by the six-legged lamb, bear cubs and the touch of a fawn's nose. One day I saw his worktable and a huge rattlesnake coiled. It scared me pretty badly. I am glad to say I never saw another one live.

Ida is not only my neighbor but was my second-grade teacher. I have only pleasant memories of her class. I still remember one time when I got into trouble. Another Bittinger kid, Phillip Buckel, told me to make some tickets for a softball game on the coming weekend. I worked on them in class and, of course, Mrs. Reckner caught me. Now almost every week she bakes cookies for my daughters, who all adore her. They love to go to her house on summer days to see the animals. I'm thankful that some things never change.

She looks just like when she was much younger. She still acts the same, too. I assume that the secret of success for all those 80- and 90-year-old women is that they were "tough as nails, sweet as sugar, hard-working, clean living, had big families, and lived on farms". In the next generation, I see the same thing, but the next group, now in their 50s and 60s, all have shapely legs that are the envy of their daughters.

On a totally different subject, I am afraid that I am going through a second childhood since the spring weather has come. I can't think of anything but that I want a pony. I want a pony instead of a horse, since my brain injury has hindered my mounting ability. I just want to grab a bridle and put it on, jump on, and hit the trail. I believe it is the solution to my problem, which is my inability to roam around. I need to go to all my favorite places at this time of year; our creek at high water, the beaver dam, the violet bogs, where a few years ago I spotted a pink lady slipper, a rare and beautiful wild orchid. I want to look for bear damage on the skunk cabbage along our creek. These places scream to me "Come here!" I need a short stocky calm pony that I can get on and ride bareback. I want to go where I want to go, when I want to go, and take my three daughters on pony rides and show them all those special places.

How about it, Cindy? Want to get a pony and go riding? "Nightmares," as we used to refer to our club, can ride again. Since our riding skills have deteriorated, maybe we should go back to the start on ponies. We need to ride again, but let's forget the plays and skits we used to perform for our families, neighbors, and visitors.

Jim and Donna Glotfelty visited their grandson, Chris Carey, at Cumberland Memorial Hospital Wednesday afternoon, where he underwent surgery to repair a broken leg which he sustained while working in the woods for his father. He returned to his home near Frostburg Friday evening. They also visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Platter, Adam and Amanda, Smithsburg, and all had lunch at Pizza Hut in celebration of Amanda's 7th birthday, which was Friday.

Sunday and Monday overnight guests of Ida Reckner were Buena and Ellyn Ellison, Fernandina Beach, Fla., and Olis Fader, of Sarasota, Fla. All had dinner at Penn Alps Restaurant, Grantsville, Monday evening. Other Sunday evening dinner guests of Ida were Tom, Cheryl, Taylor, and Timmy Glotfelty, and Jim and Donna Glotfelty. Monday afternoon visitors were Ferne Beachy and Buelah Moon.

Donna Glotfelty accompanied her daughter, Karmen Carey, to Pittsburgh Civic Arena Friday evening to attend a gospel music concert by the Gaithers.

COMMISSIONERS PROMOTE NATIONAL EQUAL PAY DAY — The Garrett County Commissioners this week signed a document proclaiming Garrett County's recognition of National Equal Pay Day, which is Friday, April 3. The document signed by the three officials states that women nationally are paid only 74 cents for each dollar a man is paid for comparable work. April 3 is the turning point at which women's pay equals that of a man's pay for the previous year. The proclamation states that fair pay equity policies can be implemented "simply and without incurring undue costs, and that fair pay strengthens the security of families today and enhances retirement tomorrow." Seated left to right are Commissioners Wayne Johnson, Wayne Wilt, and Gary Fratz. Standing in the same order are Gail N. Herman, president of the American Association of University Women, Garrett Branch; Donna Aspinall, first vice president of the League of Women Voters of Garrett County; June Heselbach, president of the Business and Professional Women (BPW); Phyllis B. Trickett, Garrett County Commission for Women; and Olive Corliss, Garrett County Health Department. Not present for the photo was Peggy Jamison, secretary of the BPW.

DHIA DINNER

The North Central Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) held its annual meeting and dinner on March 26 at the Aurora squad hall of Union Ambulance Service, with that organization serving a baked steak dinner.

President LaDeana Teets opened the meeting and Terry Causer had the invocation. Guests present were Preston County Extension Agent Bill Shockey, and Mark Culik of West Virginia University, who spoke to the group concerning pesticide use. Bonnie Shrout, the North Central supervisor, was also present.

Re-elected to their positions were: president, LaDeana Teets, vice president Terry Hauser, and treasurer, David Stemple. New directors were named to replace those whose positions expired in 1998 (Doyle Harsh and Rusty Linger). They are Melvin Howdershelt and Eric Bradley.

Awards in North Central went to Milford and Greg Gibson for tops in milk production, with a 23,545 herd average; top in protein; second in fat; and for having several individual cows in the top three in various categories. Mark and LaDeana Teets placed second in total milk production, with a 22,255 herd average; first in fat; second in protein; and they also have several individual cows with production in the top three. The Vernon and Melvin Howdershelt herd placed third in overall production, with a 20,555 average, and third in protein.

Individual cows, belonging to John and Connie Fint, Mike Bolyard, Linger Farms, the WVU Dairy, Terry and Jerry Hauser; Leroy Brenneman, and O. Herbert Hunter, were also recognized.

The Milford Gibson herd placed first in West Virginia in total production average, the Mark and LaDeana Teets herd was first in West Virginia in fat production, and the Milford Gibson herd also placed first in protein production. Mark and LaDeana Teets own the West Virginia high individual cow in production of 3.5% fat-corrected milk. They also placed third in the top 10 of state herds, with the Howdershelt herd at seventh and the John and Connie Fint herd at ninth position. In the top 10 herds in fat production in West Virginia, the Milford Gibsons placed second, the Fints 5th, and the herd of Doyle and Wade Harsh, ninth. Protein production top 10 include the Teets herd at fourth position and the Howdershelts at ninth. In three x milking, Linger Farms placed fourth in production, fifth in fat, and fifth in protein. The Gibson herd had two individual cows noted for their lifetime production: Liz with 220,190 pounds of milk, 7,532 pounds of fat, and 6,871 of protein; and Iris with 195,432 pounds of milk, 6,847 pounds of fat, and 6,081 pounds of protein. Other North Central individual cows are also recognized in the West Virginia top ten listings.

A CANCER SUFFERER'S STORY
by Jodi Artice, granddaughter

They told me that I had cancer.
It was like stabbing me with a knife.
I knew it was God calling unto me to come be with him.
He wanted to take away my life.
I went out on a limb.
I wasn't ready to leave my loved ones yet.
I would live, I'd fight it.

They all came to me to visit,
Afraid I'd soon die.
I told them that I was a strong guy.

But in a few months I worsened.
I was so weak I could only lie,
Lie on a bed that the hospital sent me.

In days I was rushed to the hospital
'cause I couldn't even move.
Then it happened, God set my soul free.
Many were sad and cried.
I reached out and said,
"Don't cry, I'm right here and better than ever,"
But they couldn't hear me.

I realized then that I had died.
I wasn't sad, though.
It had sent my pain on the go.
The pain was finally GONE!
So when you think of me and remember me,
Be glad that I'm not in pain anymore.
I'm in God's hands and he's taking good care of me.

Sadly missed by wife Edna McClintock, children Linda Tomblin, Lonnie Artice, Larry Artice, Millicent Harsh and grandchildren

OPEN WIDE!

Maybe ten or twenty years ago those words struck fear in the heart of a person sitting in the dentist's chair. But, this no longer is the case, for modern day dentistry is really easier to take. One important reason is the emphasis on prevention of dental problems before they occur.

If you follow his advise very carefully and get your check-ups on a regular basis, chances are that most of your visits with the dentist will just be a pleasant stop in one of your otherwise busy days.

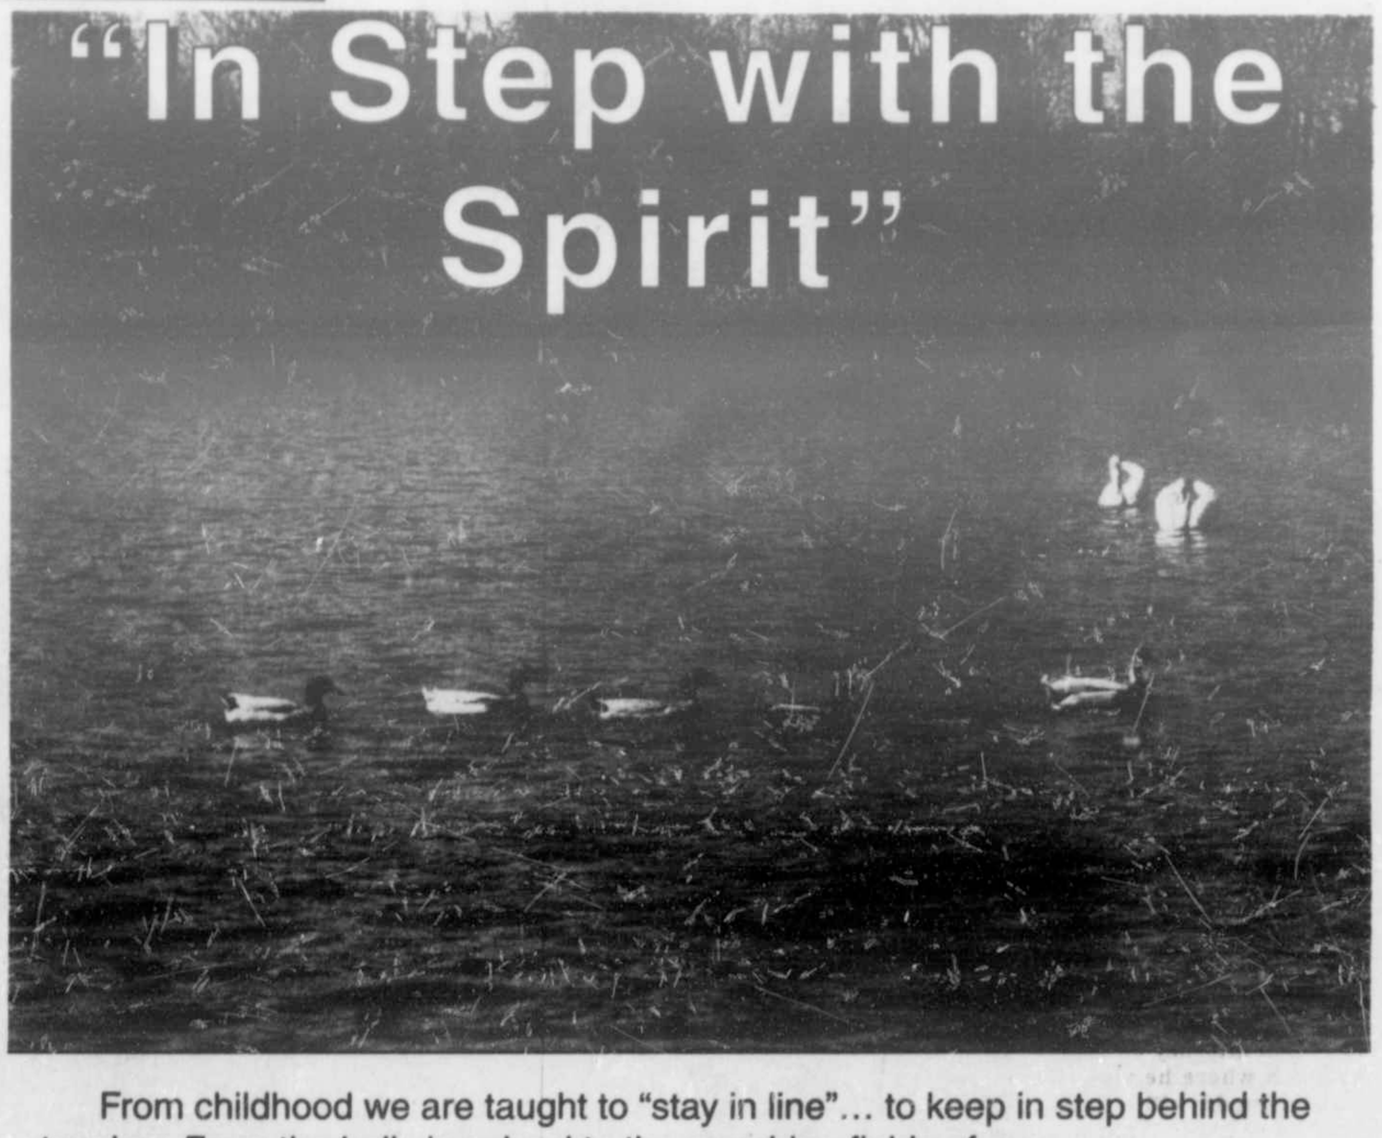
"In Step with the Spirit"



From childhood we are taught to "stay in line"... to keep in step behind the teacher. From the halls in school to the marching fields of our military, we are reminded to follow our leader...our focus. Even ducks do it. Why? Because that is the way we learn and the way we remain safe. We are positively inspired by excellence in example.

A great leader in the Bible, the apostle Paul, wrote in Galatians 5:22-25, "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control...since we live by the Spirit, let us keep in step with the Spirit."

Keep in step with the spiritual lives of your friends and neighbors. Visit your local church or synagogue each week to worship as you focus upon and follow your Leader, the Almighty God.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

A PERSONAL EASTER MESSAGE
April 4, 1998

Background Scripture:
John 18 through 29.
Devotional Reading:
Acts 2:32-39

I read somewhere that, during the days of the Soviet Union, some Russian Orthodox churches were permitted to have Easter services because Communist officials reasoned that something so ancient as the Easter liturgy couldn't have any affect upon the opinions and actions of a handful of worshippers. A contemporary scholar has commented that the Soviets couldn't have really understood the meaning of Easter or they would have had to ban it completely.

The Soviets—and probably many others—failed to understand that the Easter gospel is not just about a startling event that took place almost 2,000 years ago. Properly understood and experienced, Easter is contemporary good news about people and situations today. More than just a corporate liturgy, Easter comes to each of us with revolutionary power for this very year, month and day.

Part of Easter's personal message to me—and you—is the relevance of what immediately preceded the resurrection: the passion and crucifixion of our Lord Jesus Christ. This, too, is not just about a man who suffered unjustly and was put to death in the third decade of the first century AD. The crucifixion is about us, too, in 1998.

THE STUMBLING-BLOCK

The stumbling-block of Christianity has always been the passion and death of Jesus. Here was a man so spiritually powerful that he could heal disease and cast out demons. Here was also a man so innocent, so loving, yet so despised by so many. Christians still want to know: why did such a man go to the cross? (If we can understand that, then perhaps we will understand the crosses in our own lives.)

Some may reason that Jesus had no choice, that fate, divine will, providence decreed his death. It is obvious that Jesus could have avoided both Jerusalem and the cross, staying in Galilee or sojourning out in the wilderness of Judea. But, if Jesus had no choice, then he would simply be a victim with no power to bring redemption to anyone.

Others, taking an opposite tack would say Jesus sought to be a martyr. But I don't believe that either. Why would he have prayed in the Garden of Gethsemane for "this cup" to be taken from him?

Still others will hold that Jesus died on Calvary because God willed it for his own cosmic purposes. But that would make the passion and death of Jesus nothing more than a cruel charade. God would be the author of the evil that overtook Jesus at Calvary.

I believe that the reason Jesus died on Calvary was that, while he did not seek death, and while his death was the will of men, not God, Jesus would not betray his mission for the sake of saving his life. The only factors that made his crucifixion inevitable were his obedience to God's call and its collison course with the terrible malevolence of those who crucified him.

WHAT'S IT TO US?

So what is so personal about all of the above? How does it apply to us as well as Jesus of Nazareth? The answer: we can approach life with the same obedience that we see exemplified in Jesus Christ. We don't seek suffering and we don't believe God wills that we suffer. But there are times when remaining faithful to the good news in Jesus Christ leads us to a cross. As Jesus did, we can experience our crosses with the same faithfulness and compassion with which Jesus experienced his. Calvary, then, is a very current and personal message about how to live faithfully in our world today.

Furthermore, the resurrection of Jesus is a personal and current message about living victoriously in this world of today. The enemies of our Lord did their very worst to him, but the resurrection proved that their worst was not powerful enough. Their worst was not more powerful than his best. That is no less true in our lives today!

The resurrection appearance of Jesus to Mary also has a contemporary message for us. Notice that when Jesus first appeared to her, "she did not know that it was Jesus" (20:14b). Even after Jesus began to talk to her, she didn't recognize the Lord, "supposing him to be the gardener." It was only when, instead of addressing her as "woman," Jesus said "Mary," that she realized Jesus was standing before her. The resurrection faith is always and ever a matter of faith, not scientific logic and testability.

By that faith, the resurrection of Jesus Christ becomes a very personal message, showing us how to live victoriously in the very world we live in today.

COVER STORY

Frontline steps into cross hairs of biblical dispute

By Suzanne Gill

One of television's finest investigative series is hijacked by wolves in sheep's clothing this week as Frontline presents From Jesus to Christ, airing Monday and Tuesday, April 6 and 7, on PBS (check local listings).

Produced by Marilyn Mellowes (The Kennedys), the four-hour film sets out to explore the roots of Christianity but instead becomes a platform for a dozen academics all intent on "deconstructing the Bible," according to the Rt. Rev. Terence Kelshaw, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of the Rio Grande.

"They want to separate what they call faith and reason," says Kelshaw. "The hope is (to) demythologize the New Testament and take issues of faith out of it."

Classics professor L. Michael White is the principal historical adviser to the program, which takes its title from a book by Paula Fredriksen, a frequent media consultant who is also quoted extensively. But the key player, from Kelshaw's point of view, is John Dominic Crossan, a radical critic of the New Testament.

"(Crossan) doesn't do work with traditional theologians at all," says Kelshaw. "He never takes part in anything that would suggest normative Christian faith."

Calling their arguments "new discoveries," the professors and authors, whose backgrounds run the gamut of the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish traditions, make self-important promulgations of several well-known facts, including

•that Jesus was a Jew;
•that Jews did not kill Jesus;
•that the Roman Empire was polytheistic.

The commentators prefer not to give credence to New Testament accounts of events, even though the first Epistle is dated to within a generation of the Crucifixion. Instead they rely on Flavius Josephus, a Jewish general who surrendered to the Romans in A.D. 68. His life was spared, says Kelshaw, on the condition that he write "a Jewish history from a Roman perspective. His material has been shown to be less than accurate."

"Head of Christ"

Missing from the four hours is even a hint of the Apostle Paul's background or his sense of mission. Also, Fredriksen discounts the Resurrection story; Crossan calls John the Baptist an apocalyptic firebrand but insists Jesus was merely a social reformer; and Yale's Harold Attridge brushes aside the biblical account of Pentecost with the surmise that "the historical reality is probably much more complex."

Paul's collection for the hungry in Jerusalem, an act of charity and unity, is painted as a defeat; through a convenient compression of 15 years' time, White connects this deed directly with the apostle's death.

"These guys are not really being honest," says Kelshaw. "Their purpose is not to introduce people to the story from Jesus to Christ. Their purpose is to undermine and reconstruct it.

"I wish, for example, that they would have picked out N.T. Wright, the Oxford scholar whose main work this has been all his life, as another side of the story."

But failing a more balanced presentation, says Kelshaw, "(I would) suggest to people that they watch From Jesus to Christ with very careful eyes."

IN FOCUS

Tom Hanks (Forrest Gump) serves as the executive producer for the 12-part miniseries From the Earth to the Moon, airing Sundays from April 5 to May 10 on HBO.

The miniseries chronicles the Apollo program, from the first space efforts to the final lunar mission in 1972.

The all-star cast includes Gary Cole, Brett Cullen, Tim Daly, Cary Elwes, Sally Field, Mark Harmon, JoBeth Williams, Rita Wilson and Peter Scolari.

Another new series hopes three's comedy

Trios used to be something that played at wedding receptions. Suddenly, they're the standard unit of romance. Consider the spate of new shows featuring two men and a woman: House Rules, Significant Others and Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place.

Now add Getting Personal from writer-producers Jeff Strauss and Jeff Greenstein (Friends, Partners). Vivica A. Fox, Duane Martin and Jon Cryer star in Personal, which debuts Monday, April 6, on Fox.

Right off the bat, the series makes two welcome improvements on the genre. First, the trio is interracial, and that isn't the point of the show. Second, they don't live together.

In the pilot, Sam (Cryer) sets up buddy Milo (Martin) on a blind date with Robyn (Fox), a job-hunting career woman on the rebound from a long-term relationship. Their disastrous evening on the town is followed by a nightmarish morning at work, when the boss (Elliott Gould) introduces the company's new business manager – Robyn. Initially, the three workers are uncomfortable together, but the arrival of Robyn's ex-boyfriend causes them to make peace. Unfortunately, trashy references to genitalia and contraceptives overshadow a couple of really good moments, particularly for Sam.

The second episode, involving a ruse Robyn tries with her mom, has a charming scene of the threesome boogieing to disco in her old bedroom. This show's secret weapon is the ability of all three leads to deliver laugh-through-your-tears humanity, and the more of that, the better.

TV PIPELINE

Q: Years ago Peter Falk played an attorney on a TV program where he was always having his office furniture repossessed. What was the name of the series? –A reader in Fairbanks, Alaska.

A: Falk played New York attorney Daniel J. O'Brien in the 1965-66 CBS legal drama The Trials of O'Brien. O'Brien pulled down huge fees, but he lived in a lavish New York penthouse, owed alimony to his ex-wife, Katie (Joanna Barnes), and was a compulsive gambler. As a result, he was always short of cash.

Q: Often in the credits for The Pretender, I see the name Harve Presnell. Who does he play? Is this the same man who was in The Unsinkable Molly Brown with Debbie Reynolds? –Diane Jemmett via e-mail.

A: Yes, former musical star Presnell, who co-starred in both the Broadway and film versions of Molly Brown, guest stars as Mr. Parker, director of the Centre, on The Pretender.

Q: I notice the Screen Actors Guild awards now go to male actors and female actors. Is the term "actress" not politically correct enough for Tinseltown's affectations? –Helen Ackerman, Foster City via e-mail.

A: You're talking about an industry in which women rarely receive top billing in films and invariably are paid less than their male counterparts. As such, female performers have a real stake in being regarded as peers with their male colleagues. The unisex use of "actor" has become a clear matter of preference in recent years. When I interview female performers today, they invariably refer to themselves as actors, not actresses. That said, of course, the Oscars still divide categories into actor and actress, and most journalism stylebooks follow the same policy.

Q: When did the show Quincy, M.E. first appear on TV? –J. Tocco via e-mail.

A: Quincy premiered Oct. 3, 1976, on NBC, where it ran until Sept. 5, 1983.

Q: Is Angela Cartwright of Lost in Space related to Veronica Cartwright of Alien? They look alike. Isn't there another Cartwright actress as well? –Tom Vega, Harlingen, Texas.

A: Yes, Angela and Veronica are sisters. You may be thinking of Nancy Cartwright (the voice of Bart Simpson on The Simpsons) as the third Cartwright, but she is not related to the other two.

Q: Who sings the song "Remember Me This Way" at the end of the film Casper? –Kara via e-mail.

A: That's Jordan Hill.

Year Drawing To Close For SHS Student Council

The 11th grade Southern High School Student Council representatives are nearing end of their service over the 1997-98 school year. The student council members are Mike Pamepinto, Jackie Paugh, Daniel Shafer, Hilarie Wampler, alternate Anna Snyder, and chaplain William Stoner.

Mike Pamepinto is the son of Morris and Diana Pamepinto of Swanton. He has been a member of the basketball and tennis teams, and has received such awards as Minds in Motion, and most improved in basketball, and has been a Who's Who Among American High School Students nominee. Pamepinto plans to attend college and eventually pursue a master's degree.

Jackie Paugh is the daughter of Jack and Aida Paugh of Oakland. She has received the civics award and has been a Who's Who nominee. After graduation, her goal is to attend college and eventually become a doctor or surgeon.

Meet Garrett County's NEW TEACHERS

There are two new teachers at Dennett Road Elementary School this year. Principal Gary Galloway explained that a part time math resource teacher has joined the staff and there has been a change in art instructors at the school.

Bonnie Frederick has replaced art teacher Maggie Murphy, who resigned last year. Frederick had been working as a resident artisan at Spruce Forest Artisan Village prior to her employment with the Garrett County Board of Education.

Having earned her degree in art education at Kutztown University and completed additional studies, Frederick taught for about six years in Cornwell, Pa.

She referred to this teaching assignment as "a growing experience" for herself and said she had appreciated the new teachers course offered at Frostburg State University.

Frederick's mentor is Harold Hudnall. "He has offered many helpful suggestions and good ideas, including some on discipline strategies and other details that have been very helpful," she said.

Hudnall, a graduate of Mason College of Music and Fine Arts with a BS degree in music from Morris Harvey University, has over 30 years of teaching experience. He said he is happy to serve as mentor to the new art teacher. "She is a good teacher who takes her job very seriously. She puts in a lot of extra time and involves her entire family, especially when preparing for a special project," he said.

Bonnie Frederick lives near Swanton with her husband Duane and their three children, Matthew, Daniel, and Sarah.

Janet Gregory, the new part-time teacher, is helping to implement the elementary level math resource program. "Janet is a great asset to the math program and is an excellent member of the math resource team," said her mentor, Arlene Lantz.

Gregory graduated from Southern High School and Garrett Community College, and Summa Cum Laude from Frostburg State University with a degree in elementary/secondary education with a concentration in mathematics.

Her internships were completed in grade 5 at Loch Lynn Elementary, under the supervision of Jill Gracie, and at Southern Middle School, where she taught eighth grade algebra with Donna Durst as part of the Professional Development School Project. Last spring she was a substitute teacher in the county.

Gregory noted that she and the other math resource teachers collaborate on teaching projects such as the recently completed marathon and on techniques and ideas to determine the best methods to use in working with children of various grade levels.

"Everybody I've worked with here has been very helpful. They are more than willing to help when I seek advice. This is a very busy teaching year. One certainly learns a lot the first year teaching," she said.

Mentor Arlene Lantz, who graduated from Potomac State College with a degree in computer programming technology, completed her BS degree in elementary education with a concentration in mathematics and has a master's degree in curriculum and instruction from West Virginia University.

Janet Gregory lives in Oakland with her husband, Jeff, and three children, Amanda 16, Justin 14, and Jeffrey 11.

Special Olympics Games At Wisp Bring Forth Best From Volunteers

by David Foster

At about the same time the world's attention was focused on the Winter Olympic Games in Nagano, athletes from across Maryland gathered at the Wisp for the Maryland's 1998 Special Olympicc winter games. Over 130 participants competed in a variety of alpine and cross-country ski events, in a festive atmosphere of camaraderie and competition that drew on the best of the true olympic spirit.

The games would not have been possible without the support of volunteers, many of whom are Garrett County residents, who donated their time, talents, and money over the course of the three-day event and over the preceding year. Dozens of individuals and groups, including American Legion members, high school students, law enforcement and emergency services personnel, just to name a few, raised funds, set up and ran the games. In talking to them, one senses that they get as much enjoyment from the games as the athletes do, creating a win-win situation for everyone.

Volunteers from the local area included Dayton Alexander of Aurora, W.Va., a member of Oakland's American Legion Post #71 who was named American Legion Volunteer of the year for his work as chairman of the winter games for nearly two decades. (See separate story.)

Another Legion volunteer was Grantsville Legion Post #214 member Paul Kolb of Accident, who coordinated volunteers on the cross-county ski course. "We have five volunteers from Post #214 at the games this year," he said, "and I've been involved for close to 20 years myself. A group of us go to half a dozen or more Special Olympics functions throughout the year, and the athletes and their families always remember us and want to talk and visit.

"The athletes really enjoy themselves for the three days of the games," Kolb added, "and their spirit is heartwarming. They compete for medals, but cheer for each other at the same time."

Post #71 member Mo Miller has been volunteering for five years. "When you see the fun the athletes have, and their appreciation for the games, it makes you want to come back every year. A lot of us take vacation days from work to help out.

"One of my favorite things about Special Olympics is seeing the athletes set goals and strive to reach them, sometimes with success, sometimes not; but at least they try, and have fun too," said Miller. "It's fun for everyone, including the volunteers. I especially enjoy working with the young people from Northern and Southern high schools who come out to assist."

One of these young people is Erin Browning, a senior at Northern High and the daughter of Linda Sherwood and Robert Browning. "This is my fourth year of volunteering with the winter games," she said. "It's neat to see the athletes compete and cooperate with each other, and when they get a medal you can really see the joy on their faces."

Browning, one of 26 high school students who volunteered at the games this year, said she and her fellow volunteers get as much out of the event as the athletes do. "You learn to appreciate other people more," she said. "You realize there are differences among people, but at the same time you see how we are all the same."

This lesson, "how we are all the same," was cited by Special Olympics volunteers over and over again. In the spirit of the Olympics in Nagano, athletic barriers fell on the slopes of the Wisp, and with cheers from all at the finish lines, around cups of hot chocolate at the snack bar, in heart-felt goodbyes and hugs in the parking lot, smiles and laughter were created that will help keep the olympic flame burning brightly until the next Special Olympics games.

A SILVER MEDAL is bestowed on an athlete by Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad member Phil Rook at the Special Olympics Maryland Winter Games as fellow participants and volunteers applaud. Held at the Wisp at the end of February, the 1998 games marked the sixth consecutive year that the Wisp has donated the use of its mountain for the use of Special Olympics. A number of local organizations worked in concert to sponsor and support this year's event, including the American Legion posts in Oakland and Grantsville, the Maryland State Police, the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, the Department of Natural Resources, Northern and Southern Garrett County rescue squads, Wisp Ski Patrol, Freeman Ambulance Service, and students from both Northern and Southern high schools.

Randolph Lake Open For Season

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced the opening of Jennings Randolph Lake for the 1998 recreation season. Both the corps boat launch on the West Virginia shore and the boat launch constructed on the Maryland shore by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) opened on April 1. The corps facility has parking for 60 cars and trailers, and the Maryland facility can park 50 cars and trailers. The corps boat launch is alongside Howell Run just off West Virginia State Route 46 three miles north of Elk Garden, W.Va. The Maryland launch is on Mt. Zion Road off Maryland State Route 135 near the salt shed on Backbone Mountain.

Both facilities will charge a $2 fee for launching a boat this year. An annual pass that will allow an unlimited number of launches at the corps launch is on sale for $25 at the corps park office. Golden Age Passports (senior citizen) cost $10 and Golden Access Passports (physically challenged) are free and will allow one to purchase the annual pass for half price or only pay $1 per launch. The three passes will only be honored at the corps boat launch on the West Virginia side.

For more information, persons may call the corps park office at 304-355-2346 or 301-359-3851 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. For information on the Maryland DNR boat launch, persons may call the Potomac-Garrett State Forest at 301-334-2038 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Q. While cleaning out my grandmother's house, I found a small mirror, about the size that would fit in a purse or pocket. The back has a portrait of a young woman with the words "Oxford Chocolates." Is this valuable?

A. Advertising pocket mirrors were given away at shops and stores at the turn of the century.

The earliest ones had an advertising message printed and covered with glass that was attached to the mirror.

About 1910, they were made of celluloid, and the decorations became more creative. Advertising mirrors for men's clothing stores, cigars or alcohol frequently had nude women decorating the back.

There were at least 16 novelty companies making the mirrors.

An Oxford Chocolates mirror sold last year for $85. Prices for pocket mirrors range from $20 to $300.

Q. At a recent garage sale, I paid $7 for a pull toy that's a ship on wheels marked "HT." It has six holes on the top for different-colored wooden figures. Mine has only four figures. What should I do?

A. Either make two sailors or just use the toy for display. Your Ship with Sailors was made by Holgate Toys. In excellent condition, and with all six sailors, it sells for $75.

Q. I have a Wagner Ware platter with a stylized plant design embossed on the front. Do you have any information?

A. Wagner Ware of Sidney, Ohio, made cast-aluminum cooking utensils along with its more famous iron wares.

The embossed design on your platter helped collect juices from the meat that was served on it. Such platters sell for about $35.

Home Tips

KEEPING TRACK — You know how your wallet is filled with such items as credit cards, Social Security cards, medical card and driver's license and you don't always have a record?

My suggestion is this: Next time you're near a photocopier take the time to place all of them face down and make a copy to keep on hand in the event your wallet is ever lost or stolen.

This way, you have quick access to all numbers. Be sure to keep the copy in a safe place at home. Rita D., Washington, D.C.

BACK RELIEF — My husband and I both need one of those lumbar back rolls for our backs in the car. He was in one of the cars the other day and the back roll wasn't in the car. Instead, he used a roll of paper towels that we had in the trunk (for washing the windows) and it was as good as the lumbar back roll.

This is good for anyone whose back gets tired from driving, especially during long-distance car trips. Putting that roll between your lower back and the seat helps relieve a backache. Mary Anne G., New City, N.Y.

CHILL OUT — I have a tip to use on plastic wrap so that it won't tangle.

Put the box in the refrigerator and just use the wrap as needed. Leave in the refrigerator all the time. I've been doing this for a few years and it works quite well. Sophia H.K., West Bend, Wis.

JANE SEYMOUR: DR. QUINN'S SUCCESS IS THE BEST MEDICINE

The woman who would become Jane Seymour was born Joyce Penelope Wilhemina Frankenberg in 1951 London. After making her professional debut in ballet at 13, she was forced to retire at 16 because of an injury. She switched to acting, first appearing in Richard Attenborough's "Oh, What a Lovely War" and later wedding Attenborough's son, Michael.

In 1973, she achieved worldwide recognition in the Bond film, "Live and Let Die." However, as recounted in April's Biography magazine, finding work after Bond became a struggle. Rejected for many acting parts in her native England because she was too attractive, Seymour came to America. Arriving at the dawn of the epic-miniseries era, she satisfied a demand for exotic looks and sophisticated accents.

After landing a part in the Kennedy-inspired "Captains and Kings," she was told to master American dialects — which she did by calling phone operators around the country and spending hours talking to them. Then came "East of Eden" (sinister stepmother), "The Woman He Loved" (Wallis Simpson), "Onassis" (jilted diva Maria Callas), "The Sun Also Rises" (Lady Brett) — "women with definite imperfections," as Seymour said. The jewel in her crown was Seymour's role in "War and Remembrance," which, unfortunately, was also the genre's swansong.

Marriages two and three failed. Seymour was at a crossroads when the role of Dr. Michaela Quinn came along — one of the most surprising TV successes of the '90s. Then came fourth husband, producer-director James Keach, and twins at 44 in an emergency C-section. Her family blends seamlessly into the Quinn set. Later this year, she and Keach, who often directs her series, will co-star in a remake of "Swiss Family Robinson." An ambassador to UNICEF, Seymour also helps needy children in a variety of worthwhile projects, expanding her love of children and family to worldwide proportions.

LOCALLY MADE BOATS GO INTERNATIONAL - Six inflatable workboats, made by Demaree Inflatable Boats Inc., Friendsville, have been purchased for special use in the country of Indonesia. Five of the six are 32-foot River Freighters, two of which are pictured above, and the fifth is a 17-foot Mini Snout, above right. They will be used for a seismic survey for a major petroleum company. See story for details.

Demaree Boats Being Used For Seismic Project In Indonesia

Demaree Inflatable Boats Inc. (dib), Friendsville, a leading manufacturer of industrial grade inflatable boats for government and private industry, has announced that Grant Geophysical Inc. of Houston has taken delivery of six inflatable workboats which were specifically designed to handle shallow water seismic data acquisition.

Grant Geophysical is transporting the boats to Indonesia, where, beginning in April, they will be used to complete a three-dimensional seismic survey for a major petroleum company. The mission is to gather seismic data to pinpoint the locations of any significant oil and gas deposits in the Malaca Straits region.

Grant Geophysical purchased five 32-foot River Freighters and one 17-foot Mini Snout for this project. The River Freighter is an extremely versatile shallow water workboat that features two 32' long, 3' diameter vulcanized neoprene pontoons, which serve as the boat's running surface. The pontoons are connected by a 24' long, 7'6" wide, 5086 marine alloy aluminum deck which provides a transom for two 150 HP Yamaha outboard motors and a stable working platform for the crew.

The 17' Mini Snout is a medium sized hard decked boat that gets its buoyancy from two 17' long, 26" diameter inflatable pontoons. Each boat can carry up to eight people comfortably and is powered by a 50 HP outboard motor. Whereas the River Freighter is designed to carry up to 10,000 pounds of seismic cable and other equipment, the Mini Snout is primarily used as a quick personal transport between the other boats and locations.

"These River Freighters and Mini Snouts are extremely stable, durable boats that are capable of transporting large payloads with very little draft," said Greg Dunlop, manager of International Operations, Grant Geophysical. "And because they can be launched easily either from shore or from a larger vessel, the boats are ideally suited for shallow water operations in remote locations.

"Last year when we needed five boats overseas in a hurry, Demaree Inflatable Boats palletized each River Freighter with the wheelhouse knocked down against the frame and with the pontoons banded to the frame in a neat package," said Dunlop. "A truck delivered the boats to JFK Airport in one day and they were air-freighted to Singapore by the following evening.

"Although the basic River Freighter can be assembled and ready to use within a few hours, it takes an entire day to fully assemble each of our boats when you consider the extra cables and seismic equipment that are included in our custom configurations.

"Since the fall of 1997, our crews have used River Freighters to deploy and retrieve seismic instruments and ground electronics in harsh work environments such as the Bay of Bengal in Bangladesh, and they have held up well, requiring very little maintenance," continued Dunlop. "The performance and durability of these boats has exceeded our original expectations."

When the ability to deliver boats economically to a remote location is more important than speed of delivery, these boats are designed to fit into standard shipping containers for ocean freight. On the version of the River Freighter designed for Grant Geophysical, the 24' aluminum deck comes with two removable side extensions and a knock-down wheelhouse, so that three boats, complete with pontoons, frames, motors, and attachments, will fit into a standard 40' container.

"We are delighted to have the opportunity to build custom workboats for Grant," said Dave Demaree, president, Demaree Inflatable Boats. "With this latest order, Grant Geophysical will have 19 of our boats in service around the world."

Grant Geophysical Inc. and its subsidiaries provide land and transition zone seismic services, with experience in over 100 countries and major oil and gas provinces in the world. The company currently employs approximately 3,000 people in its worldwide operations.

Demaree inflatable Boats manufactures industrial grade inflatable workboats, dive boats, pontoons, and RIB sponsons. Established in 1982 as a manufacturer of inflatables for the whitewater rafting industry, dib has dominated sales for over 15 years of motorized inflatable pontoon boats used by outfitters on the Colorado River.

The company manufactures all of its boats from the highest-quality materials available, including vulcanized neoprene, Hypalon, urethane, and other materials on a custom basis. Dib also manufactures underwater lifting bags, air cushions, and related products.

Cancer Screening Now Available To Younger Women

The Garrett County Health Department offers free breast and cervical cancer screening to eligible Garrett County women. Recent changes in the program guidelines have made this service available to younger women than were previously eligible.

To qualify for this program, made possible through a grant from the Centers for Disease Control, a woman must be age 40 or older; be uninsured; have health insurance for which the deductible has not been met; and be a resident of Garrett County.

There are also financial criteria for qualification, which are based on the number of people in a family. The income guidelines are as follows: one in a family, $19,725; two in a family, $26,525; three in a family, $33,325; and four in a family, $40,125.

The free services covered by the program are pap test, pelvic exam, clinical breast exam, mammogram, information about breast care, and information on breast and cervical cancer detection.

Carol Clark, who coordinates this program for the health department, explained some of the changes in the guidelines. "Younger women can be included in this program because Medicare now covers these services for older women," she said. With Meidcare picking up the cost for cancer screening in older women, the CDC funds can be used for screening younger women.

She spoke also of the effectiveness of the program. Over the past several years, this screening program has revealed the presence of breast cancer in cases that could then receive early intervention treatment. "Early treatment is very important in these cases," she said.

Clark also described a free treatment program that is available when cancer is detected. "The guidelines for the treatment program are even more generous than they are for the screening program," she pointed out.

Most physicians in the area participate in the breast and cervical cancer screening program. The exams and test can be performed by any of the participants in Garrett or Allegany County, or in West Virginia.

The mammograms can be taken at Garrett Memorial, Sacred Heart, Cumberland Memorial, and Meyersdale hospitals, Clark said.

Anyone wishing more information on this service may call the health department at 301-895-3111 or 301-334-8111.

Maryland Tax Procrastinator's Guide Available

The office of Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein has published a one-page Tax Procrastinator's Guide in cooperation with the Delaware-Maryland District of the Internal Revenue Service. The guide offers tips for last-minute filers and information on federal and state tax help available in the final weeks of the income tax filing season. "We offered this handy guide last year and it proved popular with last-minute tax filers," he said.

The guide answers questions about:

- the best ways to get federal and state tax forms at the last minute,
- how to get tax help in person, over the phone, and on the World Wide Web,
- mistakes to avoid when one is in a hurry, and
- how one can still get a quick refund.

"While most returns that come in around April 15 have checks attached, some are due refunds. If you're one of those filing at the last minute and are expecting a refund, why wait weeks for the check? You can still get that refund quickly—by filing electronically," Goldstein said.

The comptroller noted that of the 1.1 million returns filed by March 25, a record-setting 185,000 were filed electronically through commercial tax preparers. "Electronic filing is getting more and more popular—and it's even more important when you get close to the April 15th deadline," the comptroller said. "That's because your return won't be caught in the mountain of mail on April 15. And you can have your refund deposited directly into your bank account quickly—even if you file your electronic return on April 15."

Taxpayers can download the Tax Procrastinator's Guide—along with Maryland tax forms and other information—from the state comptroller's website at www.comp.state.md.us. The guide is also available by fax from the comptroller's Forms-by-Fax system at 410-974-FAXX (3299) by requesting document number 3010 from Index 2.

Tax Regulations Are Now Online

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said tax regulations pertaining to the comptroller's office are now available online at the comptroller's website at www.comp.state.md.us.

"For the first time, we are able to offer online access to regulations which pertain to taxes collected by the State Comptroller's Office." he said. "Tax preparers, attorneys, and the Maryland business community can now research specific tax issues online at their own convenience. The regulations are listed according to tax type."

Subject areas include information pertaining to alcohol and tobacco tax, tire recycling fee, motor fuel tax, sales and use tax, admissions and amusement tax, unclaimed property, and income tax.

Other business services available on the comptroller's website include the nation's first online combined business tax registration application and information about starting a new business. The site also includes information about taxpayer rights, telefiling business tax returns, and payment by electronic funds transfer, as well as special publications pertaining to business tax issues.

"Our website has special sections relating to business services and tax professionals, including announcements, bulletins, and administrative releases, in addition to the regulations," Goldstein said.

Service Slated For Good Friday

Mountain Fresh Producers To Meet This Month

The Mt. Fresh Producers, beginning their 11th year of operations, will meet on Thursday, April 16, at 7:00 p.m. at the Garrett County Extension office, 1916 Maryland Highway, Suite A, Mt. Lake Park, MD, to plan for the '98 market season. Anyone residing in Garrett, Tucker, Allegany or Preston counties, who may be interested in joining Mt. Fresh for the '98 season or in learning more about membership is invited to attend.

Membership allows the producer to set up at the Mt. Fresh Pavilion during the market season, from mid July through October, at a reduced rate to sell home grown produce, home baked items, or crafts. In addition to the regular market sale days of Wednesday and Saturday, members may also set up at the pavilion during Autumn Glory and other special sale days to be announced.

Those unable to attend the meeting but who would like to request an application for membership may contact the Extension office at 301-334-6960. Membership dues are $20 until June 1, $25 thereafter.

Farm Bureau Outlines Dairy Reform Progress

As the Agriculture Department considers monumental changes to the nation's milk marketing system, Farm Bureau's Milk Order Reform Working Group has been meeting and mulling over the proposals with the producer's position firmly in mind, Farm Bureau told a House Agriculture panel last week.

"Farm Bureau brings a unique perspective to the milk order reform process," Michigan Farm Bureau president and dairy farmer Jack Laurie told the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Dairy, Livestock and Poultry. "Since Farm Bureau does not buy, sell, or process milk, our sole interest is in representing our producer members. We are the only national organization in this position. We have been working throughout the process to bring the producer side of the industry together in a variety of ways."

The process to overhaul the nation's dairy pricing policy began when Congress passed and President Clinton enacted the 1996 farm law. Since then, USDA has been charged with reform of the system.

Farm Bureau created the working group to help guide and advise USDA regulators in their quest to alter the nation's dairy policy structure. The group is comprised of 16 producer members of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Dairy Advisory Committee plus two representatives from AFBF's four regions, three dairy producer-members of the AFBF board, and two additional representatives from Wisconsin and California. There are members from 25 states.

Laurie told the House panel that Farm Bureau and other dairy interests have worked closely with USDA to ensure that a final decision will work well for producers across the country. He told the panel that dairy producers want to work through the reform process without congressional intervention and are generally satisfied with the current reform process at USDA.

In terms of the current reform proposals on the table, Laurie told the lawmakers that Farm Bureau supports USDA proposal "1A." Laurie said under option "1A," the reform objectives outlined in the 1996 farm law would likely be met. He said this option also would help ensure that an adequate supply of milk would be produced without disorderly marketing.

"The differentials in '1A' recognize the location value of milk and will facilitate the movement to meet fluid needs when required," Laurie said. "We feel that it will best serve the needs of consumers, processors, and producers."

Laurie said Farm Bureau will seek a proposal that would "assure that all producers are treated fairly" under the regulations. He said dairy producers in different areas of the country should not be forced to compete against each other because they are regulated under different marketing orders.

Laurie said Farm Bureau will provide more extensive comments to USDA on the proposed rule in the near future.

County Livestock Association Meets

Garrett County Livestock Association President Dale Hutzel reported that the first meeting of 1998 was held on January 22 in the conference room of the Extension Office, with several members, officers and the board of directors present. The new year's agenda was discussed and it was decided the meetings would be moved to Garrett Community College in McHenry.

The March 21 meeting in Room 301 of the Continuing Education Building at GCC saw a large membership turn out, with several important matters discussed.

A committee lead by Darrell Bolyard, vice president, met on March 28 at the Garrett County Fairgrounds to make repairs to the beef barn. Those helping included Dan and Emily Green, Kris and April Enlow, Kris DeWitt, Bobby Schmidt, Scott Bolyard, Lester Loughry and Dale and Millie Hutzel. Major repairs were completed. Everyone reportedly enjoyed working and sharing lunch together and had a lot of fun in the process.

The April meeting will be held April 15 at 7:00 p.m. in the Continuing Education Building, Room 305, at GCC. All members are urged to attend.

The Livestock Association appreciates the participation at the meetings and the support given by the membership and board of directors.

West Virginia Farm Credit Will Issue Patronage Checks

In April, member-borrowers of West Virginia Farm Credit, ACA, will receive patronage refund checks for 1997. This was announced by Richard Hamblin, president and CEO.

The patronage for borrowers of West Virginia Farm Credit, ACA, will total more than $1.73 million. Twenty percent, or $.35 million will be paid in cash. The balance will be placed in allocated surplus in the names of individual member-borrowers.

"West Virginia Farm Credit, ACA, had another successful year in 1997 and we are pleased to be able to share our success with our borrowers, to 'put our profits in their pockets,'" said Walter Schmidlen, chairman of the board for West Virginia Farm Credit, ACA, and farmer from Elkins, W.Va. "This is the fourth consecutive year we've paid a patronage refund. In addition, we've returned tax-free in December 1997 50 percent of the allocated surplus we issued in 1994."

"When we distribute our profits to our borrowers, it reduces their effective cost of borrowing," Dick Hamblin stated, "and it proves that there are distinct financial benefits in doing business on a cooperative basis."

West Virginia Farm Credit, ACA, a farmer-owned cooperative, makes long-term farm and country home loans, intermediate-term loans for machinery, equipment and buildings, and short-term production loans. West Virginia Farm Credit, ACA, has offices located in Petersburg, Clarksburg, and Ripley, W.Va., and in Oakland, Md. Those interested in learning more about West Virginia Farm Credit, ACA, may call 1-800-919-3276 to speak with a loan officer.

Maryland Ag Secretary Visits The Caribbean

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Virts, D.V.M., is leading a trade mission to the Caribbean countries of Barbados, Trinidad and Tobago, and St. Lucia this week as part of an effort to promote United States livestock dairy breeds in order to assist these countries in increasing their dairy production. Secretary Virts will be part of a seminar in each country where experts will discuss the Red and White, and Jersey dairy breeds. In addition, the U.S. delegation will tour dairy operations to learn what they can from their hosts in each Caribbean nation. The U.S. Livestock Genetics Export Inc. is sponsoring the trade mission, with the Maryland Department of Agriculture acting as the program manager.

"These livestock seminars are a tremendous opportunity for us in the United States to cooperate with our Caribbean neighbors in promoting efforts to improve milk production. The agricultural relationships that result from these exchanges of ideas and information benefit all our people," Virts said.

During the last few years, the Maryland Department of Agriculture has actively developed agricultural relationships with agricultural leaders from countries all around the world. This is part of an extremely successful effort to market Maryland agricultural and food products to overseas customers. Secretary Virts himself has gone on trade missions to Russia, Korea, the Caribbean; and he will soon be going to China.

"We in Maryland are also eager for the agricultural leaders of other nations to visit us anytime to learn more about our programs and to become full cooperative partners in our shared goal to promote agriculture," said Virts.

GARRETT COUNTY NOTICE OF A PROPOSED PROPERTY TAX INCREASE

The County Commissioners of Garrett County propose to increase property taxes.

1. For the tax year beginning July 1, 1998, the estimated assessable base will increase by 3% from $750,022,957 to $775,965,348.

2. If Garrett County maintains the current tax rate of $2.59 per $100 of assessment, property tax revenues will increase by 2%, resulting in $390,087 of new property tax revenues.

3. In order to fully offset the effect of increasing assessments, the property tax rate should be reduced to $2.54, the constant yield tax rate.

4. The County is considering not reducing its property tax rate enough to fully offset increasing assessments. The County proposes to adopt a tax rate of $2.59 per $100 of assessment. This tax rate is 2% higher than the constant yield tax rate and will generate $390,087 in additional property tax revenues.

A public hearing on the proposed property tax increase will be held at 11:00 a.m. on April 21, 1998, at the County Commissioners' Meeting Room, County Courthouse, Oakland, MD. The hearing is open to the public, and public testimony is encouraged. Persons with questions regarding this hearing may call 301-334-8970 for further information.

Late Winter Warm Weather — Good or Bad?

In the 80's the last of March could spell disaster for many fruit trees. Warm sunshine and warm air over a period of a few days causes the internal temperatures of the branches and buds to rise, breaking dormancy in the plant. When the buds are no longer fully dormant, they are more subject to damage from cold temperatures. Last Tuesday the buds on my apple trees were starting to swell up, which means they were breaking dormancy. My experience tells that winter is not over yet. However, nature has taken its course so there is not much we can do about it.

Corn Rootworm — Should You Treat?

Should you treat for corn rootworm? The only way you will know for sure depends upon your scouting results from last August. If you found at least one rootworm beetle per silk, you definitely need to apply a soil insecticide or rotate out of corn. Because of the mild winter, I would expect a higher survival of the rootworm egg; therefore, if you're continuing corn in the same field and have no knowledge of the egg-laying pressure, it may be advisable to apply a soil insecticide or rotate to a no-host crop.

The choices of glandular soil insecticides include Counter 20CR, Force 1.5G-3G, Aztec 2.1G, Fortress 2.5G-5G, Lorsban 15G, and Thimet 20G. These formulations are labeled for T-band applications and also in-furrow placement, except for Thimet, which cannot be placed with seed because of possible phytotoxicity. Generally, band applications have consistently provided better rootworm control in conventionally tilled corn and in-furrow placement for no-tilled corn.

Spring Weed Control in Alfalfa

Our alfalfa has broken dormancy. I know several of you are concerned over applying herbicides. Dr. Ron Ritter, Extension weed control specialist, provided the following remarks: "I've been getting a lot of calls lately about alfalfa. With the mild winter we've had it never went dormant in many areas (does it ever really go dormant?). What happens if you make herbicide applications to alfalfa when it has some regrowth? In 1995 and 1996 we initiated a study to examine just that. We took a 2-year-old stand of alfalfa and made applications in late March when the alfalfa had 2 to 4 inches of growth. Applications were made to the same plots both years. During the first year of study, first cutting data showed a decrease in weight where Gramoxone (1 pint and 1.5 pints) was used. A 12 oz. use rate did not affect yields. Sencor also lowered the first cutting yields. By the fourth cutting, plots that received 1.5 pints/acre of Gramoxone as well as the Sencor treated plots yielded lowest among all treatments. We did not see any yield effects from Sinbar or Pursuit. In the second year of the study, the high rate of Gramoxone and the Sencor treated plots continued to yield poorly throughout the season. What was interesting were the Sinbar treated plots. Cutting, made through the season showed a decline in weight. Bottom line: these products can affect yield of alfalfa if applied when dormancy has broken. If you need to choose a product I would consider the 12 ounce/acre of Gramoxone or Pursuit."

MDA Open House Success Despite Falling Rain

Despite the damp cold weather, many Maryland families came to visit the Maryland Department of Agriculture Sat., March 21, for the Annual Open House to help the agency celebrate its 25th anniversary as a cabinet level agency in state government. The outdoor petting zoo was crowded with young people, as were all the indoor displays featuring the department's weights and measures, state chemist, mosquito control, and plant protection laboratories. In addition, there was a 25th anniversary cake for the visitors, along with numerous food samples, music, a farm puppet show, face painting, and displays by Maryland's agricultural commodity groups.

"Our open house once again was a tremendous success. I was surprised that so many people braved the bad weather to come out to visit us. Everyone seemed to have a good time. We were pleased to be able to show so many Maryland families how their Maryland Department of Agriculture serves them each and every day," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Virts.

Again this year, one of the highlights of the open house was a "hog calling" contest, which awarded prizes in both youth and adult categories to the "best" hog caller. The contest has become so popular that this year's contestants were selected by lottery.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture began holding its open house in 1988, with thousands of Marylanders visiting the agency at each event. The open house is held each year on the third Saturday in March to coincide with the conclusion of National Agriculture Week.

Farm equipment has evolved dramatically from the team of horses used in the early 1900s. Today's four-wheel drive tractors have the power of 40-300 horses. This makes for a large capital investment, as farmers pay anywhere from $97,000 for an average 160 horse-power tractor to $170,000 for a four-wheel drive model.

Salem Conference On Children Set At FSU In May

Caregiving and intervention with traumatized children and adolescents will be the focus of the Second Annual Salem Conference on Children. The all day conference will be held in the Lane Center of Frostburg State University (FSU) between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, May 6.

The conference is designed for social workers, psychologists, professional counselors, childcare workers, houseparents, and others with an interest in child development. The educational component of the conference is designed to assist caregivers and professionals who work with children or adolescents who have suffered physical abuse, sexual abuse or loss, or have witnessed traumatic events. The focus will be on options to provide effective care and management of traumatized children and adolescents, whether they have a history of being in residential care, group and individual foster care, or biological or step-family care.

Charles E. Munson, Ph.D., will be the featured speaker. Dr. Munson is professor and doctoral program director at the University of Maryland at Baltimore School of Social Work. He is director of the Washington Area Supervision Institute at Woodstock Forest, and has held faculty appointments at Shepherd College, Catholic University of America, University of Houston, and Fordham University at the Lincoln Center in New York City. Dr. Munson is well published, with four books and over 60 journal articles. He is a clinician-scientist whose practice and research activity focuses on trauma and loss in children. In March of 1996, he was inducted into the National Academy of Practice based on his research and scholarship related to clinical practice. He was selected by the Maryland Society for Clinical Social Work as Social Work Educator of the Year in 1997.

Orioles Head To Be Speaker At Scout Event

Peter G. Angelos, chairman of the board and CEO of the Baltimore Orioles, will be the guest speaker of the Potomac Council's "Friends of Scouting" Dinner, campaign chair J. Jeffrey Hutter announced recently.

The "Friends of Scouting" dinner is a thank-you event for those financial contributors to the scouting program in the area and will be held Monday evening, April 20, at the Shrine Club.

Angelos has been the chairman of the board of the Orioles since 1993, when he restored the team to Maryland ownership.

A graduate of Eastern College and the University of. Baltimore Law School (where he was the valedictorian of his class), Angelos has been a practicing attorney in Maryland since 1961 and is the president and managing principal of the law offices of Peter G. Angelos. He is admitted to practice law in Maryland, New York, Tennessee, the District of Columbia, and before the U.S. Tax Court, Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, and the U.S. Supreme Court. Over the past 37 years, Peter Angelos has represented thousands of clients in product liability, personal injury, professional malpractice, and other areas of complex civil litigation. He has received national recognition for his successful representation of clients as a plaintiff's attorney.

Additionally, he has represented the Baltimore Building and Construction Trades Council, the Steelworkers' Union, and presently represents the state of Maryland as lead private counsel in its suit against the tobacco industry.

Angelos has served the community as member of the boards of trustees of Loyola College, Johns Hopkins University, Western Maryland College, the University of Maryland Medical System, and the University of Baltimore, where he also serves on the advisory board of the University of Baltimore School of Law, the University of Maryland Foundation, the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, Saint Joseph's Hospital, and the Grant-A-Wish Foundation.

He has received honorary doctorate degrees from Mount Saint Mary's College, Loyola College, and the University of Baltimore. He is a member of the American Academy of Achievement, a member of the Ellis Island Medal of Honor Society, and a recipient of the AFL-CIO Social Justice Award.

Angelos and his wife Georgia reside in Baltimore City, with their two sons, John and Louis.

For further information about the dinner, persons may call the Potomac Council Service Center at 301-729-1300.

WINNING A CLOSE RACE - Cub Scout Pack 49, Grantsville, recently gathered with family members and friends to cheer on the participants in the 1998 Pinewood Derby Race. It was a closely contested event in which 45 scouts pitted their skills against each other. During a noon break from the action, participants joined family members for lunch. All who took part in the race were awarded blue ribbons for their efforts. The race track and timing device were provided by Paul Johnson, Barton. In the photo above winners pose with their proud dads. The scouts, left to right, are Travis Rounds (giving a thumbs-up to all scouts), first place; Toby Maust, second place; and Brent Beachy, third place. The dads are Terry Rounds, Garland Maust, and Kevin Beachy. Pack 49 meets at Grantsville Elementary School, and Ken Long serves as cubmaster.

Scouts In Action

Boy Scout Troop 49, Grantsville, recently held a Court of Honor at scout headquarters. Those present received badges and special recognition.

The Silver Palm was one of the special awards presented. It indicates that the scout has earned 15 merit badges beyond the Eagle rank. Jeffrey Folk and Aaron Fisher both received this honor.

Geoffrey Newman completed and received the Second Class Rank and Josh Resh completed his Life Rank.

The following badges were awarded: Donovan Bicker earned cooking, orienteering, shotgun, family life, and pioneering merit badges; Aaron Fisher earned orienteering, electronics, farm mechanics, and horsemanship badges; Jeffrey Folk earned orienteering, shotgun, farm mechanics, and horsemanship badges; and John Resh earned camping, shotgun, rifle, and family life badges.

The troop members also elected officers. Donovan Bicker was selected as senior patrol leader and Geoffrey Newman was named quartermaster. Jeffrey Folk will continue as Scribe and the new assistant scoutmaster is Aaron Fisher.

Troop 49 scoutmaster is Allen VanSickle, assisted by Ron Folk. The troop is sponsored by the Bethesda Church of the Brethren.

REMODELING

Ways to finance your home remodeling

By Lori Weisberg
Copley News Service

The often costly expense of a remodeling job may be enough to scare you away altogether, but there are a number of financing tools that can help get you past the pain of paying for that new kitchen or room addition.

One of the more painless and cost-effective ways of borrowing funds to help pay for a remodeling project is to refinance the loan on your home and draw extra cash out at the same time. The catch, though is you need enough equity in your home to complete a refinance.

If you're equity poor, fear not there are other loans out there that will help borrowers in need of cash for home improvements. But beware that as more equity is tapped or exceeded, the cost of that loan will escalate.

The key to finding the right loan vehicle is shopping around and discussing with lenders your particular circumstances before deciding on a particular form of financing, lenders advise.

The good news is that lenders are increasingly willing to make second trust deed loans to homeowners short of equity to borrow against - but they do come at a cost.

Such loans, though, can be helpful for people whose homes have lost value during the 1990s.

Refinancing, lenders say, is most appropriate when the borrower has a relatively high interest rate and can lower the monthly payment while at the same time drawing cash out.

In the case of refinancing, it should be noted that the new loan cannot exceed 75 percent to 80 percent of the home's value.

A home equity loan in the form of a second trust deed or a line of credit may work just as well, suggest brokers. A line of credit is something like an open checkbook or credit card that is drawn upon as cash is needed.

One advantage of a line of credit is that the homeowner is paying interest only on the amount of cash that is withdrawn. The borrower, though, needs to show some discipline in using the line of credit, caution lenders.

"With the second trust deed, you know each month for 15 years what your payment will be to pay the loan down to a zero balance," said Marty Stroiman, president of Builders Funding Corp. "With a line of credit, it's like people with credit cards, where they can use it too much."

He noted that with a line of credit, the money can be drawn out for five to 10 years, while total repayment of the loan itself is not due for 15 to 20 years.

Stroiman noted that rates on second trust deeds can vary widely depending on how much equity you're tapping into in your home.

Fixed rates on second-trust-deed loans, say lenders, are around 10 percent, but the advice, once again, is to shop around. With lines of credit, the rates typically are adjustable, starting at around 7 percent, according to lenders.

Mary Lou Costas, a senior loan officer with North American Mortgage Co., prefers a special FHA mortgage tailored specifically to people wanting to remodel. What makes it appealing, although it is more costly, is that it requires no appraisal and is not dependent on how much equity you have in your home. The maximum loan amount is $25,000, and the remodeling work must be completed within six months.

It's less paperwork (than the typical loan) and you get the loan in about 15 days," said Costas. "You're qualified over the phone, and they call you back and quote you a rate."

Be forewarned, though, that the rates and loan costs are higher than the typical second trust deed.

According to Ben Giangiulio, a regional vice president of Norwest Mortgage, terms on the FHA home improvement loan offered through his company are an 11.9 percent interest rate and a cost of 6 points or a 12.5 percent interest with four points. Those rates are subject to change. Such a loan, though, would not be his first choice.

As a rule of thumb, Giangiulio says a borrower should pay no more than three or four points for any type of loan.

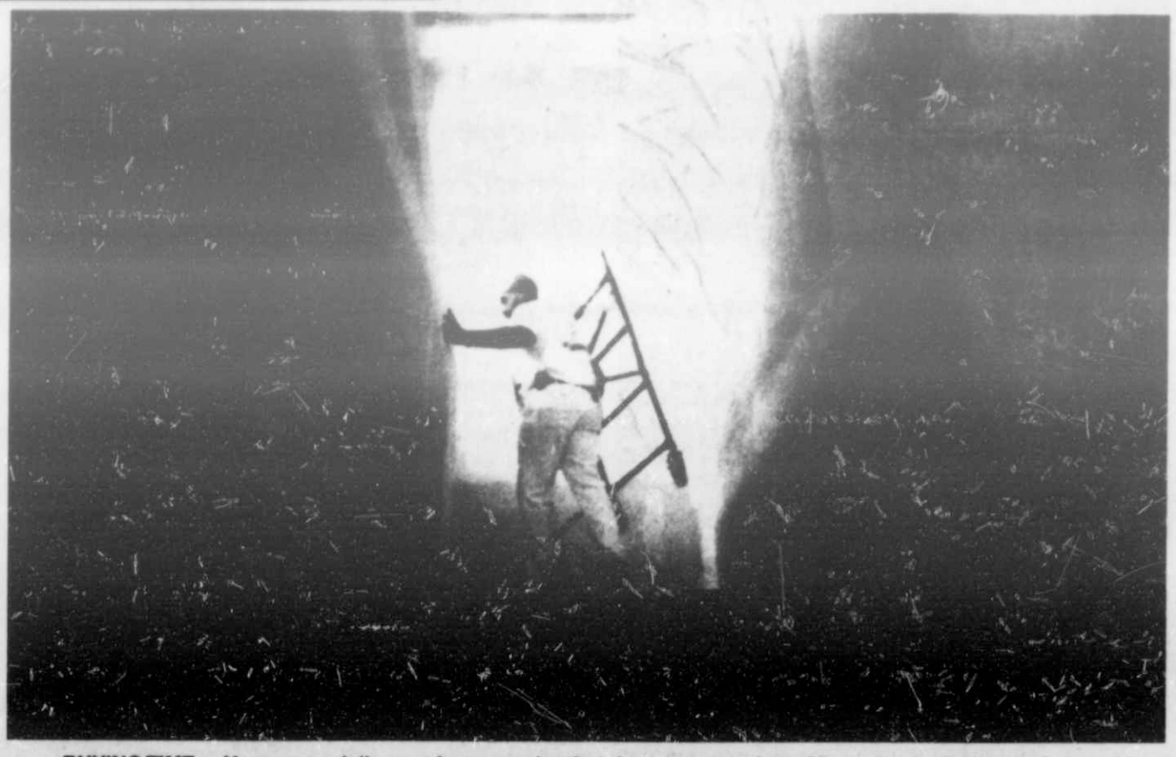
Stroiman noted that Builders Funding Corp. offers a home improvement construction loan that takes into consideration the value of the home once the remodeling is completed.

He cited an example of a $160,000 home where the owners owe $110,000 on their loan and need $80,000 to double the size of their house.

"We're approving the loan based on the computed value of the home, assuming the new value of the home will be $250,000" said Stroiman.

He noted that while there are lenders who will make riskier loans, Stroiman says he personally does not like to make a loan where the costs are so high.

"Am I really helping the person," says Stroiman, "by putting them into that much more debt?"



BUYING TIME — Home remodeling can be expensive, but there are a number of financing tools that canhelp achieve your goal.

Nothing says spring like a bountiful bouquet of flowers. Real or artificial, flowers add color and texture to any room of the house, creating an ambience of warmth and beauty.

While there is nothing like the fragrance of fresh cut flowers, most people find that they haven't the time, energy or money to create a new floral arrangement each week — which explains why silk flowers have become such a popular alternative. They're inexpensive, long-lasting and easy to work with. And unlike their plastic counterparts, which tend to look cheap and artificial, silk flowers look surprisingly realistic in fact, many professional floral designers are now using silk flowers to create spectacular arrangements.

Silk flowers come in virtually every color and variety imaginable — from cattails to chrysanthemums, pansies to petunias. You can find them at most floral and craft shops.

When selecting silk flowers and foliage, look for leaves that have good color and are not too shiny — a dead giveaway that they're fake. You also want to avoid the least expensive flowers. They are more apt to look artificial and may not be as durable or as long-lasting.

Unlike a lot of decorating projects, flower arranging is relatively inexpensive. Among the tools you'd need are floral tape, floral foam or polystyrene, Spanish moss, a hot-glue gun, floral pins and a pair of wire cutters (most silks flowers have wire running up the center and are nearly impossible to cut with scissors). These supplies are readily available at most craft stores.

One of the advantages of silk flowers over real flowers is that your choice of containers is virtually limitless, since water is not an issue. Be as creative as you'd like. Look for interesting items you have around the house, such as a watering can, piece of petrified wood, old-fashioned milking pail, cookie jar, hatbox or teapot. Each can be used to create a one-of-a-kind arrangement that will delight family and friends.

CAREFREE CREATIONS

Silk flowers require very little maintenance or care. They can be reused again and again to create new arrangements — without losing their color or vitality. To keep them looking "afresh," dust regulary with a soft cloth or use a hair dryer on the lowest setting. Although silk flowers can withstand temperature extremes, keep them out of direct sunlight to avoid fading. If flowers get bent or squashed in storage, you can hold them over a steaming pot of boiling water to recover their shape or use a steam iron on a low setting.

While there are no hard-and-fast rules about flower arranging, experts say that the type of flowers you select should be in keeping with the container and the room they're in. Bright, big sunflowers, for instance, look perfectly natural in a rustic wooden bucket but would look out of place in a small, delicate

NEW ATTITUDE

Paint job is quick way to give house a face lift

By Caron Golden
Copley News Service

Have a rough El Nino? Ready to take charge of the milder seasons with a fresh coat of paint? Whether you're planning a complete exterior repainting or selectively recoloring specific rooms inside the house, here are some tips on how to first choose paint colors and types of paint — and then get down and dirty on the job.

WORKING WITH COLOR

Those color chips you see at the local hardware or paint store offer endless possibilities, including confusion. While it can be fascinating to see the endless variations on yellow, for instance, trying to decide on a particular shade and then on matching or complementary trim can become a nightmare. But there are some ways to whittle down the decisions to something you're going to be delighted with.

Because color can be a regional issue, a good first place to start is to check out houses similar to yours for color schemes you like. If you can, return to the house and take a photo so you can show the paint dealer what you're going after. Also scan magazines for ideas.

If you're still not sure, consider the various options. Do you prefer to work in neutral colors with a single color accent? Does the architecture of your house favor what is called an alternate complement color scheme, in which you choose a given color, its complement on the color wheel and the colors two wedges away from either side of the complement? What about a monochromatic color scheme, which features the use of different values of a single color? Are you trying to match or complement a particular fabric? Work with your paint dealer to explore these options.

Once you've honed in on a particular color and scheme, it's time to get out those chips. For exterior paint, make sure you look at them outdoors — indoor fluorescent lighting will distort the color. Indoor painting should be matched to the lighting of that room — so take those chips home. Also block out the surrounding chips, which can fool your eye. Since these chips are tiny compared to the effect on a large wall, you may want to find a dealer that has the technology to either scan a photo of your home into a computer and test the color scheme on the screen or has sample images of houses from which you can pick one similar to yours and run a test

Alternately, ask if you can get a test brush on a piece of cardboard that you can take home with you. If you are planning on using more than one color (say, for trim on the outside or moldings on the inside), get those samples as well. View them in the light they would be seen in during different times of the day.

The final test is to brush a paint sample on the surface itself. That means prepping the area, which should be about 4 feet by 4 feet and includes all of the colors you're working with. Once the paint has dried, again study them in different light at different times of the day and at different angles.

WHAT TYPE OF PAINT AND HOW MUCH?

Oil vs. latex. Long a classic dilemma for homeowners, it's almost moot since paint technology has come a long way, according to Today's Homeowner (index.todayshomeowner.com). The resins, or alkyds, of oil-base paints are actually laboratory creations removed from the original linseed and safflower oils that gave the product its name. Similarly, plastic resins have replaced casiene and egg white in water-base paints.

Consult with your paint dealer to determine what your needs are and what kind of paint will suit them. But try to buy the best grade of paint you can. Premium grades run about $15 to $25 a gallon, but they're worth it in the long run. Those extra dollars generally mean more costly — and better — ingredients, which in turn lead to a better-looking and longer-lasting job.

Then there's the finish. Flat, eggshell, semigloss or high-gloss. Flat paint according to Today's Homeowner, minimizes reflection and hides imperfections but it does show dirt and is tough to clean. It's best for ceilings and surfaces like old plaster walls Eggshell

Don't attempt restoration project without instruction

By Sally McKee
Copley News Service

About 70 percent of refinishing jobs brought into Bernie Hobin's antique shop have already been started.

"That is, business from first time customers," Hobin clarified. People will come in with a painted chair that they have started to strip and quit partway through.

"Along with having no idea of the cost of materials and time involved with the project, people have no way to know what's beneath a coat of paint," Hobin said.

"A lot of pieces have been painted for a reason," he explained.

"Furniture discolored by a fire or stained by water is often just painted. Some pieces have so much paint that the coating is imbedded in the wood," he added.

"Leave it alone if you don't know what you are doing," Hobin said. "Some refinishers won't finish products that have already been started. Sometimes we have to undo what's been done."

Though he's seen his share of mistakes, Hobin says he's also seen pieces in houses that were done very well.

Hobin's business, Woodwright Antiques of Peoria, Ill., specializes in chairs - refinishing, repairing and re-caning new seats.

Ken Cordes, owner of Cordes County Farm Antiques, Metamora, Ill., specializes in restoring trunks.

"One of the first things I tell people is, "don't mess with an old finish unless you show it to someone who knows something about it."

People start stripping and often ruin the old finish, devaluing the piece, Cordes said. Or they start right in the front with a drawer or a door and rip a patch into it.

RESTORATION TIPS

So, you have an antique piece that's been sitting in an attic or you pick up a bargain piece at an auction. How do you restore it?

What to do will vary with each piece, but Hobin and Cordes offered some general guidelines:

*Choice of project. Make sure you have a good piece before going to the trouble of refinishing it. Most people who refinish or have an item refinished choose family items that have sentimental value. Or, choose a piece that ready fits in with your house.

*Beginners. if it's your first project, varnish the piece instead of painting it.

*Materials. Make sure you use proper materials and buy the right products.

*Cleaning. Some woods, such as pine, can get by with good soap-and-water cleaning, Cordes said. With oak, however, never use water: purchase a cleaning product designed for soft woods.

*Repairs. Don't drive nails or turn screws into a piece that had no nails or screws to begin with; use glue.

Simple chair repairs are easy. Just knock the chair apart, clean out the holes, clean the rungs and glue it back together. Put pressure on it while it glues either by tying or clamping it together. Let the glue dry for 24 hours.

*Painted pieces. A coat of varnish under the paint is good news: Varnish protects the wood, ensuring the piece can be successfully refinished. You'll have problems with a piece that has paint covering raw wood.

*Varnished pieces. Inspect the finish or have a professional check it. It may be fine; refinish only the pieces that have deteriorated or need a change of color. Hobin says he'll often clean and restore a piece, but may or may not recoat it.

It can be mellowed to a pretty color that is hard to reproduce. Nicks and scratches can usually be touched up.

*Appraisals. Not generally recommended unless needed for insurance purposes. The appraisal may end up costing more than the antique is worth.

*Upkeep. Once a wood product is refinished, just wipe it off to keep it clean. Robin recommends using Guardsman, lemon oil or Endust every few months to shine the wood; he says not to use Pledge because it gets into the wood. He also recommends using cotton cloths.

"People tend to overclean," Hobin said. "If it has a good finish on it there is no need to put all that stuff on it."

Sometimes small touches add most to home's decor

By Pricilla Lister
Copley News Service

Details, details.

They may constitute the simplest, least expensive way to make a surprisingly new statement in your home — in any room.

They may offer the most definitive way to inject your personality into your living space.

And it may delight you more intimately than any large scale remodeling or refurnishing scheme.

"Your house should have your stamp," says Charlotte Moss in her book "A Passion for Detail" (Doubleday). "When you hear people say that your house looks like you, you should feel you have succeeded. In a successful room, personality triumphs over decoration.

You decide what kinds of details make up your stamp. As Moss sees it, the objects in a room breathe life into a space. And we should choose our objects because they say something we like.

"Don't be tempted to buy something just because it's the current style, because your decorator told you to or because your decorator told you not to," says the interior designer. "Instead, buy things that you like — things that speak to you. That way, you'll never go wrong."

With that caveat, consider the details available that might alter your space to fit you.

ARCHITECTURAL DETAILS

Trim a ceiling with crown moldings and literally transform a boring wall into one with character and dimension.

"Hardwood moldings add a touch of class even to a plain dry wall ceiling," says the Hardwood Manufacturers Association in Pittsburgh. "For example, crown molding in classic dentil design embodies sophistication and elegance."

Hardwood moldings come in many styles and are typically sold at lumberyards by the linear foot. They can be built up pattern upon pattern, detail upon detail, depending on how high your ceiling is and how much it will accommodate reasonably.

The same kind of moldings available to dress up your ceiling junctures can also be used to create or enhance mantelpieces.

Also on the market today are composition ornaments that look like carved wood but are actually created out of plaster.

"Composition ornaments are available in hundreds of different patterns, from columns, curves and swirls to fleurs de-lis, flowers, lions, urns and Cupids," says Rachel Ashwell in her book, "Shabby Chic" (Regan Books/Harper Style). "The ornaments can be used as trim for walls, windows, floor edges and ceilings, as well as on furniture and fireplaces."

And don't overlook the possibility of finding real architectural details at salvage yards, flea markets or even garage sales.

Buildings are being torn down all the time, and much in the way of beautiful ornaments and expensive materials ends up in the dump," says Joanna Wissinger in her book, "Lost and Found Decorating With Unexpected Objects" (Macmillan).

Among architectural salvage finds Wissinger discusses in her book are mantels, window frames, French doors, fluted columns and even light fixtures.

"Here's how some of the salvaged objects might be reused," she says:

- Display gargoyles as sculpture.
- Hang iron gates on walls or from the ceiling.
- Display mantels as sculpture or transform them into headboards.

Ornamental brackets from a building's exterior might become shelf supports or legs for a low table.

- Columns can be used as table legs or display pedestals.
- Shutters and doors can be used as screens when hinged together.

Of course you might even find a door unlike any made today.

CHANGE YOUR HARDWARE

Your doors or cabinets may never look the same with the simple change of their hardware. Doorknobs and cabinet pulls can be the simplest of changes with big impact. Richard Franklin Sammons, a New York architect, told House & Garden magazine (January 1997) that doorknobs can unlock doors of perceptions, Indeed, doorknobs are the first tactile introduction people have in a home or room, he says. Styles of door and cabinet hardware are myriad.

Some characteristics of various styles, according to House & Garden, include the formal Baroque patterns of Louis XIV, the mythological figures and gentle S-curves of the Renaissance, the finely chiseled rope motifs of Georgian, the highly ornate and intricate designs of Victorian, and the long and delicate lines of Art Nouveau.

Another important hardware element is your curtain rod. Whereas curtain rods typically were entirely hidden 20 years ago, today they're often fully exposed to become part of the overall design in your window treatment. House Beautiful magazine (November 1997) pictures window rods, finials and tiebacks that range from modern to traditional to natural. Choose from wrought iron to brass to faux bamboo rods with pine cone or colored glass ball or arrow and feather finial details on their ends.

Hang curtains made for such rods or tie fabric loops from them to the rods. And hold the curtains back with tasseled, fringed tiebacks for additional detail.

THE FABRIC OVERLAY

"Fabrics, more than any other decorative aspect of a room, are most influential in creating its overall ambience," says Ashwell. She began her Santa Monica, Calif.-based Shabby Chic home decor stores after her friends began asking her to make more of her slipcovers, "a washable, portable way of dealing with modern living." But fabric can be used to transform more than just your couch or chair upholstery.

Find some beautiful fabric and create that new curtain. Or Ashwell suggests a fine old linen tablecloth might make a wonderful window treatment. Toss a cozy throw on that couch or over that chair to add new colors, as well as warmth to a room. And toss a handful of new pillows into your living room or bedroom and bring in a whole new dash of color and interest.

"Pillows on a bed are nothing new, but an eclectic mix of pillows in different shapes, colors and textiles creates an interesting nest," says Moss. You might locate a beautiful antique tapestry and have it made into a pillow. Moss also points out the possibilities in using two layers of tablecloths on an occasional or side table, perhaps the bottom layer being a solid color with the top, draped layer in a print. Perhaps two solid colors will pull together the color scheme you're designing in your room.

THE EXTRA DETAILS

Add shelving to create a wall of books or display areas for your personal, precious collections. Scatter photographs in a variety of frames on a table or bookcase. Hang groups of pictures in a pleasing arrangement, and remember to hang them where they can be seen — the most common mistake is to hang paintings or prints too high: most advise eye-level. Find a folding screen and use it for more than room division. Paint it with a trompe l'oeil window to paradise or cover it in fabric to add dimension or even fantasy to the room.

Just remember what Emily Post wrote in her 1930 book, "The Personality of the House": "Its personality should express your personality, just as every gesture you make — or fail to make — expresses your gay animation or your restraint, your old-fashioned conventions, your perplexing mystery, or your emancipated modernism — whichever characteristics are typically yours."

IN THE DETAILS — Artist Duke Escobosa adds a design in gold leaf to the ceiling of a country estate.

Flowers

vase.

Arrangements should be created with their surroundings and containers in mind," says Carolyne Roehm, renowned fashion designer and author of the book "A Passion for Flowers" (HarperCollins). "The more you consider the total picture, the stronger statement you will make."

In addition to traditional tabletop arrangements, you may want to experiment with wreaths, garlands and swags. You can purchase a ready-made garland and embellish it with flowers and colorful satin ribbon. Hang above windows, doors, mirrors and bed frames to create a simple yet elegant look.

You don't have to be an artist extraordinaire to create eyecatching arrangements you'll be proud to display — or give as gifts. Working with silk flowers gives you the freedom to experiment at your own pace and try different arrangements before choosing a final design. For inspiration, take a walk through nature, attend a local garden show or study the lavish flower arrangement painted by the Dutch Masters.

Laura Dover Doran, in her book "The New Silk Flower Book" (Lark Books), offers these basic principles of design:

- When creating silk flower arrangements, try to keep in mind how the flower grew in nature. Allow some petals and leaves to curl upward or bend. Positioning is key to creating natural-looking arrangements.
- Select flowers of different textures, colors and shapes to add visual interest. Create depth by placing flowers on different planes and turning the blossoms at different angles.
- Use flowers at varying degrees of development (i.e. a combination of buds and fully bloomed flowers) to make the arrangement more realistic.
- Turn the arrangement as you add flowers so that you can view it from every angle. The arrangement should be well balanced, with plenty of space between flowers.

THE DRYING GAME

Many people prefer dry flowers to silk or like using a combination of both. Although dried flowers are typically more fragile and less hardy than silk flowers, they do create a spectacular arrangement.

You can purchase professionally dried flowers in craft and floral shops or, you can dry them yourself. Most flowers dry best when hung upside down. This process usually takes about two to three weeks. Flowers selected for drying should be picked at their peak and should be as flawless as possible with very little moisture.

When hanging to dry, gather flowers in bunches of seven to eight and fasten with a rubber band. Hang upside down in a warm, dry room where air is able to circulate. Avoid damp places like basements, bathrooms and laundry rooms, where humidity can hinder the drying process and produce mold.

You can also dry flowers using a drying agent, or desiccant. Although there are many desiccants that work, including borax, sand and even cat litter, experts recommend using silica gel, which absorbs moisture quickly and helps flowers retain their shape and color.

Keep in mind that the color of a flower changes in the drying process. Certain shades become stronger while many whites turn yellowish. As you experiment, you'll learn which flowers are most suitable for drying.

Design trend points to home as extension of self

By Rose Bennett Gilbert
Copley News Service

First, the good news about the upcoming millennium and how it's going to affect the way we decorate our homes into the 21st century: You can forget "Home, Sweet Home." The adjectives on tomorrow's samplers will read more like "colorful"... "comfortable"... "psychologically revealing."

How's that again?

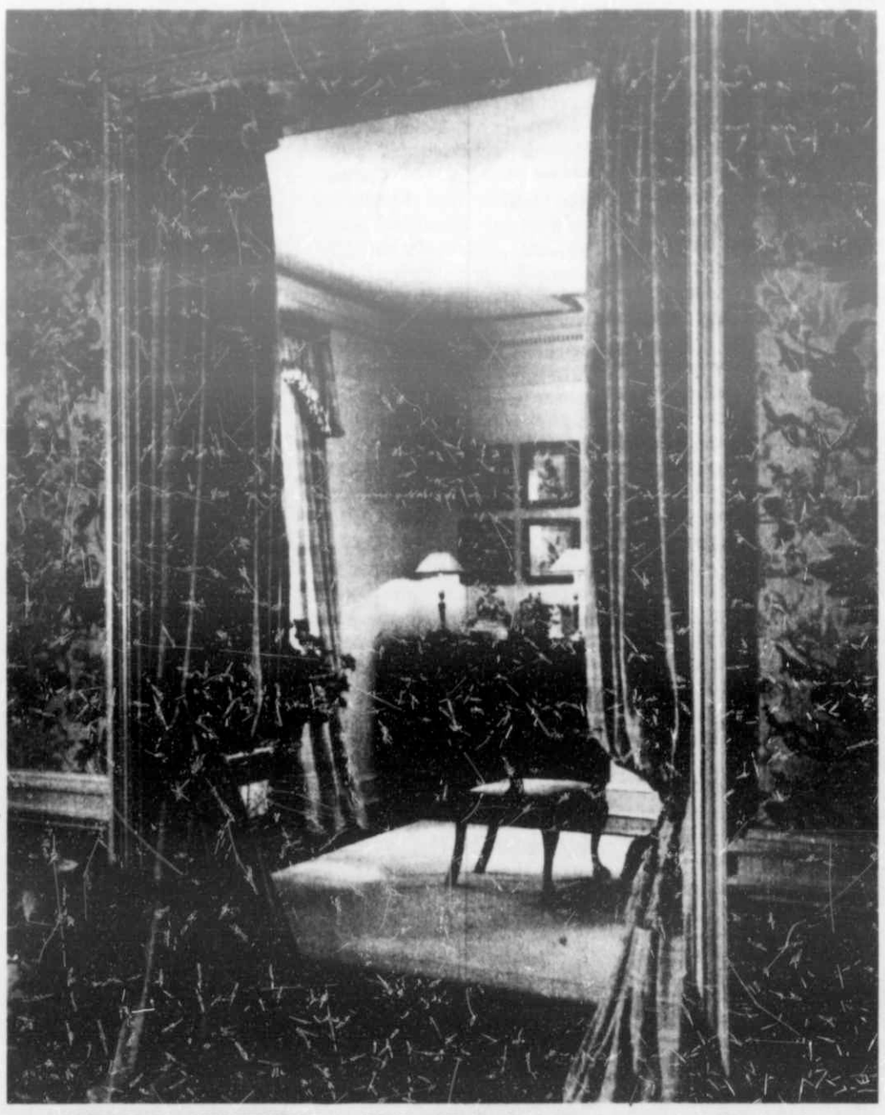
We're talking home as an extension of self, as natural habitat. Think "Home, My-Way Home," with color schemes, furniture and accessories that make a highly personal statement about who lives here, how you live and what you love enough to surround yourself with. In fact, this trend toward individual expression may be the only decorating trend that's sure to survive the turn of this century into the next.

But it's always fun to trade ideas and observations, so we've asked a sampling of top interior designers and professional prognosticators how they see the millennium shaping up America's homefront.

"Definitely more colorful," says multimedia decorating guru Joe Ruggiero of Los Angeles. "People are getting more adventuresome with color. We're finally starting to paint our homes in a more intense way."

Read: "More personal." It was Ruggiero who coined what he calls "The Burger King Theory" of decorating: Have it your way.

"Go ahead and do what you like," he urges. "It's about time people had the confidence to suit themselves."



PERSONAL STATEMENT — We'll still be looking for easy living in the new millennium, but we'll do it more elegantly, according to designer Penny Christie.

(Still, for anyone who needs a jump-start into decorating, Ruggiero has plenty of other suggestions to share via the new info source he launched last fall on the Worldwide Web: www.ruggieroideas.com.)

"Having it your way" should automatically produce your own natural habitat, rooms in which you feel totally at home and comfortable. Both are important attributes of the home of tomorrow but, in truth, we've been heading in this direction since midcentury. As we have rounded off the formal edges in all areas of modern life, we've let down our hair, plumped up the upholstery and slipped into something more comfortable at home.

Such as the American Country look. What started as a spark of rekindled national pride during the Bicentennial of 1976 quickly grew into the hottest design movement since Arts and Crafts dominated the turn of the last century. The country style made design history revitalizing America's furniture industry, launching a flock of country-romantic magazines, and sending us rummaging through attics and yard sales for fragments of the good old days.

But in the good new days of the millennium, many industry-watchers expect the country look to peak and wane. Or at least shrug off its rusticity in favor of what Raymond Waites calls "ornamentation decoration."

"We've gotten bored with 'American primitive,'" Waites believes. Now we want richer, more complex and sophisticated looks ... posh fabrics, embellished surfaces, lots of gold — gold will never go away! And deeper, richer colors. We're decorating the way the rooms in a fine English home evolved; building up a lineage over time, adding things as we go along."

What Waites says, matters: He's widely credited with helping "invent" the country look 20-plus years ago, and if he's moved on to a more formal, traditional look, that comes as no surprise to Pennsylvania designer Penny Christie of Meadowbank Designs. Out in Bucks County, she's been there all along.

"Traditional is still the look people are comfortable with, and we don't see that changing, millennium or not," says Christie.

Halfway across the country, Dallas designer Glen Boudreaux, ASID, agrees: "We see traditional, even formality, coming back into style. But not stiff and demanding. It may be more formal but it's still comfortable."

And young, adds Claire Degnan, an interior designer with Ethan Allen in New Jersey: "The most popular look with younger couples in their 30s, say, is definitely 18th century Williamsburg Colonial."

Industry-watcherMichele Lamb, publisher of Trend Curve, sees yet another influence behind this move to traditional formality: Biedermeier. The half-whimsical, half-pompous Neoclassical style has come out of 19th century Austria into the fashion spotlight of America in the late 20th century, inspiring rather refined rooms with classic references to things like columns, Greek key patterns, and marble, both real and faux.

Marble heads a long list of natural materials that are already widely popular and promise to keep gaining momentum as we approach the millennium. Exposed wood arms and legs are reappearing on sofas and chairs. Grass cloth wall coverings are making a comeback.

And Lamb expects to see furniture featuring natural stones mixed with wood, and wood paired with natural wovens, like wicker.

Wicker, by the way, has come indoors and plans to stay. It's appearing in new places, Degnan reports: on small end tables, for example, and in larger pieces, like sofa tables. She sees wicker as part of another important movement: the outside inside. Garden furniture and gardening motifs are showing up all through the '90s house, from granite-topped tables and counters to wrought iron furniture and fabrics strewn with flowers and - newest - veggies - and not just in the kitchen.

It all sounds so healthy, so personal, you say. So, what's the bad news about decorating in the new millennium? For one thing, orange is on its way back, according to Lamb. And even though it's a color known to create negative vibes in many beholders, she's calling orange "very salable' as the high note on a palette that will continue to warm as we work our way into the 2000s.

Also promising to become "phenomenally" important: metals and metallic colors, such as copper (orange by another name?), bronze and, especially, silver, Lamb predicts.

Her bottom line on color: Home decorators "are fatigued with the absence of color in their lives."

In short, we've had it with safe neutrals and naturals: Hue! is the cry. Which may help explain another design idea from the past that's promising to reappear in our near-futures: Mediterranean.

Colorful, indeed, and prone to excess ornamentation, Mediterranean-style furniture is the big "M" word no one over 40 ever thought they'd have to hear again after the 70s.

But this is "not the Mediterranean of the 1970s," Lamb assures. She's expecting more European flavor this go-around, a mixture of Country French, Italian (with mosaics), and "new" Spanish: metal accents, rich damasks and carvings, that sort of thing.

But hold onto your crystal balls: There's yet another big "M" hovering just over the horizon: Modern. Modern as in kidney-shape tables, teak, chrome and aluminum (silver by another name?).

It's a new spin on Modern," Lamb points out. "And it's being embraced by a youthful audience who see it as 'their' statement."

And that's just what Ruggiero means by "Home, My-Way Home."

Read. Then Recycle.

Scam Alert

Construction complaints are among the most reported consumer problem in America, some advocacy groups say. But they're easily avoided if consumers are well informed. Here's what to watch for

- Large up-front deposits.
- Full payment of job before work begins.
- False identification and insurance documents.
- Phony references.
- Contractors who use someone else's building license.
- Use of lower quality material than specified in contract.
- Undisclosed charges. (CNS)

YOUR FAVORITE THINGS

Creating a living space that suits both partners

By Alison Ashton
Copley News Service

"Oh, God, that's hideous. I can't believe you like it," my husband would declare whenever I pointed out a couch.

We had embarked on a years long quest for living room furniture we both really liked and didn't just tolerate. Sooner or later — in our case, later — couples have to resolve different design sensibilities in order to create a living environment that satisfies and expresses both partners. But how is that done?

"This is a question we deal with all the time," says Melissa Filides, decorating editor for Bride's magazine.

In our parents' generation, the house was often divided into territories. She got the kitchen, living room and bedrooms. He could do what he wanted with the basement, garage and den. And he got to pick his very own easy chair for the living room.

But Paul Spring, a former contractor who is now editor in chief of Today's Homeowner magazine, says the his-and-hers approach is fast disappearing. Dual incomes mean most couples make home design decisions jointly, and both partners often have strong — and divergent — opinions about what is suitable.

For new couples, Filides advises taking a thorough, and ruthless, inventory of what both of you already have.

"Keep only what you both can live with," he says.

And finding pieces you both agree belong in your home can take compromise and a creative approach Rather than shopping for all-new furniture, we try to tell (couples) to work with what they have," Filides notes. That may mean she gets to choose slipcovers to hide the ugly plaid couch from his former bachelor pad. Repainting and refinishing furniture is another way to fit old pieces into your new life together. Old furniture also can be used to fill new needs. For example, a plain dining table can serve as a roomy office desk.

Color is an excellent way to pull divergent tastes together, Filides adds. She suggests pairing one partner's style with the other's color sense. Paint his coffee table and entertainment center in her color palette, and both will feel like they've contributed to the end result.

Not only are couples likely to have different tastes — they're also likely to have different abilities to visualize the end product, says Spring. Couples can save a lot of grief if they take time to become familiar with each other's taste. The first step is to flip through magazines and books, and create a file of overall looks that appeal to both.

Agree on the general look first, he advises, then worry about individual elements. That alone will make it easier to compromise when it's time to make buying decisions.

This is all groundwork that should be done before hiring an interior designer, who wants to design your home, not play referee to a bickering couple. And start small. Filides says it's best to integrate new pieces one at a time. At most, just tackle one room at a time.

"Don't try to do the whole house, says Spring. You'll drive yourself nuts."

And don't think the design dilemma goes away quickly. It can take years for a style that represents both partners to evolve. But time helps.

"This is something that gets easier and easier as you do it," Spring promises.

Paint job

finishes are good for low-luster looks since they're less reflective than semi-gloss; they also resist smudges better and clean up more easily than flat. Semi-gloss is good for a durable, versatile finish it's washable so it's great for bathrooms, hallways and children's rooms. Windowsills, doorjambs, stair railings and other hard-wearing surfaces do well with high-gloss paint — also tough and easy to clean.

How much do you buy? According to Bob Vila's Web site (www.bobvila.-com), you need to consider three factors: the total square footage to be covered, the number of coats you plan to apply and the condition of the surface to be painted.

To figure the square footage, add up the area of each side and any other surface. Then add the total for each side. Then subtract areas that won't be painted, like windows or doors, stonework or other areas on the exterior. Divide that figure by 400, which will give you the approximate number of gallons you'll need for an average overcoat application for outdoors. For indoors, plan on 350. Consult with your paint dealer, however, if you have to make adjustment for a porous exterior, concrete blocks, etc.

ROLL UP YOUR SLEEVES AND BRING ON THE BRUSHES

You've moved all the furniture to the center of the room and covered it with a drop cloth. The curtains are down, as are the blinds, pictures and anything else that blocks access to a pristine wall. You've covered the windows with dry newspaper, held down with masking tape (and left at least one open for ventilation). You're ready to paint right? Well, not yet.

Prepping the surface is essential — there's no getting around it. For interiors, scrub all dirt and grease from the surface. Scrape off any peeling or blistering paint and sand the surface smooth. Don't forget to check for lead as long as you're at it. You can get test kits from the local hardware store or home center.

For exteriors, get all the chalking, flaking and peeling surfaces off as well. Use your garden hose or a rented pressure washer to do the job, then wait for the surface to dry. Kill off any mildew with a bleach solution of 1 pint per gallon of water.

You've already checked for stains. Now it's time to apply a sealer such as quick-drying shellac to them so they won't bleed through your new coat of paint. You've spackled holes and cracks and applied a single coat of primer.

Now you're ready.

Today's Homeowner recommends a four-step sequence used by most professional painters:

1. Paint the ceiling.
2. Cut in the walls along the ceiling and baseboard and around all windows and doors.
3. Paint the walls.
4. Finish the window sashes, trim work and doors.

Rollers or pads work well to apply the paint, especially those with a shield, which minimizes drips and splatters. For ceilings and the upper reaches of walls, attach the roller or pad to an extension pole instead of climbing a ladder. Today's Homeowner recommends using Padco's Beats-A-Brush mini-roller to get into inside corners.

Once you're done, dip rollers used for oil paints in paint solvent, work out as much of the paint as you can and then wash in a mud detergent solution, rinse and hang dry. For water-based paints, clean only in soapy water.

Showing off collectibles

By Alison Ashton
Copley News Service

Some people can't resist collecting. One couple always buys odd refrigerator magnets wherever they travel. Another scours flea markets in search of vintage architectural pieces. People collect hats, dolls, beer bottles, shopping bags, Japanese netsuke, antique thimbles, Staffordshire china and much, much more.

Junk or valuable antiques, these objects are treasured by their owners, and they can quickly overwhelm a home. Yet collectibies are what give an interior the owner's stamp of individually. Sure, the beer bottles are quirky, they stand out in a world of chic, prefabricated environments found in such design emporiums like Crate & Barrel and Pottery Barn.

So before you become exasperated and chuck those beloved objets trouves, here are a few ways to make them feel more at home:

• Put them to good use. William Randolph Hearst of Hearst Castle fame was the collector's collector. He purchased whole castles full of precious objects and, while much of it languished in storage, he found creative ways to put his finds to work. In his digs, gorgeous lampshades were fashioned out of handwritten medieval literary texts. On a more modest scale, you can turn a vase into a lamp base, or use old teacups as flowerpots. Pressing old things into service gives them new life, and it beats hiding them in some dusty display cabinet.

• Display with style. OK, some things exist just for the looking. Find creative ways to show them off. Try, for example, placing your antique thimbles in a glass-topped coffee table. Or hang an Amish blanket on the wall as a work of art.

• Find space. Don't forget to look up when seeking display space. Line the top of a wall in a child's bedroom with antique toys, and don't overlook the little-used space offered by the tops of cabinets and shelves.

• Change displays. Collectibles work best when they aren't an overwhelming clutter. Think of your home as a gallery. You can change the display seasonally or simply when you're ready for a new view. You don't have to look at the same stuff all the time. Be sides, it's cheaper than redecorating.

SPRING/ SUMMER HOMEFACTS

Keep gutters clean

Now is a good time to clean gutters: Fall leaves have stopped dropping and heavy spring rains have not yet begun.

■ Thoroughly clean out your gutters each spring and fall, regardless of whether your house is new or not.

■ Wearing a glove, remove by hand any debris (leaves, twigs, etc.) that has accumulated 1. If possible, blast any remaining small debris away with a garden hose 2.

■ Check downspouts. Clogged spouts can be cleaned by pushing a garden hose down into them or by taking the downspout assembly apart.

Consider pets' habits when choosing design

By Alison Ashton
Copley News Service

We knew it was time for new furniture when our new cat spurned the stuff we had. Moe quickly made himself at home, but he steered clear of the peach Naugahyde nightmares we called a couch and a love seat. These, he decided, were suitable as scratching posts and nothing more.

So my husband and I shopped around and replaced them with a more stylish Mission sofa and chairs. The wood arms would resist scratching paws and the elegantly muted and textured fabric would stand up to our three cats. As soon as the new furniture arrived, Moe sniffed the upholstery and walked on the broad arms. Then he curled up on a chair and dozed off. He approved, and so did we.

And he was right about the peach Naugahyde. I had to pay someone to haul that old junk away.

I'm hardly the first pet owner to make interior design choices to accommodate furry family members. Faced with a shedding pooch, my hairdresser opted for tan, dog-color carpeting. Her husband held out for a chic oatmeal hue, but she told him to forget it unless he wanted to vacuum constantly.

Those who don't live with pets think this kind of approach is nuts. Of course, you can have hand-painted silk couches, they insist, just shoo the beasts off.

"Squirt the cats with a water bottle when they jump up on the table," advises my mother, who has never owned a pet.

Sorry, Mom, it just doesn't work that way. We have pets because we like them and want them around. Besides, pushing Fido or Fluffy off the couch is fine when you're home. When you're out, they pretty much rule the roost.

But that's not to say pet owners have to settle for a cheap, ugly, stain-hiding decor. It is possible to enjoy a little style and have an animal-friendly interior. Many of the following tips, culled from veteran pet owners and experts like Paul Spring, editor in chief of Todays Homeowner magazine, also apply to a kid-friendly decor.

"It's like having young children around, says Spring. "Like having kids with fur."

At least parents can take some comfort in knowing the kids will grow up and move away. Then they can have the white chairs and carpeting they've always coveted.

• Choose hardy material. Sure, you can have that hand-painted raw silk upholstery — if you're willing to spend a lot of time policing your pet's behavior. Or you can choose materials that will stand up to the animal's abuse. If the cat will inevitably stroll across the coffee table, remember that glass will show paw prints in no time. If Fluffy is given to climbing up the curtains (what fun!), consider covering windows with blinds or shutters.

• Cover up. Hardy, textured fabrics in muted patterns help camouflage a lot of damage. Some pet owners opt for heavy, easy-to-clean leather. Slipcovers, which are easily removed for cleaning, are another option. Others simply throw attractive blankets over chairs and sofas. Interior designers may gasp at this suggestion, but blankets are easy to wash and quick to remove when visitors arrive.

To extend the life of upholstered furniture, vacuum it frequently, using a hose and upholstery brush attachment to remove pet hair. Spring adds that furniture with removable cushions may cost more, but it's easier to vacuum thoroughly.

• Under foot. Spring thinks selecting durable, easy-to-clean floor coverings is the most important decision pet owners make. "You're increasing the traffic over the floor, he explains.

For carpets, a low-pile, nonabsorbent nylon rug makes it easy to tame dirt and pet hair. Like my hairdresser, you could choose carpeting that blends with your pet's coat. In addition to vacuuming a few times a week, have rugs professionally cleaned (or rent the equipment and do it yourself) twice a year.

Stain-resistant carpeting is a must for when Fluffy coughs up a fur ball or Fido has an unfortunate accident. Spring also suggests "imminently cleanable vinyl flooring, which also is relatively inexpensive to replace.

• Live in the wild kingdom. Remember, pets have natural instincts that owners have to accommodate. If you've made smart selections for upholstery and carpeting, you won't mind if the cat hops onto the coffee table or the dog lies on the couch. But animals should have some of their own furniture. A cozy dog bed will encourage sweet dreams for Fido. Provide cats with their own scratching post.

These carpet-covered towers aren't the most appealing addition to a room, but they will help keep Fluffy from sharpening her claws on your favorite chair. Just choose one in a color that blends in and stick it in the corner.

Also consider installing a pet door, so animals can come and go as they please. That way, they won't scratch up your door when they want in or out. Since a lot of dirt accumulates near pet doors, protect flooring with a mat or throw rug that can be picked up and cleaned with ease.

CELEBRATING OUR 8th YEAR

Finding storage space for indispensable items

By Priscilla Lister
Copley News Service

If you're like many of us, one of your New Year's resolutions always is: Get organized.

If your worldly goods seem enmeshed in chaos, make your life gentler by putting them in a proper place.

"When storage needs are finally addressed in an efficient, easy-to manage fashion, life becomes much simpler and home is transformed into what we always knew it could be: our safe retreat from the pressures of the world outside," says Candace Ord Manroe in her book "Storage Made Easy: Great Ideas for Organizing Every Room in Your Home" (Reader's Digest).

There are nearly as many possibilities in storage solutions as there are in things we store today. Stores devoted only to storage containers have multiplied nationwide. Businesses specializing in closet organization are franchised almost everywhere. Today there is even a National Association of Professional Organizers.

FIRST TASK: PURGE

The first step in getting organized is to store only those items we really need to keep, and to discard, donate or recycle the others.

"Once a month when cleaning, every time you go past something you never use, stop doing that. Give that stuff away," says Stephanie Culp, author of eight books on streamlining your life and a syndicated column.

"That's found storage space right there."

FINDING UNUSED SPACES

"Instead of buying new bookcases, built-in or portable shelving, cabinetry or drawers, you may be able to utilize existing space on the walls or floors for organizing household goods," says Manroe. Her ideas include using pegboard hooks on the wall to hang up hats, coats and sports equipment - even extra chairs. Consider areas under end tables and cocktail tables for stacking books or magazines. Use laminated particle board drawers on casters to store winter clothing under beds. Use furniture for storage, including armoires, antique trunks, old wooden crates doubling as end tables, sideboards and any kind of cabinet, including corner or hanging.

"I always tell people, don't buy any piece of furniture, except a sofa or a bed, unless it has a drawer or shelf on it you can use," says Culp.

"End tables, desks, bed tables all should offer some storage capacity," she says. She also advocates use of trunks in any room, next to a bed, as a coffee or end table, in the entry hall.

"A nice trunk looks great anywhere and it can hold a ton of stuff," says Culp. One big storage problem coming up fast is videotapes," she adds. "Find a pretty little three-drawer dresser and put that in a den with a lamp on it. Put your videotapes in the drawers," says Culp.

Manroe also suggests you examine beneath-the-seat storage possibilities of banquette sofa seating, built-in breakfast booths and window seats. And definitely consider taking advantage of the "dead space" under staircases or under eaves by adding built-in shelving with just a few boards and nails.

"An additional advantage of exploring spaces under eaves and staircases for storage possibilities is this: when put into active duty as functional storage areas, these spaces acquire a look of importance, becoming more visible as architectural features," she says. You could hide the shelves behind doors, if you prefer.

"Under the stairs is also a great hideaway for luggage," says Culp. "You might even build recessed storage compartments between the studs, if room space is at a premium. Cut out the plaster or drywall between the studs to the desired shelving dimensions, then build shelves that fit the space," she suggests.

"If you have a decent amount of space between items placed on a shelf and the shelf above them, attach an under-shelf wire basket to that upper shelf," says Maxine Ordesky in her book "The Complete Home Organizer" (Grove Press).

Look between and under your windows.

"If the width of the wall between two windows or a window and a corner is wide enough, say 30 inches, build a bookcase with 9- or 10-inch-deep shelves," says Ordesky.

CLOSET SOLUTIONS

Closet organizers are masters at utilizing space. Here are some ideas from Debra Melchior, taken from her book "Organize Your Home" (Bob Adams Inc).

Many closets waste a huge area of empty wall above the top shelf, which in itself has become "the world's largest lost-and-found depository," says Melchior, because it is too high to reach and too tall to stack things efficiently.

Lower the original shelf, which then prohibits double-rodding, and stack three shelves allowing only single-layer storage on each shelf, she says. Or raise the top shelf to allow double-rodding for hanging clothes, creating two levels for shirts, for example. Place a shoe rack on the inside of your closet door or on a side wall.

The most amazing, resourceful and revolutionary idea ever imagined for sweater storage are Honeycomb cylindrical storage tubes," says Melchior. "They actually satisfy and supply the best overall serviceability for sweaters."

Roll sweaters into the Honeycomb tubes that are stacked on shelves. In your linen closet, move toiletries, medications, cosmetics and cleaning supplies to a rack on the inside of the closet door, she says.

KITCHEN IDEALS

Kitchen counter space always seems to be at a premium.

"Opening up space on the countertops in the kitchen is an easier task than one might think," says Melchior. Install a strong-arm rack onto any conveniently located wall and mount the microwave on it. Likewise, mount a specialty rack on a wall or door for your food processor. Specialty racks for these appliances are made to store all the blades, tubes and covers that go with the processor as well.

"Another simple idea for the kitchen that people don't often consider is hanging pots on the wall above the stove," says Culp. You might add shelves to the inside doors of pantries and cupboards if possible.

"The space above the sink between cabinets is ideal for an efficient wire shelf organizer or a single

Make dramatic statement with small powder room

By Caron Golden
Copley News Service

That guest bath is a tricky room. It's obviously part of your house, but it's a place that's designed less for your comfort than for others. It also tends to be a small space that at first can seem to limit your creativity. That small space can, however, work to your advantage.

"You can afford to be a little more dramatic," says Dana Phillips of Phillips Houston Design Associates in San Diego. Where you might stay away from darker or richer colors, for example, you can do it here in small doses.

It also means you might be able to afford more expensive materials since you'll be using them in smaller quantities.

Redoing a powder room doesn't have to be an extravagant renovation. You generally don't have much leeway in changing the layout since you have to work with existing plumbing access. So we're primarily talking about lighting, countertops, walls, flooring and accessories.

Of course, your budget will have to be realistic as you consider these different elements. Try to keep it below what you can afford so that you have some wiggle room for unexpected costs.

LAYOUT

If the powder room was an afterthought whose layout reflects little consideration, you may have to move some things around or even enlarge the space so that your guests don't trip over themselves.

A good resource for figuring out how you can redesign the layout — as well as determine colors, tile patterns and other issues — is a Windows software program called "Picture This Home! Bath" (Autodesk). With its virtual 3-D interactive features, you can work with a template or from scratch to arrange a floor plan, and then from there create lighting, tile patterns, colors, even an estimated budget based on your shopping list.

If you're working with a limited space, there are probably limited options in terms of layout, but moving a vanity or even eliminating it in favor of a sink with a wall-to-wall shelf can add the necessary inches or feet that will make a difference in your guests' comfort. Repositioning the toilet may also add space but you have to work with a contractor to determine if the existing plumbing makes it an easy option or a prohibitively expensive renovation.

Phillips recalls that one of the popular fixtures of the 1980s was pedestal sinks. They may have saved some space but they eliminate one of the most critical aspects of the powder room — counter space. "There's nowhere to put hand towels down," she notes. And, if you're entertaining and want to light candles or lay out some potpourri, again, there's nowhere to place it.

If a full cabinet takes up too much room, a counter shelf can do the job. Phillips likes marble for this feature. Another alternative is perhaps a piece of antique furniture or a wall-hung cabinet.

Take a look at what surrounds the powder room. There may be a natural extension, such as a hall closet or link to the den (which may double as a guest room) that you can take advantage of to add a shower.

LIGHTING

Make it flattering, says Phillips. That rules out fluorescent lights in favor of incandescents. While ceiling lighting is common, you can have wall sconces and, if you have space, make a statement with a unique lamp for the counter. Another feature you should consider is a dimmer. We tend to use them for dining rooms but they work very well in guest baths where you can create a dramatic touch that can be adjusted when the room is in use.

If your bathroom has an enclosed space for the toilet, make sure that the area is well-illuminated. And don't forget the light switch and its placement. It's probably not going to be uncommon to have newcomers in the room. Finding the light switch shouldn't be an Olympic event.

WALLS

Here's where you can add some drama. Faux finishes, murals, even a trompe l'oeil of a window with a view can create interest. If you have a shower in the guest bath, make sure that the covering you choose can withstand moisture and heat.

Along with walls, consider interesting treatments to the backsplash. A tile theme on the floor can be picked up behind the sink.

ACCESSORIES

This is the fun part. Creating a particular theme for the powder room is more then just the walls, the lighting and the style of sink. It's all those little details that add up to a room with style.

Take the mirror, for example. Typically, a mirror will run over the sink and straight across the wall. How about taking down that mirror and hanging a smaller one that's been framed?

Towel racks, too, can be boring. Look for freestanding towel holders. and for the towels use interesting colors and materials like linen.

If you are a collector of bottles, shells, bowls, whatever — perhaps some examples of your collection would be nice in a wall-hung cabinet with glass shelves.

Or use one of those bowls for a good handful of potpourri or one or more bottles for a spray of fresh flowers.

JUST FOR GUESTS — Don't be afraid to be creative when it comes to decorating the guest bathroom. Fabrics and flowers can add dramatic touches in an otherwise simple room.

wooden shelf," says Manroe.

As for under your kitchen sink, that proverbial hodgepodge of a mess, organize it with some inexpensive accessories, suggests "Sunset Complete Home Storage" (Lane Publishing). Hang dish towels and dishcloths inside the under-sink cabinet on a swing out rack; attach a paper towel holder to the outside of the under-sink cabinet door, put cleaning equipment in plastic stacking bins.

Plastic caddies can keep cleaning supplies neat and portable, suggests Sunset. And look around your kitchen for unexpected places you can mount new shelves.

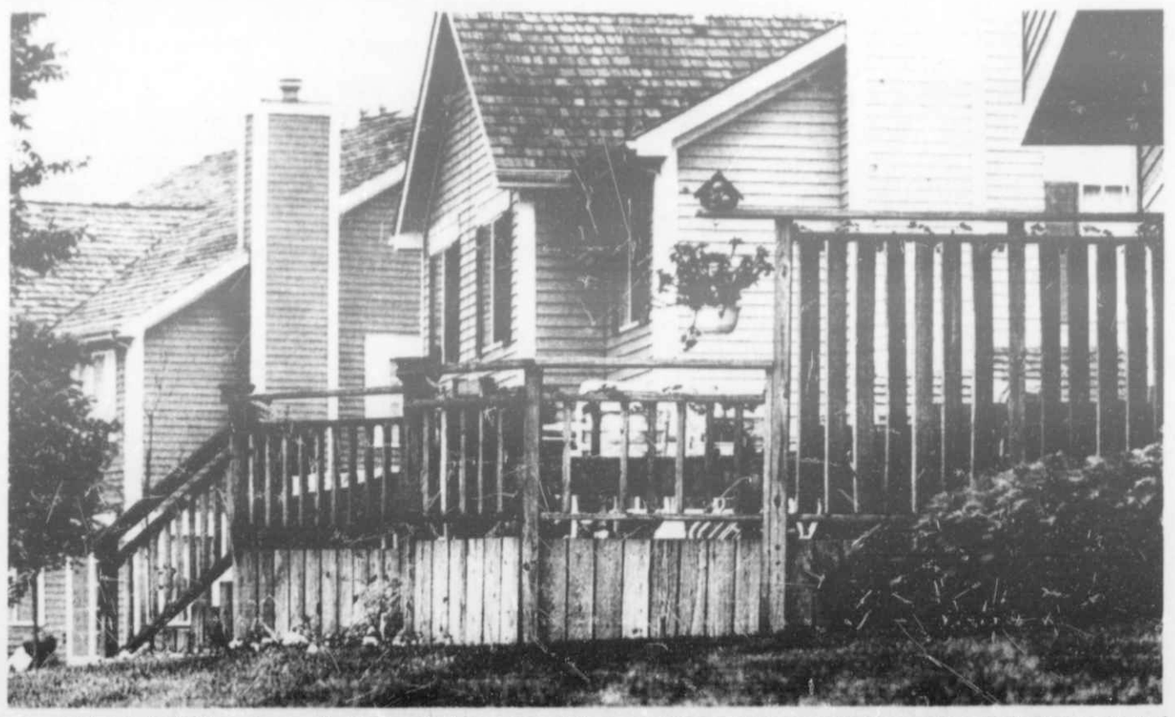
Outdoor rooms extend usable living space

By Caron Golden
Copley News Service

One of the most beautiful rooms you can create for your home isn't even indoors. That plot of land just beyond the four walls may be small or extravagantly spacious, flat or steeply sloped, but with a little creativity you can transform it through a deck or patio into a welcoming haven.

Springtime is perfect for planning a new outdoor room or renovating an existing one. It can be as simple as relandscaping and adding new furniture or cushions, perhaps reconfiguring an existing setup or bricking over concrete, or as complex as starting from scratch and building a multi-tiered structure to take advantage of a hillside.



HIT THE DECK — Spring is the perfect time to build a deck for your home, extending livable space into the outdoors. This deck features a bench that runs around the interior.

HOW WILL YOU USE THE SPACE?

If you are starting from scratch, you have a wealth of options to consider. Do you want a patio that rests on the ground or a deck with its wooden structure built off the ground? Or perhaps a combination of the two — or even a gazebo instead? Does a hot tub figure into the plan, or do you need to create a new surrounding area for an existing pool? Will it be multilevel or perhaps curve around trees? Will it be right outside a kitchen or family room or perhaps require a path through a garden to enter it?

Your first consideration is how this space is to be used. A quiet haven with a spa is one thing. A children's play space is something else entirely.

Make a list of your outdoor needs to help create a concept for this space. It can include things like dining, garbage enclosure, potting shed, herb garden, bathing, lawn substitute — whatever your needs or desires may be.

NOW DO YOU SITE YOUR PATIO OR DECK?

Then, of course, you need to decide where to site this space. Even if you have a pre-existing patio, you probably have some wiggle room. Perhaps a barbecue was built in an awkward location that splits the patio in half and takes up too much room. You may not actually move the patio site but as you consider how you want to use the area, you can remove or relocate the cooking area and reconfigure the area.

Take into consideration:

- Exposure to sun, shade and wind.
- What kind of view you want to take advantage of, if there is one.
- Drainage.
- Accessibility to the house — or privacy.
- Accessibility to gardens.
- Accessibility to water for plants.
- Maintenance — both cost and labor.

Of course, depending on the kind of work you plan to do, and where you live, you'll have to find out if you need a building permit and what codes affect the structure you want to build. Are there height restrictions, style and materials restrictions, setbacks you have to conform to? Also, double check your property deed to make sure that you aren't infringing on your neighbor's property and note the location of both underground/overhead lines.

WORKING WITH SPECIAL CHALLENGES

Sunset's "Ideas for Great Patios & Decks" is a great primer for getting a handle on the design and building process. One of the most common challenges homeowners face nowadays is a shortage of space. The Sunset book offers a variety of suggestions for working with low-light, enclosed spaces.

If this is one of the issues you are facing, consider

- Vertical stacking to work with sloped or multistory layouts.
- A simple enclosure that echoes the house construction: brick with brick, for example or redwood with redwood.
- Landscaping that creates a cozy feel, perhaps enhanced with a water fountain.
- Smaller scale furniture, built-in benches or simply a limited number of pieces.

If linking the indoors to the outdoors is more of a consideration, check out "How to Design & Build Decks & Patios" (Ortho Books). The book has a number of ideas on how to create what they call a "graceful liaison" between house and garden. This has always been a consideration in the Southwest.

Traditional Spanish-style homes built around courtyards are still found in places like Santa Fe, N.M., and Southern California. Elsewhere, however, it's not uncommon to find houses in which designers didn't consider access to the outdoors very important.

If this is your problem, you may have to do some structural work to the house along with creating the patio or deck — perhaps add French doors to the room that faces out to the garden. Or, revisit your current garden, paving over a patch of land given to plants and relocating the vegetation to another spot. As you consider your options, think about homes you've been to or even places you've visited and admired to come up with some ideas about the flow between indoor and outdoor areas.

MATERIALS

Usage, region and budget come into play when you begin to consider materials. Even if you decide on a simple wooden deck, you have to decide what kind of lumber to use. The Sunset book has a terrific lumber primer that describes the differences between various kinds of woods, their pluses and minuses and whether you want them pre-treated or not. You'll find that most professional designers prefer to work with Douglas fir for a deck's substructure but choose redwood or cedar for decking, benches and railings. For patios, brick, slate, concrete, stone and tile are among the favorite choices. Many of us still shy away from concrete, remembering the cracked boring patios of our childhood. But concrete treatments can actually be colored, textured or stamped to look like other materials. If you like slate or terracotta tiles, but they aren't in your budget, concrete can be stamped and stained to look remarkably like it.

And there's nothing to say you can't mix and match. Try railroad ties along the edge of a garden that eases into a sandstone patio. Embed colorful Mexican tiles into a stucco wall surrounding a flagstone patio.

Finally, don't forget the variety of loose materials you can add to gardens. River rocks or wood chips in a garden to draw the eye to a cluster of plants add color and texture. Crushed rock can make a nice pathway from a driveway to a front patio.

Good Neighborhood

Despite fears of rising crime, most Americans (63 percent) say they feel as safe in their neighhorhood as they did five year ago. About 13 percent said they feel safer than before. And city dwellers were only more likely to say that their neighborhood is less safe than five years ago — 18 percent compared to 12 percent. About 14 percent said their current neighborhood is less safe than five years ago.

And good old-fashioned neighborliness is not dead, either — 19 percent of Americans have their neighbor's house key or home security code. (CNS)

Home Wrecker

Home improvement projects shouldn't ruin your home. Last year, according to Consumer Reports, Americans spent some $70 billion on remodeling projects. Despite some bumps along the way, three out of four respondents in a national survey expressed overall satisfaction with the job.

The best way to find a reliable contractor, according to Consumer Reports, is to solicit references from friends and neighbors. Industry groups recommend that you get a written estimate from at least three contractors, visit job sites, and compare price and quality of materials. (CNS)

SMALL WORLD — Enlisting your child's help is the first step in crafting a room that fires youthful imagination.

Enlist children's help to design a room of their own

By Charlene Baldridge
Copley News Service

The most important thing to remember when planning to redecorate a child's room is as follows: It's not about you, it's about your child.

This is not the passive infant for whom you planned and designed in advance; this is the evolving human being with needs, talents, desires and mind of her own. Your offspring's wishes, desires and dreams must be taken into consideration at all stages in the planning.

If you were the instigator of the imminent decor facelift, you are perhaps the more motivated. If the child is the instigator, it is essential to establish good communication from the get-go, to discover and discuss his/her ideas and motivations.

Embarking on a joint project might bring you closer together. It can also provide a grand learning experience for children: Somewhere between free rein and a firm hand, they have the opportunity to become aware of cost, range of choices, budget and expanding taste and personal preference.

If you plan to use an interior design consultant, make certain it is one who understands all your goals and the importance of your child in this equation.

When Barbara Smith, host of the syndicated TV show "B. Smith With Style," and her husband, Dan Gasby, decided to build a beach house at Sag Harbor, N.Y., Smith and her 11-year-old stepdaughter, Dana, were co-conspirators on the decor of Dana's room.

"First, we talked about color," said Smith. "We worked with periwinkle."

The room is stenciled — stripes and stenciled starfish — in keeping with Smith's rather nautical beach house theme.

"Dana has two bedrooms with us," said Smith, "one in the city and one at Sag Harbor. Since she's not always with us on weekends, it was important first that she love her room, and then that I could double it as a guest bedroom. So it has her stuffed animals, and a vanity I found that she likes."

Smith is a great believer in under-bed storage and both in Manhattan and Sag Harbor hired a specialty firm to organize closets, taking into consideration the family's needs.

In Dana's Sag Harbor bedroom one closet is for her clothes. Another stores her games and toys, but also has a section devoted to hanging guests' clothes and storing their bags.

Award-winning interior designer Joan DesCombes of Winter Park, Fla., said, "We're living in a very chaotic world. While you may say our society is somewhat adrift, the good news is it's still afloat."

DesCombes believes that contemporary decor reflects the individual's need for what is safe and secure and comforting. In children's rooms she's incorporating places for display of photographs of friends and family and pets. She's put a lot of aquariums into kids' rooms lately.

Where we used to see a bed with a bunch of pillows and a desk," she said, "we're designing kids' rooms where there are cozy elements, almost like a family room." She calls it "the layering of cherished mementos."

FIELD TRIPS

My personal forays into the shopping maze were with the do-it-yourself parent and child in mind. There are a number of charming wall coverings available for smaller children and older ones as well. For older children, check out the beautiful wall murals manufactured by Environmental Graphics. "Soaring With Eagles" would suit any environmentally minded youth. For those with an interest in sports, there's the mural titled "Play Ball" For the studious and travel-minded, "World Map," and for those with a scientific bent, a shuttle in orbit, Saturn and three moons and "Earthrise" as seen from orbit.

These murals cover approximately 8 feet 4 inches by 13 feet 8 inches finished, and come in easy to apply sections. They cost $79.95, plus freight and tax. I saw them at Dunn-Edwards, a wall covering specialty firm. The patient salesperson urges those who would do it themselves to shop in a specialty store. There, you will be given detailed instructions for application of your wall covering.

For information about local dealers and a full-color brochure, phone (800) 328-3869.

Short of painting your walls white and turning your 5-year-old loose with a variety of felt tip pens (which isn't a bad idea since much wallpaper today looks exactly like that's what you've done), there are many innovative things you can do to spruce up the walls of your past-babyhood child. When it comes to doodles, the Kiddoodles line has a fun array.

If your younger child favors a decor featuring animated featurefilm stars, you have a plethora of choices, not only in wall coverings, but in bedding, rugs, throw pillows and numerous other designer elements you never even thought of: the image immortal.

Currently, the rage with the younger set are "Pocahontas," "Hercules," "101 Dalmatians" and "The Lion

Master bedroom should offer respite from the world

By Pricilla Lister
Copley News Service

The master bedroom today is a private sanctuary, a place where we regroup and gather our strength. As such, it can be the most important room in the home, and one where we may end up spending most of our time.

"In our fast-paced society, private time and space still seem elusive," says Cara Greenberg in "House Beautiful Bedrooms" (Hearst Books).

"The bedroom is more important than ever as a retreat, not just from the more public parts of the house, but from the chaotic world outside."

"While many people believe a bedroom should be restful or perhaps romantic, others prefer it stimulating or even energetic," says Greenberg.

Make your bedroom the stuff of your dreams, whether rustic or sophisticated, modern or historic, calming or exciting. Stimulate your own sense of style with these design ideas.

LIGHTING SETS THE MOOD

"The importance of lighting in a room cannot be overemphasized," says Karen Howes in "Making the Most of Bedrooms" (Rizzoli).

She strongly recommends banishing overhead lighting in bedrooms — "It will kill any atmosphere," she says. The variety of bedside lamps, floor lamps, high-tech flexible stems, spotlights, underlighters and downlighters available on the market today makes your choices myriad.

"If you have always used standard bedside lamps but find they are too harshly bright in their new environment, use bulbs of a lower wattage," says Howes.

Experiment with different lampshades, even in different colors. Have lights on a dimmer switch so you can adjust them to various tasks.

In one example, Howes shows how a light, white bedroom brings in natural light while eliminating the need for privacy curtains by installing glass blocks in the windows. In the same room, flexible- arm lamps mounted on the wall on either side of the bed can be turned down for reading or turned away to reflect against the wall for a more muted effect.

Or divide the bedroom into separate zones by lighting and switching them separately, suggest Osram-Sylvania Inc., manufacturer of a wide range of lighting devices.

"Light can create mood," says Osram-Sylvania. Perhaps nowhere is that more important than your master bedroom. The company offers a free "Guide to Lighting" throughout your home, available by calling (800) LIGHTBULB.

Natural light from the sun, a fireplace or candles are the favorite sources of Rachel Ashwell in "Shabby Chic" (Regan Books/Harper Style).

"If you have lots of windows, use them," she says. Leave shades or blinds up or keep them very sheer, or dispense with window coverings altogether to let in more sunlight.

"Candles and flickering fires give off a flattering, soft light that is almost impossible to create artificially," she says. Place candles in groupings, mixed and matched in size and shape, to make them a decorative focal point.

THE BED AS CENTERPIECE

Whether daybed, sleigh bed or four-poster, the bed "generally occupies center stage" in the master bedroom, says Greenberg.

"But even given its preeminence, a bed may be imposing or retiring, formal or informal," she adds.

"A simple bed, such as a futon on a platform, will allow other pieces to establish the mood of the room — an antique armoire, perhaps, or an inviting armchair," says Greenberg. A four-poster will generally command attention in any bedroom, but the kind of curtains or fabrics you drape from it can affect the mood immensely. "If you haven't been lucky enough to inherit one, you can construct the effect easily," says Howes.

"Remember that in a poorly proportioned room, a four-poster can appear dumpy, stealing what little height a room may have," she cautions.

But if you do have the space for a stately four-poster, construct a frame for one from wood or metal do-it-yourself kits, or even from scaffolding poles.

"Once the frame is in place, you can experiment with curtain permutations: formal and fixed, tied with ribbons, or unfinished lengths of fabric just thrown or draped," says Howes.

If the total enclosure of fourposter curtains is not entirely your style, perhaps a folding screen on one side of the bed will envelop you cozily, creating a room-dividing privacy or blocking out window drafts.

USES FOR FABRICS

By changing the fabrics of your window coverings, as well as your bed coverings, you can change the look of your entire bedroom.

"Play around with your existing bed linens, rejuvenate ancient blankets by sewing a colorful cotton border around the fraying edges, and go through Granny's trunk in search of old patchwork quilts and embroidered bedspreads that would add the finishing touch," suggests Howes.

Since comfort is the primary consideration in outfitting your bed, Ashwell believes "plenty of luscious layers — sheets, blankets and goose-down duvets — are the best way to make a bed luxurious."

Choose cotton, flannel or linen sheets to rest against your skin, saving heavier velvets or jacquards for duvets or comforters.

Throw a dash of color on the bed with pillows, mixing and matching their shapes and sizes and patterns. Likewise, throw those pillows on a chaise lounge or easy chair as well in the bedroom.

SOME DESIGN, STYLE IDEAS

PRIVACY ZONE — This master suite, designed by Linda Kaufman, mixes luxury and utility to make the room a comfortable retreat.

The many books and magazines on design offer countless ideas you might incorporate into your own dream bedroom.

Here are a few interesting ones we culled from these resources:

• A master bedroom should have the luxury of space, says Howes. In one example, her book shows how two rooms were opened up, making one, incorporating the skeletal support studs of the former wall as an outline for the new sitting area.

• In a 200-year-old house shown in "House Beautiful Bedrooms," the original ceiling beams that were ravaged by age were encased in pine boards, crafted by a local shipbuilder, and painted a glossy white.

• A country house bedroom, a signature of "Laura Ashley Bedrooms" (Harmony Books), invariably centers on rich colors and patterns in wallpaper, fabrics, paint and decorative details.

"Chintz is the most characteristic English country house fabric of all, generally strewn with a profusion of flowers," says Susan Irvine in this book.

But combining with chintz are brocades, embroidered silks, satins and tapestry, on four-poster curtains, window curtains, bedspreads, and chair upholstery. Carpets might also be patterned, but in finer, smaller dimensions, such as tiny checks or simple dots.

• In "Shabby Chic," Ashwell decorates her own vintage bed with a duvet made from old Indian saris.

• Ashwell likes to bring in the outdoors in a bedroom by using wrought-iron garden furniture or potted plants.

PERSONAL DETAILS

No room deserves the personal touch more than your master bedroom. Cover a blank wall with meaningful photographs or a series of special drawings. Add some sentimental details, whether antique candlesticks you picked up in Paris, a vintage radio or seashells from your honeymoon. Your bedroom is where you most seek serenity. Define what serenity means to you and your dream bedroom will come true.

EMPTY NEST

Redesigning kids' rooms? Keep favorite things handy

By Charlene Baldridge
Copley News Service

The last of the nestlings has flown the coop for college, and you want to put his/her room to good use without making the final fledgling feel like she can never come home again.

What to do depends upon the use to which you want to put that glorious space about which you have such mixed feelings. Your child is gone — boohoo. The space is available — hooray!

A home office would be nice, but during spring break Ronnie would have to sleep between a fax and a hard place, your computer desk. Of course there wouldn't be room left over for Ronnie's lovely twin beds. Let's face it: No matter what you do, the room is going to lose some of what made it Ronnie's.

The first order of business is to ask your grown child's forgiveness for what you are about to do — sewing room, home office, whatever. Advance absolution having been granted, there are a number of possibilities.

A friend solved the furniture dilemma by giving it to the departing child, something that's impossible when the destination is a dorm room. Other parents store part or all of the furniture just in case. Kids have a way of returning, even if only for spring break.

"You don't want them to feel unwelcome," says award-winning interior designer Joan DesCombes of Winter Park, Fla. "And they don't want to sleep in the sewing room."

DesCombes, who admits her daughter's tennis rackets still "float all over" her house, suggests incorporating personal mementos into the new decor.

"It's a way to make them feel this is still their room, even though it's used for another purpose. It should be customized, it should be personal, and it should fit their needs and the needs of the parents, who are using it for some other purpose now."

DesCombes stresses the need for built-in comfort and says that spare bedrooms can be it all and have it all — a paradise something like an office, a spare bedroom and almost like a living room, all in one.

On occasion, DesCombes has utilized refrigerator drawers in the decor. The returning child, or the guest, will have soft drinks and juice, even snacks, should they not wish to trek to the kitchen.

On recent forays to furniture stores, I saw a marvelous, double-duty dresser, which had an enormous bottom drawer to accommodate hanging files, great for the home office/bedroom. When the drawer is needed for clothing, the files can easily be transferred to a handy plastic container manufactured expressly for that purpose.

Go nuts over the possibilities at Hold It! — a brainstorm kind of place specializing in closet conversion systems, storage bins of immense variety and even easily broken-down office furniture on the cheap.

CONSIDER CLOSETS

Especially if the room in question is small, wall space is what you're looking for. When only part of your child's furniture goes or is stored, consider the closet your possible wall-space bonanza.

Closet doors are easily removed, but not so easily stored, unless you have a copious garage. You might consider hiring a closet designer, an interior designer and/or a cabinetmaker, but bear in mind that anything built in becomes part of the house and may not be removed. Furthermore, your conversion may not suit possible buyers should you decide to sell your home. Whatever your path, save those closet doors.

You may decide not to invest in cabinetry or built-in elements appropriate to your needs. In that case, consider just part of the closet to accommodate your sewing machine, a desk, computer table and/or printer, or some filing cabinets.

The Murphy bed is alive and well, mainly on special order. This age-old space-saver has long solved people's problems. Not inexpensive, Murphy beds come in a huge variety of styles, many with commodious built-in storage. Just make certain that the available floor space will accommodate the pulled-down item.

I still remember the nightly ritual when I visited Grandmother's tiny efficiency apartment on Chicago's North Side, watching her comb and braid her long, white hair prior to our moving her living room furniture in order to make space for Murphy.

I asked Barbara Smith of Manhattan how she would utilize emptynest space in order to make the one lately departed for college or marriage still feel a welcome guest. Smith hosts the syndicated weekend television show "B. Smith With Style," which she says is "really about the way we live our lives."

"You preserve elements of the child's room," she said, "maybe an armoire or a dresser, or maybe it's a certain color that's now way off the beaten path. You can pull in new elements that either brighten up that color or tone it down; but it still reminds the Child, "Oh, yes. That's still my room."

Even though your child's closet may have been converted into a home office, Smith recommends retaining items that can be pulled from storage and reintroduced when a visit is imminent. Speaking of beds, retaining twins or doubles is a matter for consideration providing the room is large enough. If not, today's marketplace features a variety of attractive daybeds, with or without trundles. Corner groups may also provide an option.

These suggestions assume you don't intend to become a full-time office worker in this "room of one's own." Before you begin your conversion, you must consider the possibilities to be found at Ikea, Bed, Bath and Beyond, The Container Store, or Hold It!

Hold it! has inexpensive and attractive home-office components manufactured by Inter Metro. Made of black metal or chrome, a desk/hutch combination costs $199-$269, a file cart, $89.96-$119.95; a return/credenza, $116.96-$139.95; and a printer stand $119-$139.

Hold it! also stocks a tiny, eyecatching computer desk made in New Zealand by Criterion. It is only 33 inches wide and costs $259.

How to store what you've been asked not to throw away presents an easily solved problem. A trip to The Container Store, Wal Mart or K Mart will give you lots of ideas, from immense covered totes to under-the bed containers. These provide safe, water and bugproof storage until your little darling comes calling for his/her stuff.

Can't reach a compromise agreement with the youngest child, who's moving on to other digs? Easy. Sell the house. I did. My daughter never forgave me. Even with her own furniture and a bedroom painted the same color as before, Laura never felt comfortable in the new house.

That was long ago. Married 16 years, Laura has her childhood furniture in her guest room. Most prized is the headboard made of hardwood shipping crates by her father. When I stay in her home, my clothes go into the dresser that belonged to my sister when I was a child. It's a comfort to me and makes me, now independent, feel welcome.

I've down-sized so much there's no longer room for Laura to sleep amid the bookcases, mainly because I can't bear to part with my uncle John's desk, circa 1910. It is immense and would never fit into the closet.

Allergic To Remodeling?

Those springtime home improvement projects can leave you sniffling and sneezing, according to a Loyola University Medical Center allergy specialist.

Mary C. Tobin, director of allergy/immunology at the Chicago based center, says that unless work spaces are well ventilated and precautions taken to prevent dust, wood particles and other allergens from circulating, family members could experience sinus congestion, headaches and even difficulty breathing. She calls the condition "renovation sinusitis."

If the remodeling is done by professionals, Tobin recommends that you insist that they make every effort to contain the irritants by closing off ducts in the rooms where work is being done, using fans and air filters, and cleaning work areas with wet rags and mops daily.

Do-it-yourselfers should wear face masks and avoid being exposed to particles for extended time periods, Tobin says. (CNS)

Hardwood floors are one of the most popular choices for kitchen remodeling. The bold graining of the prefinished oak floor, a Mojave Wheat colored Longstrip floor from Harris-Tarkett, complements the clean lines and light tones of the kitchen cabinets. The easy-care, no-wax UltraBriteTM finish is warranted for 10 years. In addition, this floor can be sanded and refinished up to three times.

Get the FAQS: Answers to the Most Frequently Asked Questions About Hardwood Floors

If you love the look of a hardwood floor, but aren't sure it's the right choice for your remodeling needs, you are not alone. Many consumers, particularly those shopping for the first time, visit their flooring retailer armed with questions.

"It's understandable," says Bill Clossin, director of marketing for Harris-Tarkett Inc., a Tennessee-based manufacturer of hardwood flooring products. "There are more hardwood products on the market than ever before."

Clossin suggests that most consumers have four key questions: "Is hardwood flooring the right choice for my ... (insert any room here)?" "Is it easy to maintain?" "Can I refinish the floor?" and, "Can I afford a hardwood floor?"

"The short answer to each question is yes," says Clossin. He offers some general answers to the most-asked questions.

Suitability

Hardwood flooring is appropriate for any room in the home, from basement to attic, except a full bathroom, according to Clossin. "The variety of species, colors and installation options means there's a product for any interior design need," he says. "Add the environmental benefits, and wood is a great choice for the whole house."

As an all natural material, wood flooring is naturally hypoallergenic. There are no fibers or chemical residues. Thanks to precise milling technology, the planks of a hardwood floor fit tightly together. Therefore, they do not trap dust, dirt, pollen and other airborne particles that can collect in other floor coverings like wall-to-wall carpeting, for example.

In addition, there are installation techniques, like "floating" or stapling systems, that do not require nails or fullspread adhesives for a permanent installation. A "floating" hardwood floor usually can be installed over most existing floors, thus eliminating the attendant mess and potential problem of airborne particles when removing an old floor.

"There are enough materials that contribute to indoor air pollution," says Clossin. "Flooring doesn't have to be one of them."

Care and Maintenance

Most of today's prefinished hardwood floors feature several layers of UV-cured polyurethane applied at the factory. These finishes are tough and durable and because they do not require waxing, they are very easy to maintain.

How easy is easy? Clossin sums it up in two steps - vacuum and dust mop. As with any floor covering, wipe up spills and drips immediately with a damp cloth. Vacuum regularly to remove the tracked-in dust, dirt and grime that can scratch the finish. Next, clean the entire floor regularly with a recommended cleaner. Harris-Tarkett's Crystal Clear Cleaner comes in a handy spray bottle. Spray lightly over the floor and mop with a dust mop. For tougher spots like sticky food spills, rubber heel marks and other foreign substances, use the cleaner and rub with a soft cloth.

Restoring or Refinishing

"Consumers want to know whether they can refinish a prefinished floor, particularly the popular engineered floors, which feature a multilayer construction," says Clossin.

All hardwood floors, whether solid or engineered, can be refinished. However, when properly maintained, a hardwood floor will retain its finish for many, many years. Depending upon the need, there are two primary options available with hardwood that are not feasible with other types, like the laminate products.

The easiest and most cost-effective way to restore a like-new look is a method called screen and recoat. Instead of completely removing the existing finish, the flooring contractor screens or roughs-up the surface and adds a coat of polyurethane. This procedure can be done in a day.

As for refinishing, the exact number of times you can refinish your floor depends upon the total thickness of the product, as in the case of a solid product, or the thickness of the top layer of premium hardwood, in the case of engineered product. Solid products and some engineered products can be refinished up to three times. Engineered products with thinner top layers can be refinished one or two times.

Refinishing is a multistep process that can take up to four days, depending upon the area being refinished, and is more costly than a screen and recoat. "Nevertheless, it's certainly more economical than buying a new floor," Clossin adds.

Long-Lasting Value

To determine the real cost-and-value equation of a flooring product, compare the initial installed cost with the life cycle of the floor, or when it will have to be replaced.

When it comes to installed cost, today's hardwood flooring products are very competitively priced when compared with other options. The savings are obvious when considered over the long term. Most floor coverings have to be replaced every seven to nine years. Hardwood flooring can last a lifetime.

Hardwood floors increase the value of a home immediately and enhance the resale value. "Studies conducted by realtors confirm that because houses with hardwood floors always are in demand, homeowners usually can get a nice return on their hardwood flooring investment," says Clossin.

Tips For Painting Paneling

Question: The walls of our family room are finished with dark, outdated paneling. We would like to paint the paneling a light color, but we're afraid the paint won't stick to the smooth, shiny surface. Any suggestions on how to go about this?

Answer: According to the experts at Wm. Zinsser & Co., a leading manufacturer of paint primer-sealers, painting paneling is not as difficult as you might think. The secret is to use proper surface-preparation products and techniques.

Finish paints will not stick to most paneling surface materials without the aid of a tough, durable, adhesion-promoting primer. The right primer bonds to the smooth, shiny surface, forming a sound base for the topcoat. Zinsser makes an adhesion-promoting primer called B-I-N Primer-Sealer that's ideal for painting paneling. B-I-N is unique because it's a shellac-based product. It has tenacious adhesion to most glossy-finished surfaces, like Formica, plastic laminate, and photographic or real wood paneling. Best of all, no prior sanding or deglossing agents are required.

This primer-sealer also will seal porous surfaces, like new wood, and seal off knots and sappy streaks in knotty pine so they don't bleed through and ruin the paint job. B-I-N is white-pigmented to block out dark stains and colors, and it dries to a smooth, full, even film that makes the topcoat look great. It dries rapidly, ready for topcoating in an hour. And, it cures fully in just a few hours, providing a tough, abrasion-resistant film.

Before priming, it's important to clean any contaminants, like dust, dirt and grease, from the surface. Zinsser recommends wiping the surface with a clean rag saturated with mineral spirits (paint thinner). Next, wash the surface with a 50-50 solution of household ammonia and water. Allow the clean surface to dry for approximately 30 minutes. Apply one coat of B-I-N Primer-Sealer with a roller, brush, pad or sprayer, and let dry for an hour. If high humidity conditions are present, allow longer to make sure the primer has dried thoroughly before applying a topcoat. Follow the primer with one or two coats of a top-quality finish paint. (Tip: You can have the primer tinted by your retailer to match the color of the topcoat, which can help save on the amount of finish paint needed for the job.)

B-I-N can be found at paint stores, hardware stores and home centers across the country. For more information, visit Zinsser's Web site at http://-www.zinsser.com, or call (732) 469-4367.

King." To find some, you may have to visit Target, which has exclusive rights to many popular cartoonish images.

Of course, such visions of childhood can be fleeting; many may be passe before your child hits the teen years and is ready for another redo. Although you may have a high regard for the educationally blessed Big Bird and his cohorts who live on "Sesame Street," and you may adore the Beatrix Potter characters from your own youth, try telling that to a 6-year-old with Dalmatians on the brain. Remember, it's his childhood, not yours.

When my children were small and walls were to be covered with new material, be it wallpaper or paneling, we always allowed them to write messages on the walls for future owners of the home, or even for themselves, should they uncover the walls 20 years hence. This was always a source of delight to them. Writing on walls was never allowed otherwise.

FURNITURE

In advance of your foray for furniture, catalogs and newspaper ads may be examined and discussed. You may invite your children to look through magazines and show you what they like.

The furniture store, where nothing much has changed except the prices in the last 30 years, can be a potential challenge without advance planning. You don't want your offspring selecting top-of-the-line country oak when your budget allows for pine.

My initial destination was Levitz, where I found a broad range of children's furnishings in a broad range of prices. A day later, I visited Ethan Allen, where I found a more limited range of lovely quality stuff, not too much more dear.

Levitz's top-of-the-line bunk bed seemed to be Stanley's at $999.99. Other manufacturers provided options that ranged down to $299.99. For the first time I found bunk double beds, although I can't imagine their purpose, outside of families with multiple, multiple births, a large number of children or the cramped quarters of a cabin.

Other attractive items seem to be twin-size beds with storage drawers under the mattress, for as low as $249.

Sex-appropriate sets still abound, with white floral motif for the girls and heavier stuff for the guys. Whatever turns your pre-teen's or teen's crank. Certainly there are chests, desks, desk corners, etc., to match. Go wild.

Redesigning a bedroom with your child can be a fun-filled collaboration from start to finish, a real impetus to creative thinking and problem solving, and possibly even a bonding, memorable experience.

Important elements to consider are cost and future needs, both yours and your child's. Consider your child's opportunity for growth through this experience. Make certain you establish the ground rules in advance of your initial exploration. Patience. Fortitude. Good fortune.

Good luck!

SPRING/SUMMER HOMEFACTS

Painting pointers

The onset of warm weather brings painters out of the woodwork. The key to a good paint job, though, is the prep work.

■ Proper surface preparation is critical. A good power washing should be done (mix 2/3 cup TSP, 1 quart liquid laundry detergent and 1 quart bleach in 1 gallon water), followed by a rinse. Do not blast water upward at clapboard siding as this forces unwanted water into the wall.

■ Scrape off as much old paint as possible. If hiring a professional, ask if he or she can burn off the old paint, leaving nothing but bare wood. Caulk or putty cracks and gouges.

■ Primer always should be used, especially if there is bare wood. There are primers that allow you to apply latex paints over oil-based.

■ Two top coats usually are advised.

■ Buy quality paint. Most experts recommend acrylic latex paints instead of oil paints. Latex paint "breathes," allowing moisture to escape, and doesn't feed mildew.

■ Do not paint in direct sunlight, nor when below 50°F.

Take a New Approach to Vinyl Siding

Have you had enough of scraping, painting and staining your home? Have you been thinking that a good solution to your maintenance headaches would be vinyl siding - but you haven't wanted to give up the color choices and luxurious detail of wood?

For decades, vinyl siding had white or pastel shades with utilitarian trim - narrow little J-channels and corner posts that added nothing to the exterior. That's why you've been waiting.

Well, you've waited long enough. Now, there is a rich variety of new vinyl siding and decorative trim products that enable homeowners to enjoy exteriors that look like handcrafted wood - what one company, CertainTeed, has named Vinyl CarpentryTM. And, it's worth finding a remodeler or builder who is wise in its ways.

VINYL CARPENTRY can make the difference between an average house and a gorgeous home. Decorative trim accentuates the lines of a house, creates a more woodlike appearance, simplifies installation and gives a home more curb appeal.

What Is Vinyl Carpentry?

Vinyl Garpentry combines new siding colors - a wide range that includes dark colors for siding - plus a growing selection of decorative trim. Now, you can design with extra-wide trim for doors and windows, extra-wide corner posts, and special details like rosette corner blocks or crown molding over doors and windows. You even can use historic-looking half-round shingles.

These materials provide today's homeowners with a wider, more versatile selection of shapes and textures, allowing the application of vinyl siding to a greater variety of architectural situations. Change the siding style as an accent in gables, or apply a contrasting lineal as a frieze board to call attention to the lines of a home. You also could add the rich, authentic look of high-quality cedar clapboards with a semi-transparent stain on the sides and back of a stucco home to give it more character.

Custom Home Styling

With Vinyl Carpentry, you can create a one-of-a-kind home exterior without the upkeep you'd expect. For example, MonogramTM siding from CertainTeed gives you styles like clapboard and shiplap and offers the industry's broadest color palette, including painted-look solids or semi-transparent stained appearance blends. Another option is CertainTeed Siding's Cedar Impressions\R\ shingles which offer the look of cedar perfection shingles or half-rounds. Combined with decorative special trim, you can create a home exterior that is all your own.

As homeowners embrace two- and three-color exteriors, Vinyl Carpentry also offers a unique solution to the challenges that these color combinations present. First, it completely eliminates painstaking painting of architectural details. Vinyl products retain their good looks and are virtually maintenance-free.

Second, vinyl materials solve the dilemma of endless experimentation with paint chips and samples. CertainTeed designers have carefully assembled a system to allow you to visualize both contrasting colors and design.

Tools To Help You Choose

To help in the planning process, CertainTeed has created two user-friendly tools that will be of help: an interactive computer software program called VinylLinkTM and a comprehensive book called the StyleGuideTM. They let you see the all the color and style variables - applied to a home like yours - without leaving the comfort of your living room.

The computer software contains an electronic reference guide that allows you to see any number of siding color and style combinations. You can change your choices as often as you like. In 10 minutes, you can see dozens of siding combinations with the click of a mouse. So, decision making isn't stressful - it's actually fun.

If you prefer, the CertainTeed StyleGuide offers the same selection criteria in an interactive book. There are even inserts for stone, brick or stucco trim - to make your "test" home more closely resemble your own. In addition, the book includes basic color guidelines, decorative trim options and product availability.

Worth the Investment

A recent market-research study revealed that the perceived value of a home increases when it has a Vinyl Carpentry exterior - so adding one actually can increase your home's resale value. And, the difference in cost between materials for a plain vinyl exterior and a Vinyl Carpentry masterpiece may be as little as $200 for an average size home. Imagine - a maintenance-free exterior with wide trim, decorative siding and details for almost the same cost as an ordinary vinyl siding job with unattractive J-channels.

A Lasting Solution To Roofing Worries

Q: After just a few years, my roof shingles are curled, cracked and stained with fungus. I'm ready for something better, and I've heard that metal roofing eliminates these problems. Should I consider a metal roof?

A: Yes. Metal roofing is a great alternative to the common problems you're experiencing with traditional roofing shingles. Metal roofing does cost more upfront than typical shingles or tile, but it's actually cheaper because it lasts many times longer, requires less maintenance, and provides a better appearance (and greater value) for your home. Metal roofing has advantages in every climate, especially in areas with threats of fires or airborne sparks, severe storms, or extreme heat or cold. Some metal roofs even can be installed directly over your existing roof, preventing the added cost and mess of a tear-off.

Q: Won't a metal roof make my house hotter in the summer?

A: It depends on the metal. Steel absorbs and transfers the heat of the sun, but not all metals do. Aluminum, for example, reflects radiant heat; that's why NASA uses aluminum to shield satellites in space, where there's no atmosphere to scatter the heat of the sun.

One metal roofing manufacturer had its aluminum roofing product, called Rustic Shingle, tested by the Florida Solar Energy Center. The center found it to reduce attic heat gain by up to 34 percent more than traditional roofing materials. This can add up to big savings on your utility bills. If you decide to use a metal roof that is not aluminum, you will need to install a radiant-heat barrier in your attic to get any energy savings.

Q: I don't like the "industrial" look of flat metal roofing with vertical lines. Are there alternatives?

A: You are describing "standing seam" roofing, so named for the vertical seams that stand up between the panels. And, yes, there are many alternatives. Most popular are the products that look like natural wood shakes, tile or slate. These offer a traditional, yet distinctive, appearance with all the benefits of metal roofing.

Q: How will I know that I'm buying a quality metal roof?

A: A quality metal roof will have a Kynar\R\ PVDF or HylarTM PVDF finish, known to architects and engineers as the best for lasting color and protection. Also, a metal roof should be designed to allow for expansion and contraction caused by temperature changes. For informative literature write to Metal Shakes, Classic Products Inc., P.O. Box 701, Piqua, OH 45356.

It's Time For Home Improvement

With the arrival of warmer weather, homeowners across the country are taking stock of potential home repair, renovation and construction projects. Some will require a substantial investment of time and money; others will require minimal resources - but whichever the case, the rewards can be sizeable.

This is a great time to build a new deck, re-brick the patio, landscape the yard or apply a fresh coat of paint to a weather-worn garage. You'll enjoy the results throughout the summer, and the value of your property will be enhanced, as well.

Opportunities also abound for interior improvements. While you're packing winter clothes up for storage and once again bringing out spring and summer wear, closets can be reorganized and tidied up for greater ease of use; investing some additional time now can increase your efficiency later on.

You even may be inspired to undertake a thorough spring cleaning. Washing the windows, scrubbing the winter grime from the floors and taking note of any minor household repairs that may be necessary, are good beginnings for a springtime overhaul of your home.

Above all, plan ahead. If you're hiring a contractor, you'll need to explain exactly what you want to have done. And, if you're doing the work yourself, there's no reason not to be fully prepared for the job you're undertaking.

Surprising New Secrets to Sell or Buy Your Home and Make Big Money

Throwing away thousands of unnecessary dollars when you sell or buy a home is crazy, claims consumer advocate and author Bob Easter. "It's really unbelievable how easy it is to avoid making costly mistakes. Most home buyers and sellers never realize how much money they're losing," he says.

For 20 years, this real-estate broker has been teaching consumers the inside tricks about home buying and selling. Knowing the 10 most critical items to fix before you put your home on the market can put big money in your wallet. The more attractive your home shows, the more likely it will sell quickly. Fixing certain items can bring a larger return than others, and some items really don't cost any money, just some work.

There are at least 14 costly mistakes all home sellers make when selling their home, and Easter is quick to point out those crucial errors in his book, "The 14 Home-Selling Secrets, The Mistakes Everyone Makes" ($14.95 from 1-800-848-5593). The No. 1 mistake is overpricing, and Author Reveals Top 10 Items To Fix Before You Sell, 10 Tips Before You Buy.

Easter explains with great care how to price your home to sell quickly, yet receive the highest price possible.

Robert Bruss, Tribune Media Services syndicated columnist, says "This very realistic book is filled with practical sales advice for home sellers. His advice is practical, honest and often against the best interests of his profession."

Two of the biggest mistakes owner's make is that they:

1) list their home with the agent who quotes the highest sale price. The agent knows the owner already has an emotional attachment to the property, along with a predetermined and unrealistic price. The agent throws out a high listing price, and the owner signs.

2) sign a listing agreement without protecting their interest. Listing agreements are written to tie the owner to the real estate company without giving an accounting of the exact services.

"If you fail to demand certain actions from the broker before you sign the listing agreement, you lose all of your rights and power," says Easter.

Judy Rose, Detroit Free Press, says, "The 14 Home-Selling Secrets" is the best little straightforward house-selling book we have seen ... It's full of gems of inside information. Easter tells you what any seller should know."

"Before you pick up the phone to call a real-estate broker to help you sell or buy a home you need to know the secrets of saving money, time and undue stress," says Easter.

There are many hidden traps of buying a home. "Paying too much for a home is one pitfall home buyers must learn to avoid," says Easter, who also wrote "Home Buying Power: Inside Tips, Tricks and Trends for Buying the Home of Your Dreams"($12.95). "Another major mistake is not knowing the 48 advantages and disadvantages of buying a new or resell home. A smart shopper needs to know what they are."

Mark Victor Hansen, New York Times best-selling author of "Chicken Soup for the Soul," says, "Protect your investment by learning the best advice and wisdom from a leading consumer advocate. Easter zeroes in on money-saving tips to protect home buyers now and in the future."

Tips Offered For Designing Home Theatre

Designing a home theater for your abode? Here are some things to discuss with your contractor:

- Sound control. You want to isolate the room's sound from the rest of the house, and you also want to ensure quality of sound within the room.
- Walls. Use a muted color to minimize reflections.
- Seating. You'll want lots of permanent, comfortable seating for the home theater experience.
- Lighting. Avoid windows that allow a lot of direct light, which causes reflections. Use recessed lighting.
- Kitchen area. Consider building in a snack bar.
- Video, sound and audio decision. You might want help from specialists to decide how to handle these aspects of the home theater. (CNS)

New Mildewproof, Waterproof Paint Helps Protect Basement

DAMP BASEMENTS can be cured with new Mildewproof Waterproof Cement Paint from Bondex. Ideal for basement walls, the paint is guaranteed to stop water and the formation of mildew, and it has been tested to withstand more than five pounds of hydrostatic pressure.

Do you have a damp basement? Problems with water, humidity and mildew? The folks at Bondex International have the answer. Bondex has introduced new Mildewproof Waterproof Cement Paint, a ready-mixed, high-performance coating with a unique triple-action formula that mildewproofs, waterproofs and beautifies interior and exterior concrete surfaces.

The formula contains special agents that inhibit the growth of mildew on the surface of the paint film, and it penetrates to seal porous concrete from within for maximum protection against water seepage.

Ideal for basement walls, the paint is guaranteed to stop water and the formation of mildew, and it has been tested to withstand more than five pounds of hydrostatic pressure. The paint also reduces radon--gas penetration.

This new cement paint comes in a superwhite formula that can be tinted by your retailer to match your decor. It is fast-drying and water-based for easy clean-up. It may be used on interior or exterior concrete, stucco, brick, cement block and similar masonry surfaces, both above and below grade. The paint can be applied by brush, roller or sprayer. Other waterproofing products, like Bondex Concrete Cleaning & Etching Compound and Quick Plug Hydraulic Cement, are recommended for surface preparation to ensure maximum cleaning, patching and waterproofing results.

For further information about products for basement waterproofing, call the Bondex Consumer Hotline, (800) 225-7522, or visit the company's Web site at http://www.bondex.com.

Combine Practicality and Style When Making Carpet Choices

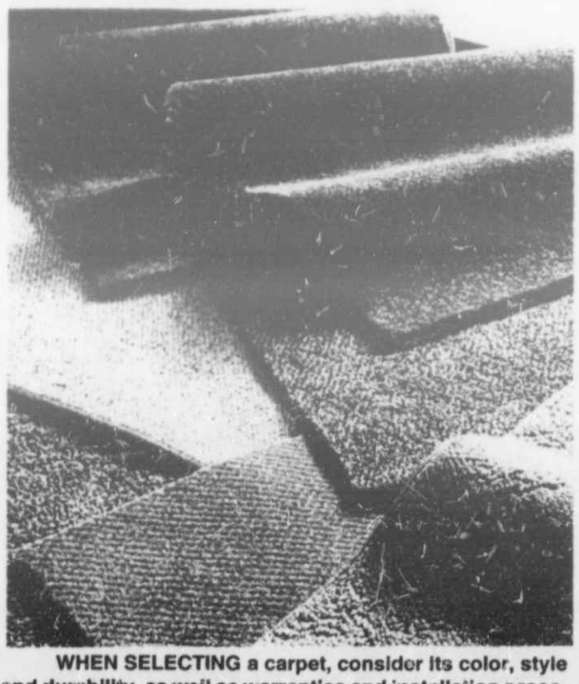
Whether they just want to give a room a new look or it's a necessary home improvement, selecting carpeting is a challenge most people face at one time or another. However, the choice is not as easy as it would seem. Not only is carpeting a decor decision, serving as a backdrop to furniture and artwork, it also plays a practical role, subjected to muddy feet and enthusiastic pets. According to Vickie Ward, national home decor manager for Sears, the following points should be considered when carpet is selected:

Color and style: Consider the functionality of the room in question. Will it be a high-traffic area accessible to pets and children? Or, will it be a formal room, used only for entertaining and holidays. No matter what the fabrication of the carpet, a lighter carpet is going to be more susceptible to stains. However, while she notes that deeper colors are a wonderful design element, if the high-traffic room you are decorating calls for lighter carpeting, you needn't despair. Ward recommends looking at the many fashionable choices in textured and blended carpets that can give you the look you want without the worry.

Durability: For most applications, according to Ward, nylon is the carpet of choice. It is prevalent because it combines a resiliency not found in other man-made fibers and is more soil-resistant than polypropylene, another popular choice in home carpeting. Nylon does require stain treatment, but once it is treated, it has stain resistance that is comparable to polypropylene. Examples of popular nylon carpets include brands like DuPont Stainmaster, Anso Crushresister and WearDated. A different fiber, poly-propylene is often used in "Berber" (loop) carpets. It is inherently stain-resistant, has a slightly lower soil resistance than nylon, and is slightly more prone to matting or crushing.

Warranties: In considering warranties, Ward says that there are two key questions to ask: Who is providing the coverage, and is it valuable and reasonable? There are four types of warranties for carpeting: wear warranty, stain or stain/soil warranty, crush/mat warranty, and installation warranty. A wear warranty is only valid if the carpet literally falls apart, which almost never happens, according to Ward. Be sure to take note, with both stain and/or soil warranties and crush/mat warranties, often what is excluded from the policy is more important than what is included. An installation warranty is important in case, at a later time, the carpet wrinkles or becomes unattached. Some installation warranties are backed by the retailer. Sears, for example, has a lifetime warranty on installation.

Installation: One of the key carpet-purchase problems cited by consumers is additional costs at the time of installation. In order to get an accurate quote and guard against surprise charges, Ward recommends an in-home consultation and estimate based specifically on the dimensions of your rooms, including stairs, and warns against quotes based on estimated measurements. She notes that it is also important to get a written description of what is included in the installation. Can you expect the installers to pull up existing carpeting, move and replace your furniture, or clean up and vacuum the newly installed carpet? Also, are they the cheapest installers or the most qualified ones? Proper installation can be the most important part of the job, says Ward. So, it is very important to check the installation warranty.



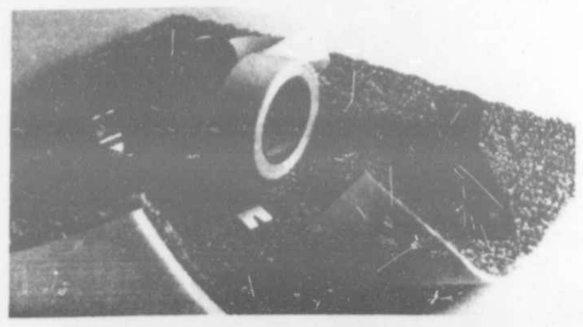
WHEN SELECTING a carpet, consider its color, style and durability, as well as warranties and installation procedures.

When It Comes To New Carpet, Don't Overlook What Goes Underneath

If you're about to invest in new carpet, you've got a lot to think about. Choosing a color, selecting a style, deciding how much you want to spend are all things you'll naturally consider. However, don't overlook a very important factor of performance: carpet padding.

Think about it. The padding you choose is all that stands between your beautiful, new carpet and the cold, hard floor. A good carpet cushion makes your carpet feel more luxurious and keeps it looking good over the years.

If you're a budding do-it-yourselfer, installing carpet with a separate cushion can be tricky and requires special tools and skills. Instead, consider buying carpet with attached carpet cushion. Carpets with an attached pad, like KangaBackTM from Textile Rubber, are engineered to provide years of resilient support. It won't crack or break down as old black foam-rubber backs once did.



Lightweight and easy to handle, KangaBackTM attached carpet cushion makes carpet installation a snap using common household tools.

Made of 100-percent premium polyurethane, attached cushion makes your new carpet more comfortable and last longer. Lightweight and easy to handle, it's easy to install, with no stretching or expensive tools required. With attached cushion, do-it-yourself carpet installation is easier and faster than painting or wallpapering a room.

Attached carpet pad is available on a wide selection of residential carpets manufactured by U.S. carpet producers. So, ask your floor-covering retailer for your favorite style with attached carpet cushion.

Book Unlocks Decorating Secrets And Techniques

Interior designer Arthur Lewis doesn't think the world needs another coffee table interior design book. So, he wrote a practical how-to book that reveals the secrets he's gathered during his thirty-year career.

"My 100 Secrets of Interior Design" is an easy-to-understand book that takes the reader by the hand and leads them through the entire decorating process - from a one bedroom apartment to an entire home. Some of the sections in this fun-to-read book cover subjects like, how to hang pictures properly, how to arrange furniture, and how to create traffic and conversation areas.

Sprinkled among the 62 chapters are secrets like these:

* When arranging three accessories of different sizes, use the "triangle approach" to balanced asymmetry.

* A room can handle as many patterns as you like, so long as one pattern is dominant. However, only choose one floral pattern and pair it with a stripe and small geometric pattern.

* Before choosing a fabric, invest in a yard, throw it over the sofa and live with it for a couple of weeks. See if you still like the fabric after that amount of time.

* The same holds true for wall colors. A test piece of drywall, painted and leaning against a wall can be an invaluable tool that saves you time, money and anguish.

The book contains color pages of decorated room examples, as well as color-keyed diagrams explaining traffic patterns, conversation areas and focal points. It even contains ready-drawn floor plans and scaled furniture cutouts for creating floor layouts.

"My 100 Secrets of Interior Design," published by The RD Group, covers everything you need to know about interior design, including how to measure a room, accent lighting, wall and floor coverings, furnishings and accessories, and more. The book is $19.95, plus shipping, and is available in bookstores or by calling 1-800-648-4332.

Installing deadlock may protect home from robbers

By John O'Connell
Copley News Service

Don't bet your life on the typical entry door lock. Most aren't reliable, experts advise.

I can get into most homes within a minute without noise and without any sign of breakage," said Tom Whitehurst, a carpenter. "With an ordinary lock, you simply grab the knob and turn hard. It will unlock."

Locksmith Bob Doran agreed.

"With most entry door locks, I can be in your house faster than you can by using a key," said Doran, who co-owns a lock and safe shop. "Most residential key-in-knob locks are too easily compromised."

What you need is a good deadbolt, the two men agree.

"Deadbolt locks provide more security and protection," Whitehurst said. "You can't twist a dead bolt to open like you can with a regular door lock. I have a deadbolt lock on every entry door in my house."

Instaliing a deadbolt is not diffcult the men said.

"Anybody with a little bit of patience can do it, if they carefully follow the instructions that come with the lock," Whitehurst said. "It takes me 30 minutes to an hour to install a deadbolt in a door that has never had one. But I wouldn't recommend a person who has never used a hammer or chisel trying it."

Also, foam-core steel doors are difficult to drill and may be better left to the pros. A typical installation fee is about $50.

Deadbolts come with one or two cylinders. A two-cylinder model unlocks with a key both inside and out. A single-cylinder lock opens with a key from the outside and a thumb turn on the inside.

If there is glass in the door or near the door, you might consider a two-cylinder lock," Doran said.

"That prevents someone from breaking the glass and reaching in and opening the lock with the thumb turn. But there is a disadvantage to a two-cylinder deadbolt lock.

"Keep in mind you need a key to open it from the inside. You have to know where your key is if you wake up at 3 a.m. and there is a fire in the house. It's something to consider when buying a two-cylinder deadbolt lock."

The price of a deadbolt depends a lot on its workmanship. In Doran's shop, deadbolt locks range in price from $16 to $177. His top-of-the-line lock is Maxum by Mededco. It is pick resistant, drill resistant and reinforced with a steel strike box.

If it's a wooden door, you would break the door and/or door frame before you would ever damage that lock," Doran said.

A good quality lock can last 50 years, the locksmith said. Although failures seem sudden, lock problems develop gradually, Doran said. Over time, locks age and wear out. Both the key and lock pins are made of soft metal, he said.

"A duplicate key improperly made can cause loads of problems," Doran said. "If the depth or spacing is off, the key will cause the pins to dig into the cylinder wall and eventually ruin the lock."

Often a problem isn't with the lock.

"The most common lock problem is misalignment," Doran said. "The latch bolt will not engage the strike plate properly. That can be caused from poor installation, or it can be from the house settling or the frame caused from poor installation, or it can be from the house settling or the frame warping. You just have to correct the basic door problem, then make any adjustments required to realign the latch bolt and strike plate."

INSTALLING A DEADBOLT

Installing a deadbolt is not difficult and can be done by most homeowners comfortable with handling drills, hammers and chisels. Instructions vary from lock to lock, but there are basic installation steps. Dimensions of hole sizes and drill sizes were omitted due to the variances from manufacturer to manufacturer.

Tools required:

Tape measure, pencil, power drill, drill bits, 2-inch 6d common nail, hole saw, hammer, chisel, Phillips screwdriver, scratch awl and utility knife.

Steps:

1. To mark position of lock, tape template (found in the lock manufacturer's installation instructions) the required distance above the center of the doorknob and mark centers of lock and bolt holes on door.

2. Drill 1/8-inch pilot holes in door for lock set hole and latch bolt hole. Drill lock set hole about halfway through door. Then finish driving from the other side to prevent splintering. Mark location for strike plate hole in doorjamb by pressing a 2-inch 6d common nail from inside lock set hole through pilot hole until nail makes an indentation in doorjamb. Remove nail.

3. Wedge door open. Using spade bit, drill latch bolt hole in door edge, and continue until bit drills into lock hole. Using same spade bit, drill strike hole where it was previously marked in doorjamb with nail. Drill hole through doorjamb to a depth of 1 1/8 inches.

4. Place latch bolt in hole and position faceplate. With pencil, trace latch face in door edge and chisel out to proper depth so faceplate is flush with door edge.

5. Install deadbolt assembly in prepared holes in door.

6. Install strike plate assembly in jamb. Mark outline with pencil, score with utility knife and chisel out to proper depth so strike plate is flush with jamb. Fasten with screws provided.

SPRING/SUMMER HOMEFACTS

The fine art of flushing

Almost 25 percent of U.S. homes have on-site waste disposal systems (septic tanks). A little precautionary care will reduce repairs and benefit the environment.

- Do not allow excessive water from roof drains and sump pumps into the septic tank.
- Do not enter a septic tank yourself. Toxic gases given off by sewage may kill you.
- Do not drive over a septic tank. Don't plant trees near it or in the drain field.
- Septic tanks are regulated by local health officials. Obtain permits when making repairs (or use a licensed contractor).
- Do not allow backwash from water softeners down the drain.
- Avoid harsh chemicals, which may kill the bacteria in your tank (paints, varnishes, thinners, waste oil, pesticides, photo chemicals).
- Labels on cleansers should say if they are safe for septic systems.
- Do not use septic system additives. Flushing a mixture of brown sugar and yeast will activate a septic tank.
- Do not flush diapers, paper towels, dental floss, coffee grounds, cat box litter, cigarette butts or waste oils and fats.

Make Small Rooms More Spacious

There's no need to feel trapped if your house has a small living room. Rather than barely furnishing it, there are ways to give the room a spacious look. The following decorating tricks, courtesy of Leslie Linsley, author of "Leslie Linsley's 15-Minute Decorating Ideas" (St. Martin's Griffin), will help make a small living room look larger.

Add mirrors - Mirrors visually expand any space. If the room is too rectangular and seems too narrow, arrange the furniture in a square shape away from the walls. Mirror the narrow wall to reflect the furniture arrangement.

Don't overcrowd - Choose a few good furniture pieces with clean lines and take away clutter. One large piece can be the focal point of the room. This piece can be a sofa, armoire or even two love seats opposite a large coffee table.

Color coordinate - Use one color on all furniture, rugs and walls. To avoid being monotonous, select different shades and textures of the chosen color. Use a contrasting color, like a darker shade of the natural, for all wood trim. Then, add paintings or prints to the walls. One large painting makes a greater impact than a group of small paintings.

Arrangements - How the furniture is arranged makes a big difference. If you want to create seating for six in a small living room, you might consider a love seat in place of a full-size sofa. Add two medium-size cushioned chairs and two small occasional wood chairs to fit on either side of a window or desk. These chairs can be pulled over to become part of an intimate seating arrangement when needed.

Make the room feel homey - A homey feeling can be achieved with the use of earth tones, honey--colored woods, a soft-textured blanket over the sofa and a pile of books placed on a table.

Is your new house going to be able to keep the "Outside Out" and the "Inside In"?

If building a Home, Workshop, etc, is in your future plans, why not "Plan for the future"?

Did you ever wonder why the structural integrity of your new house may seem fairly sound but deep down you have this thing haunting you of having paid $100,000 for this lovely dwelling but you feel all this cold air coming in wherever you have electrical outlets and window edgings? And what's even worse, is the air penetration through the wall itself.

Did you ever wonder why your goal is to insulate well and use house wrap to get a good seal, then turn around with the concept of "This house needs to breathe in order to prevent condensation problems?"

Wouldn't you like to come closer than ever before to isolating the interior of your next Home, Workshop, etc. to the outside elements: sound, cold, heat and moisture?

At Panelcraft, the answer is Expanded Polystyrene (EPS). EPS is safe and can contain a lifetime of energy efficiency. Refrigeration engineers adapted the EPS method years ago when they started using it to line refrigerator and freezer walls.

At Panelcraft we offer the EPS alone for remodeling and conventional construction, but we've also gone a step further in combining EPS with various types of plywood, taking it through a laminating process, thus creating Structural Insulated Panels (SIP) of various specifications, which are then used for floors, roofs, ceilings and walls, virtually every aspect of your project.

FAMILY LEFT HOMELESS - A fire believed to have been caused by combustible materials placed too close to an electric heater resulted in homelessness for a family of six in Mtn. Lake Park Monday night. The blaze broke out in a bedroom of a townhouse unit at Pinewoods Apartments and quickly spread throughout the unit. Gary and Debbie Wilt and their four children escaped unharmed, but lost all of their possessions, which were not covered by insurance. Some 55 volunteer fire fighters from several local departments brought the fire under control quickly and, with the help of a fire wall separating the adjacent unit, kept all of the damage confined in the Wilt apartment. Three emergency service workers were slightly injured and were treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The Pinewoods complex is owned by Garrettland Realty. See story. Gosnell Company To Build County's Visitor Center

By action of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners on Tuesday, the contract for the construction of the Garrett County Visitors Information Center has been awarded to Gosnell Construction, a local building company. Work on the new center, which is to be built along Rt. 219 near McHenry, is to begin as soon as possible, according to Gary Mullich, head of the Garrett County General Services Department.

Gosnell Construction's bid of $708,334 was the lowest of four submitted, but it exceeded highest amount the county commissioners wished to pay for the building's construction. The commissioners had hoped to keep the amount between $550,000 and $600,000. Mullich said he went back to the plan after receiving the Gosnell bid and either reduced or eliminated items to bring the total cost to about $608,000.

The cost-reducing modifications included a variety of deletions, such as the elimination of the flagpole, some curbing and paving (to be done later by county crews), and cosmetic items

A PIECE OF HISTORY PASSES - This venerable old tree was over 20 years old before the first shot of the American Revolution was fired. Last week it thundered to the ground. Certified in 1976 as a Bicentennial tree, this white oak stood on what is now the property of the Ralph Miller family in Accident. The towering tree had wearied of its long life, covering more than two centuries of harsh winters on the mountain top, and died about two years ago. Bringing it down was sad but necessary. Family members gathered to watch this mighty timber fall. Clustered here around the 54-inch base of the tree are, left to right, Heather Sherbin holding baby Megan, Anna Marie and Ralph F. Miller, Sean W. Miller, and Dianna Marie Miller.

David Thomas Will Challenge Hafer For District 1 Senate Seat

David Thomas, corporate affairs manager at Mettiki Coal Corporation, has filed as a Republican candidate for District 1 State Senate. Making his announcement on the steps of the Garrett County Courthouse, Thomas encouraged Republicans in the district to cast their vote "for a stronger voice and more responsive leadership in the Maryland Senate."

"I am taking the unusual step of challenging a standing senator from our own party (Sen. John Hafer) because I strongly believe that Allegany and Garrett counties deserve to be heard more clearly and served more effectively in Annapolis," Thomas said.

"We need a government with less bureaucracy, less intrusiveness, and a less dictating manner. When important community issues involve state government, we need the state as an active and smart partner, not as a barrier to Western Maryland's needs.

"I feel very strongly that Western Maryland needs a senator who can make our issues crystal clear in Annapolis," he continued. "Maryland should provide encouragement for the creation of new jobs and preservation of existing ones in Allegany and Garrett counties. Maryland must invest in our family's futures

Fire Fighters Kept Busy; One Family Left Homeless

Local fire fighters were kept busy this past week, as three structure fires were reported, one in McHenry and two in Mtn. Lake Park. The most serious blaze involved a townhouse at Pinewoods Apartments along N Street in Mtn. Lake Park Sunday night which gutted the townhouse and left a family of six homeless.

The first incident was an apartment fire at 111 Country Aire Lane in McHenry early Saturday, when a smoke detector was credited with saving five members of the Robert Coffren family. According to Deputy Chief Allen Ward of the Office of the Maryland State Fire Marshal, a fire broke out in a vacant apartment on the first floor, and the detector alerted the Coffren family in the second floor apartment, allowing them to escape the two-story wood frame, three-apartment building unharmed.

Responding to the 1:30 a.m. fire were units from the Deep Creek and Accident fire departments. The fire was confined to a mattress in the first floor apartment and a nearby window area. Loss was estimated to be $2,000.

The building is owned by Humberson Homes, McHenry. The Coffren family was able to return to their apartment following the fire.

Ward said that the fire was intentionally set, but there are no suspects at this time. His investigation is continuing, and persons with information about the incident are urged to contact the fire marshal's office in McHenry.

The second structure fire of the week was the townhouse fire at Pinewoods Apartments in Mtn. Lake Park, which is believed to have been caused by combustible material located too close to an electric heater.

EYM, Social Services Teaming Up To Address Issue Of Violence

The Ecumenical Youth Ministry and the Garrett County Department of Social Services are pooling together their administrative, artistic, and monetary resources in a multi-dimensional community project addressing the issue of violence. The week-long event scheduled for June 15-20, will include the creation of two 8' x 12' billboards, which will be designed and painted by the EYM and displayed on outdoor structures in Oakland and Loch Lynn, a series of info-advocacy opportunities throughout the week initiated and moderated by Rick DeWitt and the Social Services staff, and the culminating event, two performances by the EYM of the Broadway musical "Runaways."

"It was truly divine intervention that brought the EYM and Rick DeWitt together," said Lynn Broderick, director of the EYM. While talking on the telephone at the EYM office in early March, Lyz Bizer, a member of the Family Violence Coalition who maintains an office at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, dropped a piece of legal pad on Broderick's desk. Scribbled on the yellow paper was the message to call Rick DeWitt from Social Services regarding the painting of two billboards.

In a subsequent phone call to Rick, Broderick learned of the efforts of the Family Violence Coalition and the inclusion of the EYM on a recently awarded grant application. Recalling the ministry and fellowship surrounding the painting of a mural in 1996,

Paul C. Rizzo & Assoc. Expresses Interest In DCL Power Plant Buy

The Garrett County/Deep Creek Lake Advisory Committee met last week and heard a presentation by Paul C. Rizzo of Paul C. Rizzo & Associates, a company interested in purchasing the power generation segment of Deep Creek Lake. Rizzo apparently met with the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association (DCLPOA) last fall when GPU Energy first broached the subject of selling its lake interests.

Rizzo and Associates currently operates the Youghiogheny Hydroelectric Project, which it built, in Confluence, Pa. The power generated there is reportedly sold to GPU as part of a 25-year pact. Rizzo said this prior relationship between the two companies has afforded him and his company an understanding of the lake's importance to the county in the areas of tax revenue, tourism, and natural and aesthetic qualities.

To further the discussion between Rizzo, the property owners, and the county officials, a consortium has been organized, consisting of representatives of each of these entities. The advisory committee, under the leadership of Fred A. Thayer, has reportedly agreed to utilize the consortium as the "designated responsible entity to secure a purchase of Deep Creek Lake." The consortium is to submit a request for qualification as a bidder by April 17.

In the interest of possible local ownership of part of the lake package, the commissioners have arranged a meeting with state officials today (April 9). Those gathering at the state capital include the commissioners, Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development secretary James Brady, Department of Natural Resources director John Griffin, and other officials. The focus of this meeting, according to Thayer, is to be on the divestiture and on how the county and state should proceed at this time.

The winning bidder for the Deep Creek Lake package is to be announced in late December, according to a time line released recently by GPU. Governor Parris Glendening has expressed his concern about the sale and has offered support to the county in pursuing some form of local and/or state ownership.

Oakland Area Businessman Irvin Feld Dies

Irvin Feld, a prominent Oakland businessman, community leader, and 26-year member of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital's board of governors, died Thursday, April 2, 1998, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, at the age of 80.

He served as president of the H-P Stores Inc. prior to its liquidation in 1982, after 51 years in business and encompassing 40 junior stores in Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. He was a member of the board of directors of the Garrett National Bank for 27 years, and for 25 of the 26 years he was a member of the GCMH board of governors, he served as its chairman.

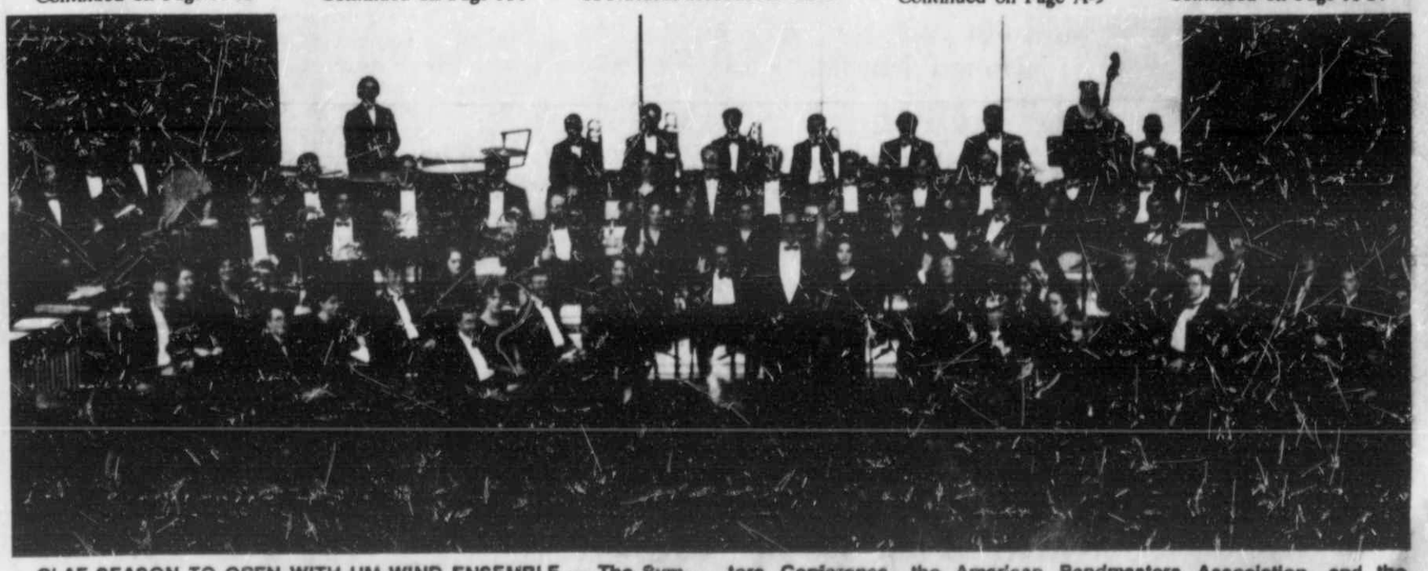
THOMAS TO CHALLENGE HAFER - David Thomas, a native of Friendsville and corporate affairs manager for Mettiki Coal Corporation, announced this week that he will challenge incumbent John Hafer for his seat as District I state senator. Thomas, who is involved in numerous areas of community service, said that Allegany and Garrett counties "deserve to be heard more clearly and served more effectively in Annapolis." Thomas, a Republican, is pictured above with his wife Nancy, right, who is employed by the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families, and with his treasurer, Nancy Frazee. Thomas will face Hafer in the Republican primary in September. See story.



GLAF SEASON TO OPEN WITH UM WIND ENSEMBLE — The Symphonic Wind Ensemble of the University of Maryland will open the 1998 Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) season with a concert at Southern High School on April 26, beginning at 3 p.m. The ensemble is comprised of a select group of outstanding wind and percussion musicians on campus and plays a repertoire of 20th century pieces, as well as master works from the 18th and 19th centuries. Each year the group performs a series of public concerts on campus and conducts a limited schedule of tour performances. The group was one of just six American college bands to be chosen in 1993 to be recorded and included in a 30-compact disc anthology of band literature released internationally by Toshiba/EMI. The Symphonic Wind Ensemble has performed for national and regional conventions of the Music Educators Conference, the American Bandmasters Association, and the Maryland Music Educators Association. Professor John E. Wakefield, who recently celebrated his 30th anniversary with Maryland Bands, is the director of the ensemble. He serves as chairman of the Wind and Percussion Division in the U.M. Department of Music. Tickets for the concert are available at the GLAF office on the Garrett Community College campus on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. Phone orders may be placed during these hours by calling 301-387-3082. Tickets will also be available at the door on the day of the performance. Admission is $8 for adults and $3 for youth. GLAF events are funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

EYM Schedules Third Annual Walk For Peace

The Ecumenical Youth Ministry will sponsor the third annual "Walk For Peace" on Good Friday, April 10, in the town of Oakland. The walk will begin in the sanctuary at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church at noon. All members of the community, youth and adults, are invited to attend. The walk will be lead by student members of the EYM and by Pastors Chip Lee, Mike Robinson, and Rick Spencer.

According to EYM director Lynn Broderick, participants recreate the walk Jesus took on his way to the cross. "The path crisscrosses through the town of Oakland, guiding walkers past sites in the community as reminders of issues and people that need our peaceful attention," Broderick said. "Songs and prayers will be recited at each stopping point in this witnessing of Jesus' presence in our lives."

The one and one-half mile walk will conclude at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, where lunch will be served. "This is the third walk for many of the youth," Broderick said. Students remember vividly the first year when the temperature was so cold Pastor Chip Lee had frost freezing on his mustache at the conclusion of the walk. Last year the Baby Think it Over dolls accompanied walkers as a reminder of our commitment to the youth of this region."

Broderick recommends dressing for the weather" in layered clothing and comfortable walking shoes.

The Republican's Advertising Dept. Wins Four Awards In MDDC Contest

Lisa Rook, manager of The Republican newspaper's advertising department, was informed this week that members of her staff are among the winners in the "Best of 1997" Maryland-Delaware-D.C. Press Association (MDDC) Advertising Contest. Four awards, including one first place honor for ad composer Carol Welch, will be formally presented to the winners at the MDDC Advertising Awards Luncheon on April 23 in Annapolis.

Welch's first place advertisement, which was entered in the "local retail spot color" category, was for Land Design Landscaping. The judge stated that the ad showed a "handsome use of duo-tone art with total visual impact."

Welch also won a second place spot in the "local retail, black and white, 1/2 page or more" category. This was for a WEPCO Federal Credit Union advertisement.

Staff member Jody Freeland was awarded second place in the "linage builder" category. This was for her design of the Buckwheat Festival Schedule of Events pages.

Finally, the combined staff of Rook, Freeland, Welch, and Bernice Kepple and Connie Reams attained an honorable mention for the 1997 Splendour supplement, the popular Autumn Glory addition to The Republican.

"We always try to create attractive, effective ads for our clients and it's so nice to be recognized for our efforts," Rook said.

The contest is held each year, but this is the first time the paper's staff has entered any work. The Republican joined the MDDC approximately one year ago. The entries in the MDDC advertising contest were judged by other members of the MDDC.

"Our staff's work was up against some of the best from across our state, Delaware, and Washington, D.C.," said Don Sincell, editor of the paper. "We've always known that our advertising staff is professional and talented, but it's nice to have that confirmed by our professional peers. These honors speak well of the members of our advertising department — an artistic and dedicated group — and we're very proud of them."

Second Rabies Case Of Year Reported By Health Dept.

The office of Environmental Health Services of the Garrett County Health Department has reported the second rabies case of the year.

A dead raccoon found in a basement of a residence on Potomac Camp Road was confirmed positive for rabies on March 19. Subsequent to this finding, three unvaccinated, feral cats which had access to the basement for food were caught and euthanized, and three neighborhood dogs that were either unvaccinated or had expired vaccinations were also destroyed. Although direct contact between the raccoon and the cats and dogs could not be absolutely confirmed, the possibility of exposure could not be ruled out, and so posed a health risk to the community. Several neighbors decided to euthanize the unvaccinated dogs rather than risk rabies exposure to their families.

This situation again emphasizes the importance of keeping rabies vaccinations of all pets up-to-date. Although Maryland law requires dogs, cats, and ferrets be vaccinated against rabies at four months of age, vaccinations may be safely and effectively administered at three months of age.

The need to destroy family pets can be avoided by maintaining current rabies vaccinations for all pets. Persons are reminded that it is important to keep all vaccination certificates and review these records periodically to assure that the vaccination status does not lapse. Dogs, cats, and ferrets need to be revaccinated at least once every three years after the animal's initial one-year vaccination.

The health department is tentatively scheduling low cost rabies clinics for the first week of May. Locations and times will be announced in the coming weeks.

"Garrett's Promise" Receives Grant To Expand Program

Garrett's Promise, the county's alliance for youth, received confirmation this week that its application for a Building Hope Grant was selected as a winning proposal in a statewide request for funds. The funding entity is the Kaiser Permanente company.

"Successful grant proposals were those that clearly reflected youth involvement in the needs assessment and program planning," said Martha Johns, chairperson of the Kaiser Permanente Building Hope Program. She informed the local alliance that its grant proposal has been fully funded.

The grant will be used to enable the local delegation to produce and maintain a "Promise Website," develop a community-wide youth activities calendar, coordinate a volunteer database, publish a quarterly newsletter, and organize various youth activities.

Garrett's Promise has joined other communities nationwide in making the commitment to deliver resources to youth in five areas: ensuring ongoing relationships with caring adults, providing safe places and structured activities in non-school hours, providing a "healthy start for a healthy future," helping to foster marketable career skills through effective education, and showing youth opportunities to "give back through service."

Garrett's Promise meets monthly to develop effective strategies for utilizing community resources for youth activities. Members represent the primary health and human service agencies, organizational leaders, and youth. For more information, persons may contact the delegation coordinator, Susan Athey-Oxford, at 301-334-1189.

Driver Injured In One-Vehicle Mishap On 495

A one-vehicle accident Tuesday on Route 495 resulted in injuries to the driver.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported that Larry G. Crosco, 61, Oakland, was traveling northbound on Route 495 (Swanton Rd.) around 2 p.m. when he lost control of his vehicle. Crosco's vehicle left the roadway, struck two trees and overturned, police said.

Southern Rescue Squad responded to the scene, as did Deer Park VFD. Crosco was transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital by the squad. He was transported from there to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., for treatment.

No charges were filed in the accident.

Wayne R. Johnson Enters Race For D-III Commissioner

After having served nearly three months in the office of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners, Commissioner Wayne Johnson has officially announced his intention to run for the District III Commissioner seat, which he currently occupies, in the 1998 election.

"Although it has been very busy — much more than I had imagined — I am enjoying working with and for the people of Garrett County," Johnson said. "Quite a bit of my time has been spent getting acquainted with the job, our employees, and attending committee appointments (23 meetings in March, in addition to Tuesday public meetings and Thursday work sessions).

"The position is very time consuming, especially at this time with water and sewer projects, roads, fiscal year 1999 budget preparation, and, most important, the divestiture of Deep Creek Lake by GPU. Lake properties, businesses, rentals, and vacationers bring in over half of the county revenue. It is imperative that we keep this as a part of Garrett County property," he said. "With the help of the people of Garrett County, I look forward to having the privilege of serving the next term as their commissioner."

Johnson graduated from Frostburg State Teachers College with a bachelor of science degree in education, and also completed his master's degree in secondary education at West Virginia University. He was employed by the Garrett County Board of Education for 32 years as a teacher, coach, principal, and administrator.

The candidate was previously the executive director of Hospice of Garrett County and the compliance and training office with American Trust Bank. He has served on many local, state, and national committees associated with education and social and fraternal agencies. Johnson has been a member of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Board of Governors for four years, he is active in the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, and currently chairs the audit committee of the Maryland Association of Elementary School Principals.

The commissioner said his obligatory priorities are to improve roads maintenance, maintain the "excellent school system we now have," to continue to reinforce financial controls in the county, to enhance economic development efforts to reduce the high unemployment rate, and to "be attentive to the needs of our citizenry as much as our finances will allow while remaining fiscally solvent."

Town Planners Vote Against Changing Regs

The members of the Friendsville Planning Commission voted unanimously against honoring a request for an amendment to town zoning ordinances that would permit establishment of a used car lot in an area zoned as "town residential."

The request, made by business owner Twila Fike, had been forwarded by the mayor and council to the five-member planning commission for consideration and recommendation.

The commission members said they made their recommendation in accordance with the Friendsville Comprehensive Plan and with guidance from the town's zoning ordinance and the Maryland State Code, Article 66B, Planning and Zoning.

The recommendation quoted from the town's comprehensive plan, using such phrases as "...to create a healthy, attractive, and pleasant living environment for its residents...without compromising Friendsville's unique character and heritage."

The commissioners' response also includes the following definition: "The Town Residential area will provide an area for strictly residential development, yet one that is convenient to Friendsville's Town Center."

Residents of Friendsville attending a public hearing Monday night had the opportunity to state opinions and concerns about the request for a zoning change.

Residents will have 10 days from the date of the hearing to state concerns. These may be written and mailed to Friendsville Town Hall, P.O. Box 9, Friendsville, MD 21531.

Local Publishing Company GLAF Season Sponsor

The Sincell Publishing Co. Inc., recent recipient of the Governor's Arts Award and publisher of The Republican newspaper, is once again a season sponsor of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. The company has been a major supporter of GLAF since its first season in 1987.

The present GLAF organization has evolved from a vision shared by Kathryn Sincell and Erick Friedman, who first met at Southern Methodist University, to bring classical music to this area in the summer. Their dream was shared with interested community residents, and GLAF was formed.

For the past four years, Sincell Publishing Company has contributed $5,000 to GLAF, designated to support the Classical Music Series. According to a GLAF spokesperson, Ms. Sincell, as managing producer of the series, and Friedman as musical director, have brought "outstanding musical talent" to Garrett County each year for the series. Again this year, GLAF will present two chamber music concerts on August 14 and 15, and two performances by the Symphony at Deep Creek on August 21 and 22. Along with violin virtuoso and Grammy winner Friedman, other internationally known musicians will be featured as soloists during these concerts.

In addition to their monetary contributions to GLAF and other community arts events, Sincell Publishing has been cited for its editorial support of arts activities in Garrett County.

Marcene Huebner, chair of the GLAF Board of Directors, expressed her appreciation. "We are very grateful for this generous monetary gift as well as for the extraordinary coverage given by The Republican to GLAF events. We are most fortunate to partner with such a strong arts advocate in our community and heartily congratulate Sincell Publishing Company on receiving the Governor's Arts Award," she said.

Man Charged By Police With DWI

Oakland Police arrested and charged Phillip M. Davidson, 54, Oakland, with failure to drive right of the center line and driving while intoxicated.

The Oakland resident was stopped by police while he was traveling on Liberty Street, Tuesday, at 12:40 a.m. The officer had observed Davidson driving on the wrong side of the street.

MAJOR GLAF SPONSOR - Sincell Publishing Company Inc., publishers of The Republican newspaper, will again be a major sponsor of the Symphony at Deep Creek this season, one of the summer offerings of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Accepting a check in the above photo from Don Sincell, co-owner of the company and editor of The Republican, is Marcene Huebner, chair of the GLAF Board of Directors. Middle States Accreditation Team Visits GCC

A team of educators appointed by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools visited Garrett Community College (GCC) recently to assess the college's programs and services as part of renewing GCC's accreditation. The 10-member team spent three days on the GCC campus, meeting with administrators, faculty, and staff in every office and every college area.

At the exit interview, Middle State's team chairman Dr. Lawrence Poole, interim vice-president for academic affairs at SUNY College, Old Westbury, N.Y., thanked GCC for the hospitality extended to team members and said that they were most impressed by the openness of college personnel and the objectivity of GCC's Self-Study Report. "The observations made by GCC about itself were honest and accurate," Dr. Poole said. "There was a wide range of involvement in writing the report."

Dr. Poole commended the high academic standards of the college, the qualified dedicated faculty, the use of technology in the classroom, the learning assistance center and the strong academic support from the library. He pointed out the strong advising system, the dedicated staff, the well-planned activities promoting recruitment, the strong management of finances and human resources, and the well-maintained campus, residence hall, and child care facilities. Dr. Poole's team also found the college's governance structure to be appropriate, and the members of the board of trustees and the Garrett County Commissioners to be knowledgeable of the college's operations.

GCC president Dr. Steve Herman thanked the team members for their participation in the accreditation process and their counsel. A final report of the visiting team's review and recommendations will be sent to the college in June.

The GCC steering committee for the self-study report was chaired by Jim Allen. Steering committee members have been meeting with their subcommittees throughout the year to conduct a self study process. Each committee was co-chaired by a faculty member and a college administrator. The co-chairpersons of these committees were: Dr. Lillian Mitchell and Lonnie Brewster, Academic Life Committee; Dr. Nancy Priselac and Carolyn Deniker, Administration Committee; Joan Crawford and Hal Wendling, Public Relations Committee; Michelle Quinn and Kevin Dodge, Finance Committee; Manning Smith and Ron Skidmore, Student Life Committee; Don Storck and Pramod Kapoor, Institutional Research Committee; and Linda Fike and Ann Wellham, Human Resources Committee.

The members of the Middle States Accreditation team serving under Dr. Poole's leadership were: Denise M. DiGiorgio, dean of student services at Mohawk Valley Community College, N.Y.; Juana S. Jaramillo, dean/director of the University of Puerto Rico; Kenneth G. Krause, professor at Northampton Area County Community College, Pa.; Wayne M. O'Sullivan, director of international education at Erie Community College in New York; Ann M. Williams, special assistant to the president at Luzerne County Community College in Pennsylvania; and Lloyd Kalugin, director of cooperative education at Middlesex County College at Edison, N.J. Genevieve Segura, staff specialist of the Maryland Higher Education Commission, accompanied the accreditation team.

Two of Our Finest...

Every single week Garrett County loses some of its citizens to the "Grim Reaper," as we can't remember a single issue of our paper that has not contained the obituary of at least one local resident. Of course, each and every person is special and each and every death is a loss to family and friends.

However, Garrett County lost two of its finest this past week with the passing of Irvin Feld and Margaret Shoemaker, two people with different backgrounds, experiences, and situations, but each of whom made a significant mark in this life.

Irvin Feld was one of Garrett County's most successful business persons ever, in owning and operating a large chain of clothing stores. As anyone who operates a business knows, being successful requires commitment, dedication, and lots of time. The larger the business, often the larger of each of the aforementioned components, and Mr. Feld's business was quite large. Yet, not only did he share his wealth with his community, but he also shared his time and talents in a variety of ways to help make life better for all of Garrett County's citizens.

Irvin and his wife Audrey made generous donations to scores of charities, programs, and worthy causes, and they did so quietly and without the fanfare that many such donors expect. Despite his extreme illness in the past many months, the Felds never stopped sharing their resources.

He also served in many capacities in the community, perhaps the most significant being chairman of the Board of Governors of Garrett County Memorial Hospital for an incredible span of 25 years. That is a job that pays no money and can be extremely demanding (this writer knows this from first-hand experience in the position). Irvin did not have to add to his already stressful life in this way, but he chose to do so because he cared so much for his community.

Margaret Shoemaker's contributions were different, but came from the same attitude of dedication and commitment. She faithfully wrote the Friendsville column for this newspaper for 53, that's 53, years. She did not type, so her news was handwritten every single week. Her column was usually 5 to 10 pages long, so she spent hours writing it, and only after spending many more hours just collecting the information. Her concern for accuracy was so great that, when there was an error in her column, she would call us and make sure that a correction was made the following week. Even while battling cancer for the past several years, her newsletter arrived in our office every week, except for the few times the disease had her totally incapacitated. She always bounced back, and like Irvin Feld, she could have easily, and understandably, forsaken her work because of her own personal situation.

Margaret was not a wealthy woman in monetary terms, but she was truly wealthy in terms of her love for her town and its people, and her steadfastness in seeing that the news of her community was shared through our publication every week.

To the families of these outstanding citizens, we express our deepest sympathy, and hope you can find comfort in the fact that these were two persons who, in different ways, gave of themselves and really made a difference. They have set a wonderful example for the rest of us.

WHY AM I HERE?
by Melodee Hill

As you get older there is a question you will ask yourself at least once everyday and probably several times a day as time continues its forward march. I am speaking of the ages-old philosophical query, "Why am I here?" You will find yourself (at least I do) entering a room, then stopping suddenly in the center of the room like a stalled car and inquiring of yourself, "Why am I here?" It is taken for granted that you have been talking to yourself for years, so if there is anyone else in the room they will politely ignore you, unless it is your teenage child. He will use this and every other opportunity to loudly point out the fact that you are still "not the boss of me," especially since your mental faculties are so rapidly deteriorating.

This is when I truly wish I had the lofty purpose of pondering my raison d'etre, but no, I am merely asking myself, "What the heck did I come to this room for?" My usual answer to myself is that I have completely forgotten whatever it is that I want, wherever I am. It makes me think of the old television show "The Twilight Zone" and the episode about the man who had a watch that stopped time for everyone else in the world except him. I feel like one of the people that gets stopped and when I get started again, I don't remember what I was doing. Sometimes I am not even in the right room, which can be a bit scary when I finally remember I was headed for the bathroom. My imagination leaps me ahead to my 70s, when I might be thinking that I am in the bathroom, but I am really in the kitchen or at the grocery store.

So far, I have not figured out the "cure," or in modern psycho-speak the "coping mechanism," for this sudden memory failure. There are however, "damage control techniques" to lessen the embarrassment of suddenly finding yourself motionless in the middle of a room, like a forgotten player leftover from a game of freeze tag. If there is no one else in the room—you are spared. You can mutter and berate yourself and toss things around in the dusty closet of your brain rummaging for the name of whatever it was you wanted, knowing full well that it will pop into your consciousness as soon as you give up and go home. Or you can take advantage of the moment to "stop and plump the pillows" (there probably aren't any nearby roses to smell), and take a relaxing deep breath, or gaze out the window (if one is handy) or just reflect on the vagaries of the human brain.

If there are other people in the room that you are now in the middle of, standing at attention, remember this—don't look puzzled or stare blankly into the distance. Instead, turn your body a half-turn and ask loudly, "Do these clothes make me look fat?" Your family will know better than to answer this question and guests will murmur politely inaudible comments and quickly change the subject. If you are at someone else's house when your synapses stop connecting, point to a corner of the room and inquire, "Was that a mouse?" I can assure you no one will notice or remember your sudden memory lapse after everyone has moved all the furniture back into the room. By then you will have remembered whatever it was that you forgot and life will move forward, because the little guy with the watch has finally remembered where he left it.

AN EASTER CALLING

A good friend died a few weeks ago, and I have been feeling the grief of it. She was 77 and had Alzheimer's disease, so I cannot be sorry that she died. Her life had come to an end of which fact death was an expression.

I cannot be sorry that she died, but it still hurts that she is gone. Mine has been a rich life, peopled with men and women on whom I could count to be in my corner, no matter what.

These were not people who necessarily thought I was always right, rather people who believed in me whether I was right or wrong. It was this belief in me that enabled them to tell me when I was wrong. Living in the admonition of St. Paul, they told the truth in love.

The friend who just died was one such person. Even in a long list of remarkable encouragers she was one of the very finest. Not only did she never let me down, I can think of no one whom she ever disappointed in that way. She was not perfect, as none of us are, but I find it difficult to think of anything that I could call a fault.

She was perhaps too trusting, too ready to believe good of others. If these be faults, they are very enviable faults. Someone said in this same semi-negative vein, "She was a lady of her era," meaning that she found it impossible to be unkind or uncharitable toward anyone.

There was not a mean bone in her body, which in the 1990s is not an asset. This is a fact, an extraordinarily lamentable fact.

I find myself thinking about my friend during this Holy Week in some different ways. For one thing, the promise of Easter is that death is not the end, especially for those who die in the Lord. My friend did indeed die in the Lord, just as she had lived life-long in the Lord.

Easter means that, though she is not in this world in a physical way, she is still in my corner. She has passed through the veil of death into the nearer presence of God. That is not a bad place to have someone pulling for you. So I do find comfort in the communion of the saints, which means that those who die in the Lord are never really dead to us.

There is a second Easter theme, namely, that the death of someone who has lived nobly transforms those of us who still sojourn this side of the veil.

What dawns on me is that I have reached a point in my life where it is more for me to be that sort of person for others than to look for that sort of person for myself in others. Standing by the grave of one who has lived nobly, there is a calling for me to live nobly.

There is something in this, of course, of the mid-life crisis, a crossroads which has the possibility of being positive in ways that are rarely discussed. The literature of mid-life crisis attends to the instances when those in the crisis choose poorly. That, in turn, has publicized precedents for others to follow in making poor choices.

One of the messages of Holy Week is that we can choose the right road, the road that leads to self-sacrifice for the good of others. The enemies of Jesus said that one person had to die for the good of all. The more interesting fact is that Jesus had already come to the same conclusion.

Not all of us are called to die for others, but I think everyone is called to live for others. All of us are called from the ranks of those who have been taken care of, to the ranks of those who are taking care of others.

The calling of Easter is to draw a line and say, "No longer do I expect others to live for me. From now on, I expect myself to live for others." If we do that, then neither death nor life shall ever be in vain.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I couldn't help writing to express my gratitude and admiration for the wonderful program of Easter music presented by the Garrett County Choral Society last week. My family and I attended the program at St. Paul's Methodist Church on Saturday night. It was thrilling and uplifting.

Congratulations to Nancy Learey and all the wonderful singers and musicians who gave us this great experience. It made me proud to see such talent and dedication right here in Garrett County.

If you missed it — too bad. Do yourself a favor and watch for other such programs by the Choral Society. I will do my best never to miss another one.

Sincerely,
Robert E. Watson

To the Editor:

Regarding "Too Much Coverage," repetition is a learning process that has been used by parents, learning institutions, and religions for thousands of years and poses no danger whatsoever as long as it is truth only that is presented.

The FCC requires radio and TV to provide equal time to anyone who wishes to reply to aired subject matter. Unfortunately, newspapers do not. They too should be mandated to provide at least one reply (if desired) to printed articles, whether the papers are privately owned or syndicated and whether the articles are gratis or paid. Deleting it--censorship and arbitrary and, except for amorality or national security, should be completely abolished. Even defendants in a court of law are permitted to respond defensively. Power to censor combined with the false ideology of an elite few are the ingredients that have made over half of Earth's population slaves.

"Unavailable space" and "gratis" are instrumentally used excuses to limit an editor's generosity and provide his personal bias, for there is no shortage of paper or ink to which anyone wishing to buy a full page ad will attest. Printing many words in support of a subject while denying even one in opposition is arbitrary, dishonest, and should be illegal.

Recently, for example, several thousand words were printed romanticizing the love relationship of two male homosexuals, yet the only letter (mine) of two or three hundred words opposing the morality of it was "canned." One-sided? Unfair? You betcha!

Also, a recent editorial implied Robertson and Falwell were racists for trying to save the life of a white woman. You failed to mention that the Pope also interceded. Is he a racist too? Or just Robertson and Falwell? Since all three oppose abortion and homosexuality, does that make them all bigots? Or are only two bigots? How many of them bomb abortion clinics?

Please be advised, Bible believers are not anarchists, racists, bombers, etc. Only extremist pretenders are. It's also true that all editors are not impartial, honest, and fair. How naive for me to think they were.

Freedom of the press is for everyone, not just one side and is more precious than all of Oakland's money. Send me a bill and let the liberal socinians rant.

Bob Groves

Mr. Groves:

First of all, the letter to which you refer that we "canned" was, in our opinion, simply too offensive to publish. Plus, most of our readers know very well how you feel about homosexuality since your have shared those views on numerous occasions on this page.

Secondly, we are shocked that you, the most conservative of conservatives, would suggest that government should invade free enterprise (specifically the newspaper business) with more regulation; that is, in a free society, dictate what we must publish in our, our (not your) newspaper. Perhaps government should also force you to allow me to come place a sign in your front yard that expresses my opinions.

You also have the option of starting your own newspaper and publishing whatever you want; unless, of course, our legislature were to pass a law as you suggest. Then you would have to print all of my letters to you!

Editor

To the Editor:

While reading about the woes and problems encountered with hospital affiliations in Cumberland and other cities across the U.S., I was thankful that I live in Garrett County. Then yesterday, I read in The Republican that Garrett County Memorial Hospital is exploring affiliation! That was troubling enough, but in today's Cumberland Times, I learned that the Western Maryland Health System (Sacred Heart — Daughters of Charity) is interested in affiliation with GCMH and wants a copy of the RFP when it is issued! Do we want the same problems in Garrett County as they have experienced in Cumberland? Rather than pursue affiliation with WMHS, or whomever, why don't we save some wear and tear on our citizens and give Sacred Heart (WMHS) a check for $5M and forget the whole thing? (Joking of course!) At least we will not have polarized our people, and will still retain the trust in the GCMH Board and staff.

We are aware that recent regulations, HMOs, decline in number of patients, and the length of hospital stays have decreased revenue and increased expenses, but I have not read that GCMH was in such dire straits that we must relinquish local control as would probably be required through an affiliation. Memorial in Cumberland could possibly have avoided serious controversy had they known this earlier in their negotiations.

During the recent bout with the union which tried to organize the GCMH employees, the Board stated that negotiations should be between the local GCMH Board and the GCMH employees and not with an outside union. What happens under affiliation? Will not some outsider be involved with the Board in future negotiations, if affiliation is accomplished? How short their memory is!

If GCMH has a problem, why not bring it to the attention of the GCMH Foundation and the Garrett County citizens? Some intelligent ideas may surface that might help maintain local control of our health service, rather than relinquishing control to an outside group. As a contributor

Miss Carpenter Crowned Natural Miss Sweetheart

Randi Lynn Carpenter, daughter of Oakland residents Mark and Connie Carpenter, was recently crowned America's Natural Miss Sweetheart at the National Pageant, held in Ocean City in March.

Miss Carpenter is a junior at Southern High School, where she is enrolled in the merit program.

She took part in numerous optional and required competitions throughout the weekend event. She took part in the free-style modeling competition in sportswear, western wear, and evening gown. She also competed in the categories of interview, portfolio, photogenic, and beauty.

All contestants were judged on poise, personality, stage projection, and the ability to interact with adults and peers.

Miss Carpenter won first place in the beauty/gown competition and in the on-stage interview contest. She won second prizes in modeling western wear and sportswear.

The National Pageant judges crowned six winners in six age categories, three mini-grand supreme winners, a grand supreme winner, and the National Sweetheart Winner.

The young local woman was judged not only by the official panel, but also by the master of ceremonies, the directors, last year's winners, and the contestants themselves.

Miss Carpenter plans to attend a university to pursue a degree in social sciences. She has captured numerous modeling and pageant titles, with this honor being her first national win. She said she hopes to eventually vie for the Miss Maryland title.

Mtn. Lake Park Man Jailed For Abuse, Assault

An investigation by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office resulted in the arrest of a Mtn. Lake Park man last week on charges including child abuse.

Ronald Wayne Moore, 30, was arrested Monday, April 6, after deputies called to the 7-year-old victim's school were shown bruises on the victim's chest. The investigation subsequently uncovered allegations that Moore had reportedly poked the victim in the chest with his fingers while the victim was at Moore's home. It was also reported that a history of child abuse activity involving the victim, who is currently in foster care, has been documented.

Moore faces charges of one count of child abuse and one count of second-degree assault. He is currently being held in jail on a $1,500 bond.

In other sheriff's news, a search of a Finzel residence by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force resulted in the arrest of three suspects on drug charges on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 1.

Eddie Lee Hitchens, 24, Finzel, and David Allen McKenzie, 34, and Amanda Lynn Wright, 18, both of Frostburg, each face charges of possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. In executing a search and seizure warrant Task Force members recovered a quantity of suspected marijuana and drug paraphernalia from the residence. All three subjects were released on their own recognizance pending trial.

Two Swanton residents, one a juvenile male, were arrested Sunday night when a fight broke out at an underage drinking party where deputies were already on the scene.

According to the report, an argument between James Yoak, 23, and the juvenile erupted into a physical altercation, with the juvenile striking Yoak in the face in the full view of the deputy. While the juvenile was being taken into custody, deputies reportedly witnessed Betty Leallen Granger, 20, who resides at the Swanton Road home where the incident took place, strike Yoak in the back of the head. Granger was then arrested as well and charged with second-degree assault, and subsequently released on her own recognizance. The juvenile male was subsequently turned over to the Department of Juvenile Justice.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a Saturday night burglary from Sisler Lumber in Mtn. Lake Park that resulted in a loss of $2,100 worth of merchandise to the Maryland Highway business. The next morning some workers arrived to find a filing door kicked open and three chainsaws missing from the room. Taken were one Stihl 056 chainsaw, serial #138501560, valued at $800, and two Stihl 044 chainsaws, serial #'s 12831-8530 and 127654656, respectively, valued at $650 each. Damage to the door was estimated at $50.

Sheriff's deputies are also investigating the Tuesday, April 7, nighttime burglary at the Swop Shop on Friendsville Addison Road. After throwing a cinderblock through the store's picture window, suspect(s) entered and removed two Eagle crossbow pistols, valued at $35 each, and a pair of white Nike women's tennis shoes worth $40. Damage to the window was listed at $100.

Warrants Served

Sheriff's deputies served warrants on the following individuals recently. Stephen Joseph Eddy, 41, Oakland, was arrested on a bench warrant charging violation of probation. Concetta Marie Burns, 41, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested on a warrant carrying burglary and assault charges. Howard Vaughn Sisler, 27, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested on a bench warrant charging failure to pay deferred fines. Arrested on warrants charging failure to appear were Michelle Dawn Dunkle, 30, Mtn. Lake Park; Morton Craig Skaggs, 31, Mechanicsburg, Pa.; Steven Joseph Neises, 34, Oakland; and John Thomas Gordon, 22, Bayard, W.Va.

BOE Learns Of VICA Champs, Grant For Marine Tech Course

At the Tuesday night meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education, members learned that Garrett County will be represented at the VICA Skills USA Championships this summer in Kansas City, Mo. They also heard a report on a grant to be used by the career and technology education program in partnership with Garrett Community College.

Joanne Vent, supervisor of Career and Technology Education programs for county schools, reported that Sam Sisler, Jeremy Whitacre, David Schoch, Mike Rohrbaugh, and April Walsh had been selected to participate in the national VICA competitions based on skills demonstrated at the statewide VICA contest last week in Hagerstown.

Several students from Northern and Southern high schools won medals in their events, Vent said. First place winners were David Schoch, home improvement, Sam Sisler, carpentry, April Walsh, promotional bulletin board, Ann Sebold, job skill demonstration, Jesse Shimrock, job skill demonstration, and Harland Sharpless, cabinet making.

The VICA Display, with Jeremy Whitacre as chairman, also took a first place.

Second place silver medal winners were Sarah Garlitz, job skill development; The Quiz Bowl members George Tichnell, Dan Sincell, Jeannine Meyers, Steve Allison, and Ted Wolf; the Opening and Closing team of Arley Stimak, Steve Lilly, Stephanie White, Ashley Stimak, Audrey Shipe, Nick Oliverio, and Faryn Shaffer; and the Safety Notebook, chaired by Mike Rohrbaugh.

Third place bronze medals went to Scott Bowser and Matt Buckingham.

Vent also reported to the board on a Marine Technology Employee Incentive Fund Grant to be used to develop a pilot program in partnership with GCC. The course, earmarked to begin in the fall semester of 1998, will focus on outboard and inboard motor repair, and general boat repair including fiberglass and upholstery repair, and electrical diagnosis.

Students in the course would also have the opportunity to develop work readiness skills, including customer service and business communication.

Certificates will be awarded to students who successfully complete this course.

Other Business

Among the other issues on the board agenda were a report on the Crellin Head Start Center and a presentation on the social studies program of studies, 6-8.

Crellin Elementary School will expand by more the 2,000 feet to accommodate a Head Start Center. Funding for the project was accessed by Duane Yoder, executive director of Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., the agency responsible for the Head Start program.

According to Mike Sines, supervisor of buildings and maintenance for the BOE, contractors are scheduled to meet next week to review plans for the new center. The elementary school will benefit from this addition, Sines said.

Dr. Brenda McCartney, director of education and curriculum development PK-8, presented again to the board the program of studies for social studies. Public comment, which has been accepted during the month following the previous presentation, was reviewed. Minor revisions would be made to the text, Dr. McCartney indicated.

Though the program of studies was slated for board action at the meeting, such action was delayed by board request.

Possibility Of Dog Poisonings East Of Hutton Raised

Information has been received by The Republican that several incidents of possible poisoning of dogs have occurred in the Hutton area over the past two weeks.

The citizen caller, a resident of Sugar Lane, just off Fingerboard Road, stated that two of her family's dogs have died suddenly in the past weeks and that two nearby neighbors had lost two dogs in the previous week under similar circumstances. Each family lives just east of Hutton, within a quarter mile of the town.

When the caller asked an acquaintance, a registered nurse, about the dogs' behavior as they died, she was told that the symptoms were consistent with poison often used to kill rats.

Persons who suspect that a dog of theirs may have been poisoned in the Hutton area are encouraged to call the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911. Any persons with information about these incidents may contact Garrett County Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975. Anonymity is guaranteed.

Music, Dance, Drama Planned For Arts Fair

Garrett County's teachers of the arts have been coordinating efforts with students and parents to design and organize the second annual countywide Student Arts Fair.

The festival will take place on Saturday, April 25, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The site for the day-long event will again be Garrett Community College. Displays, performances, and hands-on activities for children will be available for the ticket price of $3 for adults and $1 for children.

Over 1,200 people attended the Student Arts Fair last year as spectators and participants in the event.

TRANSMAP VAN TO MAP COUNTY - The Garrett County Roads Department has contracted for this Transmap On-Sight Mobile Mapping van to travel the area's roads over the next few weeks and conduct a comprehensive digital mapping inventory of the county's transportation infrastructure, such as the placement of road signs, etc. As it will be traveling at a slow rate of speed, drivers sharing the road with the van are urged to exercise caution when they approach it. The Oakland office of the roads department is overseeing the project, with savings to the county estimated to be a third of what it has cost in the past to inventory local transportation infrastructure. Persons with questions about the project may contact the Oakland roads department office at 301-334-3988.

"You Can't Take It With You" Slated At FSU

Frostburg State University Theatre will be presenting the classic American family comedy "You Can't Take It With You." Show dates and times are April 24, 25, 30 and May 1 and 2 at 8 p.m., and a 2 p.m. matinee will be held April 26. All performances will take place in the Drama Theatre of the FSU Performing Arts Center.

The 1930's play by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman is one of the most often produced plays in the English language. "Every modern look at the family from "Ozzie and Harriet" to "Roseanne" can trace its roots to this rollicking look at the wonderfully eccentric and fiercely independent Sycamore family and friends," stated Howard Taubman (The Making Of the American Theatre).

The FSU production, directed and designed by Richard Kagey (FSU associate professor of communications and theatre arts), slates 22 cast members and two student designers (Eric Jewell, lights, and Jennifer Null, costumes).

To make reservations, persons should call 301-687-4145 between 1 and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Tickets for all University Theatre productions may be purchased at the theatre box office before the show.

Persons with disabilities may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office, 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

The purpose of the council is to provide areas that have no assigned police department with a forum for discussion of concerns relating to police needs, Paugh explained. The first meeting is scheduled to be held Tuesday, April 14, 6 p.m., at the Garrett County Public Safety Center, at Routes 219 and 42.

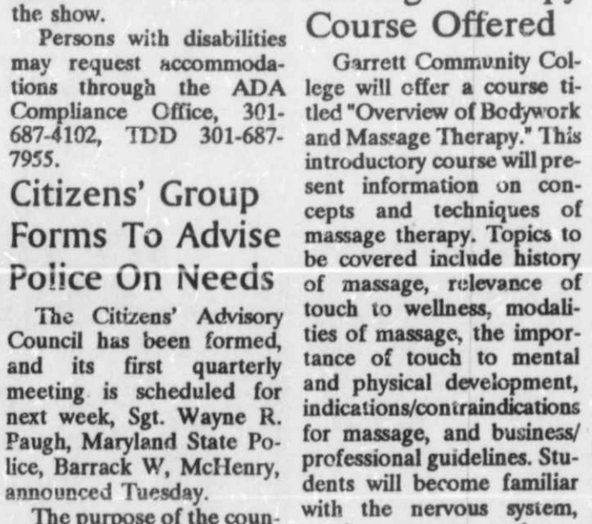
For further information, persons may contact the McHenry Barrack at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

Massage Therapy Course Offered

Garrett Community College will offer a course titled "Overview of Bodywork and Massage Therapy." This introductory course will present information on concepts and techniques of massage therapy. Topics to be covered include history of massage, relevance of touch to wellness, modalities of massage, the importance of touch to mental and physical development, indications/contraindications for massage, and business/professional guidelines. Students will become familiar with the nervous system, touch concepts and research, and modalities.

This course is the prerequisite for entry into the massage therapy program, but could also be of interest to individuals in the caregiving field, and to those who enjoy receiving a massage or giving a massage to other family members. A certificate will be given upon completion of the course.

This 30-hour course will meet for five Saturdays, beginning April 18, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Maryland senior citizens over age 60 may enroll tuition-free. An additional fee will be charged for out-of-county and out-of-state students. Because of limited seating, potential students should register as soon as possible at the McHenry campus of Garrett Community College, in the Continuing Education and Training Office. Those who have questions or require additional information may call the office at 301-387-3069.



STRUGGLING TO COPE - Daily difficulties faced by people with mental illness were given form and substance for the audience at Garrett Community College recently. A dramatic interactive performance was staged by the Mental Health Players, a troupe of volunteer actors from Baltimore, through a series of vignettes depicting a variety of individual and family situations. The scenario pictured in the photo above developed between a boss and an employee with mental illness. The boss is suggesting a promotion and the employee doesn't want it because she will not be able to deal with the added stress. She does not want her employer to know of her illness and so finds herself in a predicament. Solutions were solicited from members of the audience. The input was adopted by the actors and the scene continued to its conclusion.

DIVING INTO AFTER-SCHOOL OUTING - Students in the AmeriCorps after-school program at Southern Middle School recently enjoyed a dip in the pool at B&R Mountain Resort in McHenry. This field trip had been organized as one of the program activities provided for the students. The AmeriCorps spokesperson said the trip was a big success and credited members of the community for helping to make it possible. Sheetz gave a discount on hoagies, and provided pop and cups. B&R offered a group discount for the students. "Lifeguard Susannah Matthews provided diligent service," the AmeriCorps member said. Splashing around on tubes in the background of the photo above are Andy Shockey and Tony Cerrito; in the middle are Tinsa Wilt, Krystal Housley, Rachael Paugh, Holly Holler, Evan Thayer, Amanda Glotfelty, Joe Graham, Jenna Culp, Charles French, Ann Johnson, Dan Thayer, and Joe Sliger; and in the foreground are E.J. Floyd Baker To Run For Garrett County Sheriff

A McHenry area man has tossed his hat into the race for the position of Garrett County sheriff. Floyd Baker, 336 Springwood Acres, who had 11 years of experience working for the Washington, D.C., Metropolitan Police Department, filed this week as a Democrat candidate for the office, currently held by Richard Sanders.

Among Baker's duties with the D.C. police force were uniformed protection of the president of the United States, riot control, SWAT team, and drug patrol. He served as vice president of the D.C. Police Association. He resigned from his position in 1974 and moved to Garrett County. He and his wife, the former Patsy Riley of Friendsville, wanted to rear their four children in Garrett County.

Locally, Baker's employment included 14 years with the Mettiki Coal Corporation and part-time work at the Garrett County Fairgrounds and Alpine Village Motel. Baker holds two associate in arts degrees from Garrett Community College.

Baker is also a veteran of the U.S. military, having served with the 503rd Commando Battalion of the 11th Airborne and the 504th Infantry of the 82nd Airborne. He was honorably discharged in 1956 with the rank of sergeant.

In the area of community service, Baker has served as a Boy Scout master, a Little League manager, and Pony League umpire, is past president of Garrett County Crime Solvers, and is a cofounder and past president of the Garrett County Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. He received a Governor's Citation and an Ounce of Prevention Award from Governor Wm. Donald Schaefer.

Baker is a member of Proctor Kildow Post 71, American Legion, Oakland; Oakland Masonic Lodge #192; Scottish Rite, Cumberland; Crime Solvers of Garrett County; and the Democratic Club.

"If I am elected sheriff of Garrett County, I want to make the sheriff's office as professional as possible," he said. "This would include training in public and self protection, and serving the public with common sense and good will. It would also involve training county deputies to understand the situations in which they find themselves, the ramifications of their actions, and how to exercise good judgment and control."

Baker said he would strive to operate the office efficiently "with hopes of reducing the budget." He said that he would "promote from within and attempt to change the law on chief deputy status, which would allow more stability and control to prevent malfeasance in office."

Baker added that he would "run an aggressive public relations program to encourage police and citizen cooperation and mutual respect," that he would "go after drug peddlers and distributors with a vengeance," and that he would "cooperate with and make use of the expertise and assets of state and federal law enforcement agencies."

Baker and his wife are the parents of four children: Richard, with the U.S. Air Force, Tampa, Fla.; Kathleen Hale-Cooper, Youth for Christ, Springs, Pa.; Steven, U.S. Air Force, Charleston, S.C.; and Deborah Carpenter, McHenry, who is an employee of Garrett County government. The Bakers also have eight grandchildren.

Arrests Reported In Two Incidents Of Auto Theft

Arrests were made this week by Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, in two separate cases of auto theft.

The police report stated that Harvey S. Truitt, 31, Frederick, was arrested on Tuesday and charged with several counts including theft of a 1983 Chevrolet pick-up truck.

According to the report, an officer attempted to stop Truitt, who had failed to pay for gas at Fuel City, Grantsville. Truitt fled and a chase reportedly ensued, which covered about 25 miles and reached speeds greater than 100 mph.

The vehicle stopped at Old Morgantown Road, near I-68, where the driver and two other suspects abandoned the truck and fled on foot. All three were apprehended shortly thereafter.

The other individuals, apprehended along with Truitt, were Edgar B. Browne IV, 25, Mt. Airy, and a juvenile, who was released to juvenile services.

Among the charges filed against Truitt and Browne were theft, fleeing and eluding police, malicious destruction of property, driving while intoxicated, possession of controlled dangerous substances, and CDS paraphernalia, and 11 traffic violations. The stolen property, a Chevy truck, 17.7 gallons of gasoline, and a cellular phone, were all recovered.

Released To Parents

Police received a complaint of a vehicle theft made by Claire A. Liuksila, Washington, D.C. The incident was reported to have occurred Saturday around 6 p.m.

The vehicle was reported traveling north on Route 219 in Accident. The police intercepted the car, which was occupied by two juvenile runaways from D.C., the report said.

The juveniles were arrested without incident on Route 219 at Stockyard Road. They were released to their parents and to authorities from juvenile justice.

Beulah Moon attended the Allegany County Band Festival at Fort Hill High School, Cumberland, where her granddaughter, Jessica Moon of Beall Middle School was a participant.

Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty, twin sons of Rodney and Marci Glotfelty, celebrated their 9th birthdays on Sunday, with their cousins, the Bass kids and the Sussman girls.

Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Ida Reckner were Mr. & Mrs. Tom Glotfelty and sons and Mr. & Mrs. Jim Glotfelty.

Donna Glotfelty had outpatient surgery at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland on Wednesday to repair a damaged rotator cuff.

Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Poholsky were in Altoona, Pa., on Saturday to attend a surprise party for Tom Krise, a longtime friend of Lenny's. They spent the night in Johnstown and spent Sunday at Seven Springs Resort.

Recent dinner guests of Dave and Nancy Beachy were the Poholskys, Sam, Cindy, Aaron, and Lea Stanton and Ferne Beachy. The occasion was the first visit to Garrett County by Wyatt Smyles Beachy, infant son of Brent and Kelly Beachy, Clarkston, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Stanton, Aaron and Lea, Ferne Beachy, and Alison Searles celebrated Lea's 19th birthday on Sunday at Point View Inn Restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Buckel, Adelphi, attended a conference at Rocky Gap Resort and then visited with Ferne Beachy, Beulah Moon, and Blair Buckel.

As a result of my last column, I have one new member of the "New Nightmares," Meredith Vagnetti. She said she feels just like me in terms of the need to roam. We are planning to "shop 'til we drop" for ponies at the end of May at the Horse Sale at Friend's Stockyard in Accident.

Meredith's husband Rob was busy last week in the county's trout streams with Ruth DiPaolo. I don't know if they caught any fish. If not, what did they do all day?

Mere and Caity had their first swim practice on Saturday morning for the Garrett County Manta Rays. Claire is returning for her second year. Lloyd is working on his Senior lifesaving certification, so he's also spending a lot of time in the pool. The pool right now is the center of our leisure time. The girls like to sing a little song, "Swimming, swimming, in the swimming pool, when the day is hot, or when the day is cold in the swimming pool. Breast stroke, back stroke, fancy diving; oh wouldn't it be nice to have nothing else to do, etc." For me the dog paddle was my greatest achievement in the water.

Many 4-H members from the Bittinger 4-H Club were on hand for the County 4-H Achievement Night on Saturday evening at Southern High school. Vicki Teets-Taliaferro was honored with an Alumni Award presented by Blakely Glotfelty. Vicki was a member of the Bittinger Club from 1962 to 1969, at the same time as I was a member. She was active with the beef project, livestock judging, public speaking, sewing, cooking and dress revue. Like myself, she was primarily an outdoor girl. We found the feminine projects nervewracking. Vicki did succeed in winning the honor of Farm Queen at the Fair in 1969. Now, she is leader of the Bittinger 4-H Club. The Club won the Banner Award for overall club work, activities, and programs. Don Sealing, former leader, was presented with the "Friends of 4-H Award," especially for his work at the Fair. His granddaughter, Jenny Weller-Marple, was honored for three years of service as a volunteer. Robbie Glotfelty, as a public speaking winner, led the pledge to the flag. Robbie won a project award for his Pen Pals project for his work with Elvis, his Guinea pig. Claire was honored for Pet Pals and received a pin for her dog project. Dawn Lohr won the County Spirit Award.

Rodney Glotfelty presented the Dr. Scott A. Glotfelty Memorial Award to Jody Friend, for his service to other people.

I think this evening Claire will have to go back to work on her dog project . Her dog Boo came in the house this afternoon and he smelled to high heaven! She (Boo, that is), found some disgusting dead thing and rolled in it. It's a big rite of spring for the farm dog. Tonight she will have her spring cleaning.

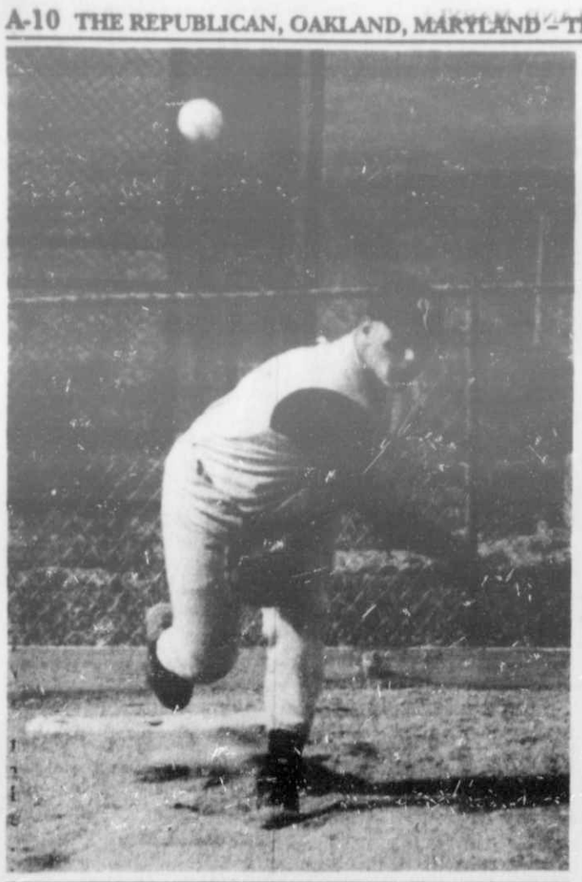
CLOSED EASTER SUNDAY



IF IT'S SPRING, IT MUST BE BASEBALL - A sunny afternoon Tuesday and a big 12-1, 16-1 doubleheader sweep by the Garrett Community College (GCC) baseball team over Montgomery-Rockville Community College in McHenry were enough to warm the heart of any Garrett Countian as winter loosened its grip. At left, multi-talented Laker pitcher and hitter Denny Rulli warms up in the bullpen in preparation for his six-strikeout victory. The sophomore's bat made as big an impact as his arm, for he swatted home runs in both ends of the twinbill, driving in six runs for the day. Rulli stands 3-0 on the mound and is batting .396 for the season. Above, freshman second baseman Chris Powell, who leads the team in hitting this year with a .403 average, lays into an opponent's pitch as a herd of cows (or black bears?) contentedly graze in the distant pasture, unfazed by the games of man. In this case, the grass must be equally green on the both sides of the fence.

After Slow Start, Lakers' Tide Turns Mid-Week To Gain Split

After starting the week off on the wrong foot by dropping a doubleheader to Allegany College, the Garrett Community College (GCC) baseball team roared back by taking three of its next four games, splitting a twinbill with Alfred State University, then back-to-back maulings of Montgomery-Rockville Community College Tuesday in McHenry. Defense appeared to be the difference between winning and losing, as the Lakers offense produced enough runs to conceivably take every contest of the week.

In Cumberland Saturday afternoon, Allegany rolled over the Lakers 11-7 and 22-5, but "the scores didn't indicate how close the two teams were," GCC head coach Ed Wildsen commented, pointing to seven unearned runs in the opener for evidence.

In the first game the Trojans jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning with help from Doug Sowers's home run off Laker pitcher Mike Maravich. GCC then retook the lead with five runs in the second inning, which in turn were answered by four runs by the hosts in the bottom of the same inning, sparked by a home run by Mike Goldberg. Garrett responded with two runs in the fourth inning, but Allegany kept coming, sending two runs across the plate in both the fifth and sixth innings.

Speedy freshman Chris Powell led the Laker offense with three hits, including two triples, and four RBI. Andy Blackwell and Matt DiAngelo, both freshmen as well, had three hits and two hits respectively. Allegany's offense was assisted by Raffe Boria's two hits and one RBI, as Trojan relief pitcher John Hockenbrock picked up his first win, fanning four Lakers in the process.

What had started out bad enough got only worse in the second game, as the Lakers were pounded by seven Trojan runs in the opening inning, followed by three runs in the second, four in the third, four in the fifth, and four in the sixth. After chalking up three runs in the first, Garrett's offense went cold except for a two-run fifth inning.

Jason Davis had three hits and two RBI, and Blackwell added two hits for the Lakers as well. Allegany's Chuck Conley had a big day with a single, a double, two triples, and six RBI. Jason Harrison blasted a three-run homer, a double, and two singles, while Bill Greenwell had a double and two singles, driving in three runs. Mike Martin won his fourth game in an undefeated season so far for the Trojan ace.

The Lakers' tide began to turn against the Saxons of Alfred State on Tuesday with a doubleheader split. GCC took the first game, 3-0, but fell in the second, 11-8. Once again, pitching and fielding appeared to spell the difference, as a possible doubleheader sweep was turned into an actual doubleheader split.

The young arm of freshman pitcher Chad Ord paced his teammates to the opening victory, as the 6'4" lefty put on a Don Drysdale performance, whiffing seven Saxons in hurling a two-hit complete game shutout. Garrett's offense scored one run in the first inning and two in the third inning to provide all the runs Ord needed. Denny Rulli drove in two runs with two doubles and Southern alum Jeremy Fitzwater drove in one run with a double of his own.

On the mound for game two, Fitzwater "pitched well enough to win," said Wildesen, although the sophomore's performance had its rough edges. Fitzwater gave up three walks and a home run to both Eric Hanson and Seth Johnson during a five-run third inning for the Saxons, and was lifted after five innings. Although the game was never out of reach, the Lakers defense "made a crucial error with two outs in the third that cost us the game," Wildesen observed.

Garrett's Davis went three-for-four with two RBI doubles and scored two runs, while Blackwell went two-for-three with a double. Two singles from Brian Hays helped round out the Lakers' offense. Alfred's Eric Huber led his team with a two-for-three performance.

Tuesday against Rockville, sophomore Denny Rulli stepped up to lead the Lakers to a 12-1, 16-1 sweep to cap the Lakers' week. Rulli hit home runs in both games, and took the second game with his pitching arm.

Mike Maravich tossed a four-hitter with three strikeouts in the opener, bringing his record for the Lakers up to 3-3. Rulli's two-run homer and DiAngelo's three RBI on a double and a single helped provide more than enough firepower for the freshman pitcher. Davis scored two runs after a double and a single, and Hays also scored a pair of runs.

Rulli wound up and fanned six batters in a six-hitter nightcap. He helped his cause by driving in four runs with his homer and four singles, while Gene Sethman, who scored three times himself, had three RBI in tallying a single, a double, and a home run. Lee Pennington added a home run of his own, and a single. Powell singled and doubled twice, driving in three runs, Eric Harper added a double and a single, Davis singled twice, and Joe Eisner doubled. The Lakers' onslaught totaled 17 hits for the game.

With a 15-5 record, GCC is poised to take on Essex Community College on Tuesday, April 14, in an away doubleheader. A home stand of twinbills follows, as Anne Arundel visits McHenry on Saturday, April 18, Beaver plays at GCC on Sunday, April 19, and Hagerstown visits on Tuesday, April 21.

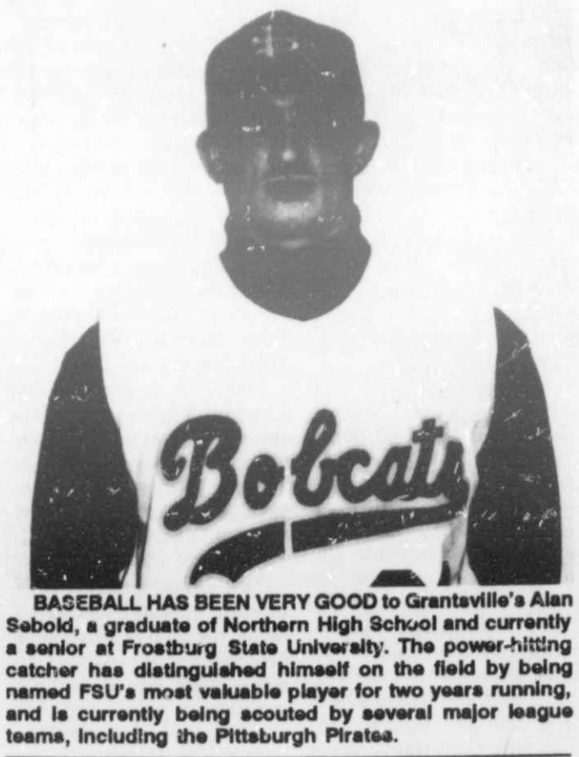
Former Husky Star, Two-Time FSU MVP, Sebold Dreams Of The Majors



BASEBALL HAS BEEN VERY GOOD to Grantsville's Alan Sebold, a graduate of Northern High School and currently a senior at Frostburg State University. The power-hitting catcher has distinguished himself on the field by being named FSU's most valuable player for two years running, and is currently being scouted by several major league teams, including the Pittsburgh Pirates.

by David Foster

"The closest Garrett County has had to the real thing in 10 years or more," Northern High School (NHS) head coach Phil Carr said of his former Husky standout Alan Sebold, currently a power-hitting catcher for Frostburg State University. The majors evidently agree, as scouts for the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Arizona Diamondbacks have been taking notes on Sebold's talents this season, and four years ago the Baltimore Orioles even spent a late-round draft pick on the 1994 NHS graduate before he received his high school diploma.

Sebold's journey to the big leagues' doorsteps began in his family's Grantsville backyard. Although playing opportunities with his dad, Gary, were limited because of his father's long hours at work, mother Judy stepped in as his first coach — and first victim of his bat. "When Alan was little I would pitch to him and his little sister Anne in the backyard," Judy recalled. "He took to it right off, and now we all laugh about how Anne used to get tired of chasing down the ball when he'd hit it out of the yard."

Later, when Sebold outgrew the family's backyard, he would pedal his bicycle down to Grantsville's town park, with glove and bat slung over his shoulder. "I've dreamt of playing in the majors ever since I was a little kid," he recalled recently, "and my buddies and I would play pick-up ballgames and pitcher's poison at the park all day long. That went on for years, even while we were playing organized little league ball, until we were already into high school."

Sebold's first little league

Rams Stopped By Weather, Second Time By Knights

Because of a lack of cooperation by Mother Nature, the Southern Rams have played only two varsity baseball games so far this season, both with Preston County and both ending in defeat, as the Rams lost to visiting Preston Tuesday, 7-1. Coach Jim Bosley's squad opened its season on March 28 with a 6-5 loss to the Knights and has had several games postponed since that day.

In Tuesday's loss, the Rams managed just five hits off Mark Ankney, while the Knights recorded nine hits off four Southern pitchers, including back-to-back homers by Scott Benson and Pat Street.

The game was a scoreless pitchers' dual until the top of the fourth inning, when Preston scored three runs. The Knights added four runs in the fifth behind Benson's two-run blast and a solo shot by Street.

The Rams averted a shutout when Josh Bosley singled in the bottom of the sixth and then scored on a two-out double by Mike Bittinger.

Street also had a single for Preston and Danny Liston recorded two singles.

The Rams were to have played Allegany yesterday, but the game was postponed because of thunderstorms. They will host their own Easter tournament this Saturday, with Petersburg and Meyersdale being the other participants. The Rams will meet Meyersdale at 10 a.m., Petersburg will play Meyersdale at 1 p.m., and Southern will play Petersburg at 4 p.m. The Rams will host Fort Hill on Monday and travel to Westmar next Wednesday.

RAMS FALL AGAIN TO KNIGHTS - Weather has played havoc with the varsity baseball schedule of the Southern High School Rams, who have managed to play just two games so far this season. Both of the contests were against Preston County and both ended in losses for Coach Jim Bosley's team. The photos above were taken at Tuesday's game, which the Knights won by a 7-1 margin. Caught in the middle of his windup at left is Ram pitcher Derek Everd, and connecting for one of the Rams' few hits in the game in the above photo is Jason Weaver. The Rams had another game postponed last night, but will try to host a three-team Easter tournament this Saturday with Meyersdale and Petersburg.

Huskies Split With Mapletown Before Being Topped By Alco

After splitting a doubleheader with Mapletown Saturday, the Northern varsity baseball team dropped a 14-4 contest to visiting Allegany on Monday. The results left Coach Phil Carr's Huskies with a 3-5 record overall and a 1-4 mark in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League.

The Huskies were nipped 1-0 in the first game against Mapletown on Saturday, despite the fact that Matt Fritz and Matt Settle combined on a one-hitter for the Huskies. The only Mapletown hit, and the only run of the game, was scored when Jay Dias hit a run-producing double in the fourth inning.

Missed opportunities for the Huskies included a chance to tie the game in the third inning when Matt Fritz was thrown out on an overthrow that hit a fence pole and bounced right back to the first baseman. Another was in the seventh when the Huskies had runners at second and third, but left them stranded.

Curtis Hartley and John Rudman combined on a four-hitter for the Mapletown win. Fritz, Zach Rawe, Scott Sisler, and Adam Bach each had a single for the Huskies.

The second game featured a 16-hit performance by the Huskies, who coasted to a 17-3 victory in just five innings, as the game was then called because of the 10-run rule.

After a scoreless first inning, Northern erupted for nine runs in the top of the second, three in the third, four in the fourth, and one more in the fifth.

Bach led Northern's hitting effort with a triple and a single for two RBI, Fritz had two singles and an RBI, Josh Henderson contributed a run-producing double and an RBI single, Sisler hit two singles and had an RBI, Jeremy Reed smacked two singles and finished with four RBI, Jeremy Hoover had two singles for two RBI, Rawe and Matt Hauser each provided a run-producing double, Jeff Carr singled for one run, and Chris Herman doubled.

Reed was relieved by Carr in the fifth inning and the two allowed only three Mapletown hits. The Pennsylvania team scored all three of its runs in the bottom of the fifth.

The Huskies held a brief, 4-3 lead in the game against Allegany on Monday, but the Campers ripped the Northern defense for five runs in the top of the third and then scored nine more in the fourth. The contest was called after five complete innings because of the 10-run rule.

After Allegany took a 3-0 lead in the top of the second, the Huskies scored all four of their runs in the bottom of that frame behind a two-run homer by Chris Herman and a two-run single by Zach Rawe.

Getting multiple hits for the Huskies in a seven-hit team effort were Matt Fritz, with a double and a single, and Jeremy Reed with two singles.

Allegany (4-2 overall, 3-1 WMIL) finished with 14 hits and were led by Adam Schmitt with four singles and five RBI. Sam Long had a double and a single for three RBI, Matt Zealand finished with three singles for four RBI, and Nick Yoder added a double.

The Huskies were to have hosted Fort Hill yesterday, but the game had to be postponed because of thunder and lightning. They will try to get back into the win column in an Easter tournament at Mt. Savage this Saturday, and will then play at Beall next Tuesday.

Northern Girls Top Southern Before Losing Two Close Ones

The girls' softball team of Northern High School recorded a big 10-7 victory over previously unbeaten Southern last Thursday evening in Oakland before dropping a pair of heartbreakers and watching their record slip to 3-4. The one-run losses came at the hands of visiting Hyndman on Monday, 5-4, and to host Fort Hill on Tuesday, 10-9.

Mimi Harvey paced the Huskies' offense against the Southern Rams, as she finished with three hits in four at-bats, while Ashley "Pickle" Reese went 3-for-5 for the Rams with two RBI.

The Rams held a brief 1-0 lead, and the score was tied at 2-2 going into the bottom of the fourth, but that's when the Huskies erupted for five runs to make it 7-2. Northern added two runs in the fifth and another in the sixth, then held off the Rams, who scored two in the sixth and three in the seventh.

Earning the win on the mound were Jenny Thomas, who pitched the first five innings, and Arissa Kenner, who picked up the save. Jennifer Teagarden took the loss.

The loss dropped the Rams to 2-1.

The Huskies out-hit Hyndman on Monday by a 9-4 margin, but the Hornets took a 5-2 lead in the top of the sixth and then stopped a Northern rally in the bottom of the sixth when the Huskies scored two runs.

Jenny Thomas went the distance on the mound for Northern and allowed only four hits, two of which were singles by Ann Shaffer. Hit leaders for the Huskies were Harvey, Brooke Brenneman, and Heidi Frazee, who each recorded two singles.

Northern took a 9-8 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning Tuesday against Fort Hill at Cavanaugh Field in Cumberland, but the Sentinels got a two-run double from Gretchen Pryor in that inning to pick up the Western Maryland Interscholastic League win.

The Huskies were limited to five hits by Carrie Liller, who tossed into the seventh, and reliever Kristie Stone, who took the mound when Liller got into trouble. Northern scored four runs in the top of the seventh to take their first lead of the game.

Stone hit a double for Fort Hill (5-12, 3-1 WMIL), while Anjie Hines and Liller each rapped two singles.

Brenneman hit a pair of singles for the Huskies and Jackie Brenneman and Andria McRobie each contributed a triple.

The Huskies will play again Friday at home against Flintstone. They will travel to Westmar next Tuesday and host Allegany next Thursday.

SHS Jayvees Whip Wildcats

The Southern junior varsity baseball team had no problem opening its season with a victory, as the Rams crushed the Westmar jayvees, 12-0, Monday in Lonaconing. Christian Warfield and Jason Finch combined on the shutout, with Warfield pitching the first four innings and Finch striking out six of the nine batters he faced in the final three innings. The two allowed a total of five hits.

Warfield aided his own cause with a double and a single, and also scored once, while Jon Browning finished with a pair of hits and scored three times. Mike Shahan rapped a triple and also scored three times.

Getting two of the Wildcats' five hits was Chip Wilson, who had two singles, while Scott Lee stroked a triple. Taking the loss on the mound was Josh Glass.

The Rams, coached by Tom Bosley, will play again this Friday at Keyser. The doubleheader will get underway at 11 a.m.

Husky Jayvees Edged By Alco

An RBI by Billy Crippen in the bottom of the eighth inning gave the Allegany junior varsity a 10-9 win over visiting Northern on Tuesday. The loss evened the Huskies' record at 1-1 and improved the Campers' mark to 3-1.

Crippen knocked in Troy Weisenmiller for the winning run and also recorded a triple and two singles. Weisenmiller, Clark, and Simpson each singled twice.

The Huskies' offense was led by Adam Brenneman, Tim Umbel, and T.J. Workman each hitting a double and two singles.

The Huskies will play again today at Fort Hill.

Ram Softball Team Topped By Northern, Alco

After winning their first two games of the season, the Southern High School girls' softball team had its record evened at 2-2 this week, as the Rams were topped by visiting Northern last Thursday, 10-7 (see separate story), and were then whipped by host Allegany on Monday, 12-2.

The Rams managed just four hits in the game against unbeaten Allegany (7-0, 5-0 WMIL), and the contest was stopped in the sixth inning because of the 10-run rule. Going the distance for the Campers was Staci Walton, who struck out five and walked just two.

Pickle Reese had half of Southern's hits, an RBI double and a single, while Jennifer Sanders hit the other two, both singles.

Alco's 10-hit afternoon was led by Kelly Keith and Corinthia Kendall, who each hit a double and a single, and Heather Laffey, who had two singles. Jennifer Teagarden took the loss on the mound for the Rams.

Southern is slated to play at Preston this afternoon.

The Southern junior varsity team was also defeated Monday in Cumberland by the Bishop Walsh squad, 16-8.

The Rams managed just three hits off BW pitcher Tiffini Wagner, who aided her own case at the plate with a triple and a single. Missy Geatz and Erin McCormick each had three singles for the winners, while Becky Gerhard and Amy Smith each hit two singles.

Michelle Kerr hit a two-run single for Southern.

IT'S BEEN FIVE MONTHS since the Southern High School boys' cross country team won its fifth consecutive Maryland State 1A championship, but it always takes that long for them to receive from the state the banner that makes the victory official and that will take its place of honor on the walls of the SHS gymnasium. The banner was presented to the team by the Garrett County Board of Education at its monthly meeting Tuesday. Pictured from left are: Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of schools; team members Mike Bittinger, Dan Sincell, Beau Gibson, Jon Browning, and Ted Wolf; Coach Carl Booth; and board chair Patrick Riley. The banner also displays the Rams' incredible record for the 1997 — 130 victories and two defeats. Other team members not present for the photo are: Casey McBee, George Tichnell, Eric Rexrode, Pete Porcaro, Sean Conroy, Rusty Strubin, Dan Shafer, Andrew Sisler, and Richard Cornelius.

Scofield Leads GCC's AVS Skiers Throughout Year

The Garrett Community College (GCC) Adventuresports (AVS) ski team was led this past winter by E.J. Scofield, son of Ed Scofield of Accident and Jolene Scofield of McHenry. The physical therapy major was the ski team's mainstay through its Allegheny Conference and intercollegiate races.

For the year, Scofield finished in the top three in six out the eight Allegheny Conference races. In individual competition he was first overall in the giant slalom, with Ryan Church of Penn State placing second and Tullio Celano of the Naval Academy finishing third. Scofield also finished third overall in the slalom, with Celano placing first and Brandon Manns of WVU placing second. Scofield was first overall in the combined slalom and giant slalom as well.

Scofield's conference performance resulted in his being named to the first team of the All-Allegheny Conference Ski Team. In representing the conference at the 16-team mid-Atlantic regionals held in New Jersey recently, Scofield placed eighth in the giant slalom and 13th in the combined slalom and giant slalom. Scofield competed against Penn State University, University of Pittsburgh, West Virginia University, University of Maryland, West Chester College, and the U.S. Naval Academy.

GCC competed in five intercollegiate ski races through the year and was the only two-year college represented in the Mid-Atlantic region, according to Mike Logsdon, director of the college's AVS program.

YOU HAD TO LOOK FAST to catch a glimpse of Garrett Community College's E.J. Scofield speeding down the slopes as he led the college's Adventuresports Ski Team through an excellent season this past winter. Going up against much larger four-year institutions, the Lakers distinguished themselves on every hill they competed on. Scofield, a Garrett County native, was named to first team All-Allegheny Conference this year after taking overall top honors in both the slalom and combined slalom and giant slalom competitions, and third place in the slalom.

Southern Boys Lose First On Courts, Girls Defeated Twice

The boys' tennis team of Southern High School sustained its first defeat of the season by being edged by host Allegany on Monday, 4-3, after rolling over Keyser last Thursday, 6-1, on the Golden Tornado's courts. The loss to unbeaten Allegany (4-0) dropped the Rams' record to 4-1.

The Southern girls' team dropped both of its matches, falling to Keyser on Thursday, 6-1, and losing by the same score to Allegany on Monday.

Pacing the Southern boys over Keyser were Brandon Ferguson, Melvin Rexrode, Mike Pamepinto, and Justin Stephens, who swept the singles competition. The doubles teams of Ferguson and Rexrode, and Pamepinto and Stephens were also victorious. The only point for Keyser was recorded by the doubles team of Derrick Shank and Nick Taylor.

The only point recorded for the Southern girls was by Desiree Spadey, who won her singles match.

Winning in singles for the 5-1 Keyser girls were Jenni Woy, Nikki Criser, and Molly Lemon.

Ferguson, Stephens, and Pamepinto each won in singles against Allegany on Monday, but those were to be the only points scored by the Rams.

Fedrico Pino and Kevin Drew were singles winners for the Campers, while the teams of Pino and John Failing, and Matt Stafford and Justin Carter each won to give Allegany the one-point team win.

The only point recorded by a Southern girl against Allegany was again by Spadey, who won her singles match.

Winning in singles for Alco (3-0) were Ann Failing, Natalie Hodges, Erin Hohing, and Brooke Friedenberg.

DNR Seminar

that are causing nuisance complaints to DNR are mainly just looking for food, which all too often is in garbage left out by unsuspecting humans. Over half our calls regarding black bear activity stem from bears in garbage and bears pulling down birdfeeders."

Visitors to the Deep Creek Lake area may unwittingly be compounding the problem, as 40 percent of 1997's nuisance complaints came from within one mile of the lake, mainly in the Rock Lodge Road area, Bittner said. He and the DNR panel repeatedly stressed the need to remove any and all potential food sources for bears, especially by proper disposal of garbage and taking in birdfeeders at night.

"I've lived in Garrett County for 50 years," Oakland resident Dick Friend commented during the course of the seminar. "The bears were here first, and living with them is just a matter of common sense. We can do it."

DNR personnel said that a public meeting is still projected for sometime next month that will bring DNR Secretary John R. Griffin to Garrett County to discuss black bear issues and concerns with local residents.

Related articles in coming issues of The Republican will highlight a recent meeting between DNR officials and rental agents regarding getting the word out to tourists on how to live with black bears. A second article by DNR's Bittner will detail suggestions on coexisting with black bears and avoiding problems, as well as reporting on the recent den count of sows and cubs.

Snake Bites

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

Now that we are into the month of April, spring-type activities will be increasing and a lot more time will be spent outdoors. Also, it means that wildlife species that had been hibernating will be out and about, and contact with humans will be inevitable. Generally, this contact is a good thing. However, with some species of snakes indigenous to the Garrett County area, some caution is in order.

One venomous snake possible to contact here is the copperhead. Copperheads are found from Massachusetts to Florida and Texas and as far west as Nebraska. They live in habitat as varied as wooded hillsides, brushy creek banks, abandoned buildings, etc. Typically, they will use rocky outcrops for cover. Copperheads are medium-size snakes, rarely exceeding 36 inches in length. The species gets its name because of the copper or bronze tone of the top and sides of its head. Newborn and juveniles have a yellow tip to their tail.

Copperheads are generally active in this area from April to November. Copperheads feed most actively at night when it is relatively cool and hide from the heat of the day. They will eat small mammals, other reptiles, amphibians, and insects. The copperhead isn't usually aggressive and their venom isn't very strong as venoms go. Rarely is there a human fatality from a copperhead bite; however, the bite can be painful and accompanied by considerable swelling. By using caution when in copperhead-friendly environment, most bites are easily avoided.

Snakes have always been surrounded by myths. One myth is that a copperhead gives off an odor that smells like cucumbers. The reality is that all snakes produce an unpleasant musk when handled or frightened. This is all defense on their part. Another tale is that copperheads have bred with rat snakes, creating a new venomous species. This is biologically impossible, as copperheads give birth to fully formed young while the rat snake lays eggs.

Should one be bitten by a copperhead, the best action is to remain calm and get to a qualified medical doctor as soon as possible. Professional wildlife lecturer and snake handler Larry Battson recommends that the care be left to a doctor rather than trying to slit wounds and apply tourniquets, etc.

CREEL SURVEY ON YOUGHIOGHENY LAKE

The Maryland DNR will be cooperating with the Army Corps of Engineers and the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission in conducting a creel survey at Youghiogheny River Lake throughout 1998. The survey will seek extensive angler information, including amount of time fished, species sought, type of fish caught, number of fish kept or released, length of fish kept, and general angler opinions. Information will be gathered from both boat and shore anglers.

The survey period began in mid-March and will continue until late October. Both the Maryland and Pennsylvania portions will be studied along with a portion of the Youghiogheny River in Maryland.

JOIN THE "BIRDS IN FORESTED LANDSCAPES" PROJECT

The Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology (CLO) is inviting birders to help learn more about how habitat features are related to the breeding success of North American thrushes and two species of raptors, the Cooper's and sharp-shinned hawks. Of particular interest is the impact of fragmentation; that is, the division of large tracts of forest into smaller parcels separated by non-forested habitats such as residential and commercial developments. Findings from the study will be incorporated into the North American Bird Conservation Plan to help guide conservation efforts for migratory birds.

Participants receive a research kit that includes a tape or CD of thrush and/or hawk vocalizations, species profiles, tips for finding nests, and complete instructions. Volunteers select study sites in forest patches of various sizes and survey for thrushes or hawks, or both, on multiple visits, using recordings of their songs and calls. Habitat characteristics of sites are also recorded. Time commitment by participants varies, depending on the number of study sites and species.

CLO says you don't have to be an expert to participate. You need only to know those few species that are present in Garrett County. If you aren't familiar with them already, the training tapes and field guide will teach you all you need to know. There is no fee to participate. To sign up or receive more information, call 607-254-2446 or send an e-mail message to forest birds@cornell.edu.

ARCHERY LEAGUE REPORT

Winter archery league shooting is already or just about to be finished in both local leagues. Larry Iden at AMC said that right now it was too close to call; but, they should have a winner to announce by the next time this column appears.

Dan Milavec at D&B Sport Shop told us that the fist place winners in his league would be the team of Jamie Streets, Mike Droppleman, and Ricky Jones. Second place will go to the team of John Sines, Dan McKenzie, and Lonnie Artice, and third place was too close to call. The contenders there are Terry Lucas, Roger Hinebaugh, and Darrell Welch versus Tom Layton, Dan Layton, and Don Kisner.

KITZMILLER ELEMENTARY SCHOOL AQUARIUM

Maryland Fisheries personnel assisted Kitzmiller Elementary School in developing a 60-gallon aquarium display obtained from the Chesapeake Bay Foundation. Fisheries personnel supplied several species of fish for the aquarium, including bluegills, pumpkinseeds, black crappie, largemouth bass, and golden shiners. Students will feed and monitor the growth of the fish.

through education and public health initiatives. Maryland must support the wise use and conservation of our natural resources by working more closely with farmers, businesses, and outdoor sports enthusiasts in our community.

"In making my decision to seek this office, I have heard from many in our party that Republicans are looking for leadership and a change in the District 1 senate seat. In this election we will be choosing a state senator who will be our voice and lead us into the next millennium. I feel that I can provide that leadership and make this senate seat one that commands the respect and attention that it deserves as we move into the year 2000," he said.

"As a native and active participant in my community, I pledge that if elected, I will work in collaboration with the rest of our Western Maryland delegation and the General Assembly to give the people of Garrett and Allegany counties the representation they deserve in the Maryland State Senate," he concluded.

Thomas, a resident of Garrett County, grew up on a family farm in the Friendsville area and was an active member in the local 4-H program.

He graduated from Northern High School in 1970, where he served as senior class president and was a member of the band and Letterman's Club. He began his college career at Allegany Community College, continued at Garrett Community College, and graduated from West Virginia University. While attending the College of Agriculture and Forestry at WVU, Thomas was awarded the prestigious Sphinx Award for his academic achievements. He received three degrees, graduating in 1974 with a B.S. in animal and veterinary science, 1976 with a B.S. in agriculture, and again in the fall of 1997 with a master's in agriculture.

Upon graduation from WVU, Thomas accepted a position with the Virginia Polytechnic & State University Extension Service as an Extension agent in Dinwiddie County, Va. He was responsible for the 4-H programs and dairy farm activities in that county, increasing the total 4-H enrollment in the county by over 50 percent through his work with the local school system and the incorporation of the 4-H programs in the school classrooms.

Looking to move back to his home county, Thomas accepted a position at Mettiki in 1979 as a general laborer. Over the past 19 years, he has held positions with responsibilities for environmental compliance and permitting, land and mineral acquisitions, human resources, and public relations. Briefly, Thomas taught animal science as a part-time adjunct instructor at Garrett Community College as part of the college's Vet Tech program.

As corporate affairs manager, Thomas's current position entails the development of public relations and government affairs strategies in Maryland, West Virginia, and Washington, D.C., for Mettiki and MAPCO Coal Inc. He has directed Mettiki's community involvement activities for 10 years, emphasizing the importance of building strong corporate partnerships with local programs, such as the Garrett County School System, Garrett Community College, Allegany College of Maryland, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and the Garrett County Sanitary District. Thomas is also responsible for supporting community activities like the Rocky Gap Music Festival, Autumn Glory Festival, Garrett County Fair 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale, Garrett County Hospice, and numerous other local nonprofit programs.

Currently, Thomas serves on the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Board of Governors and the hospital's George Loar Foundation Committee. He is the vice-chairman of the Garrett County Soil Conservation District, where he has been the Western Area representative to the State Soil Conservation Committee representing all Maryland counties from Carroll County west to Garrett County. Thomas is also the current chairman of the State Soil Conservation Committee. He is the recipient of the Supervisor of the Year Award by the Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts in 1990. He serves as president of the Maryland Coal Association, is a member of the Maryland Attorney Grievance Commission, and was recently appointed by the Garrett County Commissioners to the Deep Creek Lake/Garrett County Advisory Committee.

Thomas was recently appointed to the board of directors of The Potomac Heritage Partnership in Washington, D.C. In 1997, he was appointed by Governor Parris Glendening, Speaker of the House Casper R. Taylor, and Senate President Mike Miller to serve on the Electric Utility Reorganization Advisory Committee. In 1996, he was appointed by Governor Glendening to participate on the Governor's Advisory Council on Railroad Mergers, and he served on former Governor William Schaefer's Energy Task Force from 1991 to 1994. He has served on the Appalachian Environmental Laboratory Board of Visitors at Frostburg State University, served on the Youghiogheny River Advisory Board from 1989 to 1994 and, in 1988, was part of a state delegation chosen by Governor Schaefer as part of the Governor's Mission to Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

Thomas is a "Leadership Maryland" graduate and, at the present, only one of two Garrett County residents who have had the privilege of participating in "Leadership Maryland." He is a certified emergency medical technician (EMT) in the state of Maryland.

Thomas and his wife Nancy currently live in the Oakland area. Mrs. Thomas is also originally from the Friendsville area and is employed by the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families. Both of their children, Cynthia and Matthew, are graduates of Northern High School. Cynthia is a student at West Virginia University and Matthew is a student at Western Maryland College.

The Thomases are active members of the Friendsville United Methodist Church, where Thomas is the church recorder and a tenor soloist in the Friendsville Community Choir. He has served on the board of trustees and is a former president of the administrative council at his church.

Feld Dies

Born Jan. 14, 1918, in Weston, W.Va., he was a son of the late Frank H. and Rachel (Leibowitz) Feld. He moved to Oakland in 1931, graduated from Oakland High School in 1935, and the Wharton School of Finance of the University of Pennsylvania in 1939.

Feld served four and one-half years in the U.S Army Quartermaster Corps, serving two and one-half years in the South Pacific. He was discharged with the rank of captain in 1946.

He was active in community affairs, including the post World War II reopening of the Oakland Country Club, where he served on the board of governors and as treasurer. He was a past board member and treasurer of the Mtn. Top Chamber of Commerce, during which time the Garrett County Promotion Council was formed as a separate organization. He served on the boards of Potomac Council Boy Scouts of America, the Goodwill Industries, and the Garrett County Playhouse.

A member of the Deep Creek Yacht Club (Turkey Neck) since 1965, Feld served two terms as a board member and one as treasurer. He was also a reciprocal member of Deep Creek Yacht Club (Deer Haven), and was a board member and past treasurer of the Mountain Lake Park Tennis Club.

Surviving are his wife, Audrey (Sperry) Feld; two sons, Fred Feld, Santa Monica, Calif., and Michael Feld, San Francisco, Calif; one sister, Leona Lipstein, Philadelphia, Pa.; and four grandchildren.

Friends were received at the Durst Funeral Home, Oakland, on Saturday, April 4. Funeral services and interment were private.

The family requests that memorials be directed in Mr. Feld's name to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation.

such as wood slat ceilings in the main hall, cedar sheathing of four interior columns, triangular dormer windows, wall sconces, and roof finials.

Mullich also proposed a reduction in the number of toilets planned for the restrooms. The original plan calls for four toilets in the women's room and three in the men's, plus one handicapped-accessible stall in each. Mullich suggested that one toilet be taken out of each bathroom, but the commissioners felt this item should be kept as planned.

"There will be buses of people coming in there all the time, we hope," said Commissioner Wayne Wilt. "We want to be able to accommodate them." Commissioners Wayne Johnson and Gary Fratz agreed, and Mullich returned the toilets to the plan, bringing the total cost to approximately $610,209.

The state has agreed to put about $350,000 into the project, leaving the county with a tab of $260,209.

The center will house the Garrett County of Chamber of Commerce and will be a stopping place for persons to obtain vacation and recreation information. A meeting room and other office space is planned for the building, which will be situated east-to-west between Rt. 219 and old Rt. 219. It is to be about 55,000 square feet in size.

Mullich said he hopes the building will be finished by Autumn Glory (mid-October), although there are no penalty deadlines in place for Gosnell Construction.

"They are a local company and we're pleased to be working with them," he said. "We're not setting any deadlines, but we are requiring them to be bonded."

David Moe, co-president of the chamber, was present for the presentation and offered his gratitude to Mullich for his work.

"Gary is to be thanked for his dedication to this project," Moe said.

Teaming Up

Broderick agreed that the youth would enjoy another painting opportunity, and a meeting was set to gather details.

"I hung up the phone and looked down at my desk," Broderick said. "Sitting there was an old copy of the musical 'Runaways,' which I had pulled from my files to find a monologue for an audition my 15-year-old daughter was involved in. I looked back at the telephone message from Rick and then at the script and a 'what if...' moment occurred.

Broderick immediately called DeWitt and proposed the idea of an advocacy week dedicated to ending family violence. In addition to the two billboards, the EYM youth would also present two performances of the musical. "Rick's response was, 'I'm tingling all over,'" Broderick said.

Following the presentation of "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" at Solomons Island on March 15, Broderick met with the high school EYM members and chaperones to discuss the idea. "We sat late into the night, very tired, but hungry for a new project. The kids are my programming 'advisors.' I run every opportunity by them first because their time commitment is paramount to the success of each ministry project. My critics don't always understand this way of programming, but the success of the ministry speaks for itself. I promise them long hours, hard work, commitment to the group effort, understanding of each individual's contribution, a lot of soul searching, and the Lord takes care of the rest. He is with us through every moment of every endeavor," Broderick explained.

"The vote was unanimous, and the kids agreed that returning college students should also have the opportunity to contribute to the two projects," she said. Because this is the first time the EYM has been invited to be part of a "theme driven" event, Broderick said that the selection of the play was easier because it has to address the issues of violence and what happens when people can't handle the situation alone.

"'Runaways' is the perfect theatrical vehicle, but it is no 'Mary Poppins,'" said Broderick. "The issues of running away are dealt with on many levels: with anger, humor, longing, courage, forgiveness. The language, while moderate by today's movie standards, is occasionally harsh."

Broderick took time to discuss the language issue with the youth, stating that "actors speak the words of characters."

When you say anything within the context of the play, it is the character speaking, not you," she said. "I believe that authors choose words very carefully, so there must be a very compelling reason to edit an author's words and/or metaphors from the text of the play. It is not something I do without considerable thought. Most often I leave the words the way the author wrote them, trusting that the author knows his craft as well as I know mine."

Auditions for "Runaways" will be Sunday, April 26, from 1 to 4:30 p.m. at St. Peter's Catholic Church. Auditions are open to all regional youth and all auditioners will be cast in the play. Students should dress in casual clothes that they can move freely in (no skirts or sandals). Students should be prepared to sing a simple, short musical selection with piano accompaniment, and should bring a copy of the music for the pianist. Singers may not use tapes. "The music for the play is 1978 disco-reggae-pop-rock-ballad style," said Broderick, who encourages youth to select a song that "shows off the best part of the voice rather than selecting a song that is popular and too difficult. "'Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star' goes a long way in an audition," she said.

Before auditioning, students should take into account that because of the complexity of the show, rehearsals will be every Saturday and Sunday as well as two nights during the week. The production dates are June 19 and 20 in Oakland and a probable date in Cumberland the week of July 1-3. At auditions, students should bring copies of athletic schedules, work schedules, classes, and lesson times to attach to the audition form.

Information regarding the billboard project will be addressed in an article next week.

The Ecumenical Youth Ministry is sponsored by St. Peter's Catholic Church, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, and St. Matthew's/St. John's Episcopal churches, and is open to regional youth regardless of church affiliation. Questions concerning all youth programming can be directed to Lynn Broderick at 301-334-6300.

to the GCMH Foundation, I wonder what their position is concerning affiliation? This year before I make my contribution, I think I will wait until I find out in what direction the proposed affiliation will go.

I feel sure that consultants hired by the GCMH Board will recommend some form of affiliation. Should they recommend status quo, their job is finished. If they recommend change, they are in a good position for more business in defining and assisting with implementation of such changes. Further, they stand on firm ground in recommending affiliation, as many hospitals are doing it. The articles which have appeared in the New York Times, Washington Post, etc., indicate that many affiliations have produced very unhappy alliances. Let's identify the problem if there is one, and develop and evaluate several potential solutions before rushing headlong into an approach that may be costly, and one which we may be sorry for as was Cumberland Memorial. It will certainly be less expensive to learn from their mistake.

Carl Roberts
Oakland

Dear Mr. Roberts:

As immediate past chairman of the GCMH Board of Governors, I believe I can assure you that the hospital board and administration is not "rushing headlong" into an affiliation with anyone, and it is an issue that has been discussed there for at least the past 10 years. Unfortunately, with the great changes in health care in recent years throughout the nation, from technology advancements to changes in insurance coverage to a dramatic decrease in in-patient days, most of the small, rural, free-standing hospitals in the country simply are not going to be able to "go it alone" and survive into the future without some kind of relationship with a larger institution.

I also know that the maintenance of local control of our hospital is extremely important to our hospital leadership, the loss of which will not be part of any bargain.

Also, while the Western Maryland Health System is certainly interested in affiliating with GCMH, there has been no announcement and no indication to date that the feeling is mutual.

Finally, it is a firm belief by our hospital leaders that it is far better to negotiate from a position of strength (right now) than to risk economic deterioration to the point that the hospital would ultimately be taken over by a larger institution and would have no say in the arrangement.

Sincerely,
Editor

Ferry Announces Candidacy For County Sheriff

F. William Ferry, Kitzmiller, has announced his intention to seek the Republican nomination for the office of sheriff of Garrett County.

For over 25 years, Ferry has served the Garrett County community as a criminal investigator for the office of the state's attorney, and for the past two years has filled the position of community services coordinator in that office. Prior to his current duties, Ferry held the position of assistant chief deputy at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

After serving in the U.S. Navy during the Vietnam era, Ferry attended the Maryland State Police Training Academy, where he graduated number one in his class with top academic honors. Subsequently, Ferry received a college degree in criminal justice studies, and during an extensive law enforcement career has continued to enhance his police skills by attending and completing numerous criminal justice related schools. Some of these include specialized training in FBI Hostage Negotiations, DEA Drug Identification and Detection, Crime Scene Photography, Advanced Homicide Investigation, Arson Investigation, Advanced Sex Crimes Investigation, Internal Revenue Service Financial Crimes School, and numerous training classes.

"I believe a law enforcement official, whether it be on the federal, state, or local level, has an obligation to the public to keep abreast of new and improved police investigative techniques," Ferry said. "The individuals who commit crimes are certainly not at a loss when it comes to finding creative ways of taking advantage of the public. We in law enforcement must be a little smarter, a little wiser, and a lot more creative, to adequately protect the citizens who put their trust in us."

Ferry has been and continues to be involved in many police and community service organizations. These activities have included five terms as president of the Kitzmiller Lions Club, membership in the Harvard Associates in Police Science (a professional organization of homicide detectives), service on the board of the "Hotspot Communities Initiative," active membership in the Maryland Arson Investigators Association, and a charter membership and a term as charter president of Trout Unlimited. He also taught hunter safety in Garrett County for 19 years with the Department of Natural Resources. He is presently teaching a fly tying and fly fishing course as an after-school program for the youth in the Grantsville area.

Ferry stated, "I feel fortunate to have been able to serve the people of Garrett County for the last 25 years. I have worked extremely hard to gain the public's confidence and trust and have dedicated my entire career to never betraying that trust. I know the sheriff's department has some very dedicated and professional employees who have suffered through a great deal of stress and anxiety, through no fault of their own. I plan to work diligently to regain the public's trust in the department, to bring back fiscal responsibility, and to make it once again a department that is respected not only in Garrett County, but throughout the state.

"I was honored," Ferry continued, when the Republican State Central Committee nominated me as one of the candidates for the sheriff's position after the departure of former sheriff Randy Sines. I have been even more encouraged to seek this office by the numerous phone calls and letters I have received from the residents of Garrett County. The people of the county have, throughout the years, expressed their confidence in me. We have developed a relationship built on mutual respect and trust. I owe them a great deal, and I believe it is time for me to repay that debt," he said.

Ferry and his wife Nancy, a native of Garrett County, are the parents of three children and have two grandchildren.

Employers Sought For Garrett County Job Fair At GCC

Plans are underway for the seventh annual Garrett County Job Fair, slated for Saturday, May 2, from 12 to 3 p.m. in the Continuing Education Building of Garrett Community College (GCC). Area employers interested in participating are urged to contact the GCC Job Placement Office immediately at 301-387-3089 to obtain on information packet.

The Garrett County Job Fair provides an excellent opportunity for employers to recruit for full-time, part-time, and seasonal positions. Each employer is assigned a booth at the fair in which to display materials relevant to his or her business and a banner issued by the fair displaying the business name. Employers may conduct actual mini-interviews on site, talk informally to candidates, or simply collect applications to be used at a future time.

The pool of potential applicants will range from high school to retirement ages with a wide range of skills and interests. Job seekers are encouraged to come dressed for an interview and be prepared with resumes or completed applications.

The Job Fair is a collaborative effort sponsored by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, the Western Maryland Consortium, the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation, and the GCC Job Placement Center.

Reduced Tuition Available To Some GCC Students

The recently announced 50 percent tuition reduction for students who take Garrett Community College credit courses while they are still enrolled in high school can be a great opportunity for high school juniors this summer, according to Joan B. Crawford, director of enrollment development.

These students can take any level of mathematics (depending on their placement), English 101, Introduction to Computer Science, Windows 95, General Psychology, or Introduction to Communications, a basic speech course. "Taking a summer course or two is a great way to get a head start on a college education," Crawford said. A three-credit course will cost $105 with tuition reduction.

Interested students should call the Student Assistance Center at 301-387-3044 to schedule a placement evaluation.

Crawford also pointed out that the tuition reduction can be applied to the first eight credits taken by students in the Early College Admissions Program (ECAP). With the fall tuition set at $70 per credit hour, that would be a savings of $280 per semester for a student taking 12 credits.

A similar 50 percent tuition reduction has been in effect for active members of the Maryland National Guard. The reduction can be applied to all credits taken by an active Guard member.

Anyone having questions about the tuition reduction may call the Student Assistance Center or Ms. Crawford at 301-387-3046.

CITY OF ANGELS

Rated: PG-13 Running Time: 1:57

In this remake of his award-winning German art film Wings Of Desire (1987), writer/director Wim Wenders has recreated the touching story in America with the help of Dana Stevens, and this time left the directing to Brad Silberling. Sprinkled with humor so that it doesn't appear to take itself too seriously, this film offers a thoughtful love story and an intriguing look into the lives of angels, and the lives of those touched by them.

After losing a patient, heart surgeon Maggie Rice (Meg Ryan) questions her validity and that of her profession. Though she bounces back after a more successful surgery, she still has the feeling that she is not in control; "that nothing--nothing--is in my hands," she says. That feeling comes from the invisible presence by her side, whose name is Seth (Nicholas Cage).

Seth had arrived at the hospital to escort the unfortunate first patient into the Great Beyond, but was so intrigued with Dr. Rice's dedication to keeping the man alive that he couldn't leave. Eventually he begins to show himself to her, and though she at first confuses him with an overzealous Christian, she can't help being intrigued. This mysterious man, who keeps appearing out of nowhere, seems to know her better than she knows herself. As the two spend more and more time together, they learn more and more about each other and their separate worlds. Finally, frustrated by his need for feeling, Seth takes a plunge that makes him feel more than he ever bargained for.

This is a beautiful film in many ways. John Seale's (The English Patient) cinematography is lovely, with sweeping helicopter shots above the highest edifices of Los Angeles where angels are perched like so many silent ravens in their long black coats, watching over mankind. Although they sometimes appear a little spooky (they're literally everywhere, invisible to the "mortals" who scurry about their petty business day to day), one eventually gets a comfortable sense of being insulated by these benign visitors. Silberling's artful images create a dual reality, with angels sitting and standing amongst us all, reading our thoughts, watching our lives, at once protective and envious of our tangible existence.

The chemistry between Cage and Ryan is tangible, too, and when their minds and bodies finally meld, the delivery is subtle enough to be breathtaking. Cage portrays his first feelings exquisitely; he literally jumps into mortal life with both feet, and loves the splash, savoring everything from bodysurfing to Bosc pears. Sensitive supporting performances by Dennis Franz (NYPD Blue) and André Braugher (Homicide: Life On The Street) add balance to this beautiful, poignant story, making for a fully satisfying production. ★★★★½

THE ODD COUPLE II

Rated: PG-13 Running Time: 1:35

There is no doubt that Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau are a great comedy team. The Odd Couple (1968) is one of the funniest movies of all time, and their recent work in such films as Grumpy Old Men (1993), Grumpier Old Men (1995), and Out To Sea (1997) has proven that the two friends continue to work well together. But what makes this one special is that Neil Simon, the writer of the original Couple, has returned to craft his clever conversations for the 30-year reunion of the two worst friends of all time.

Although slobby Oscar Madison (Matthau) had never expected to see his compulsive neatnick ex-roommate Felix Ungar (Lemmon) again, he gets a call from his son Bruce (Single Guy Jonathan Silverman) and finds that the unimaginable has happened: Bruce has fallen in love with Felix's daughter Hannah (Lisa Waltz) and they're planning to get married this weekend. Not only does Oscar have to drop everything and leave his poker game in Sarasota to travel to California, but he has to see the man who almost drove him insane 30 years ago. And he must drive with Felix from the airport to the wedding, a several-hour trip. Plenty of time to catch up.

From the moment they leave Felix's suitcase at the airport (with the directions in it), their trip together doesn't go well at all. As they travel aimlessly through southern California, trying to remember the name of the small town where the wedding is, they bicker and irritate each other as much if not more than before, yet both realize that they need each other if they're going to get out of this fix.

One could hardly expect this to be much different from the Grumpy movies, especially since their children got married in that story too. I mean, it's two cantankerous old guys who don't get along. But these two work so well together, who cares? It's funny just to watch them look at each other, and with Simon to give them the words, there are many laugh-out-loud moments. Director Howard Deutch wisely left them to their own devices; trying to direct these guys would be gilding the lily.

Unfortunately, most of the scenes which involve other people are tiresome and ill-advised. With the exception of Christine Baranski (Cybill), who proves that at 46 she's still got the sex appeal of college co-ed, the supporting cast serves as little else than crutches for a lame storyline. The plot is terribly convoluted; in the original movie they were full-time roommates, but here they're just stuck in the same bad weekend together, so there's no real need for conflict. We see a series of unlikely situations designed to get Felix and Oscar in trouble as many times as possible. The twist at the end is tacked on to ensure the possibility of another sequel, an unfortunate move.

But dialogue is Simon's specialty, and when the two are alone together, though their situations may seem ludicrous, their banter is usually hysterical. The entire final scene, with Oscar back home with his poker buddies, is lifted almost verbatim from the '68 movie. Also reminiscent is the music by Alan Sylvestri, which includes liberal use of the famous theme penned 30 years ago by Neal Hefti.

Lemmon and Matthau could make us laugh just as loudly if they had performed this whole movie sitting in two chairs on an empty set. Come to think of it, maybe they should have. ★★★½

LOST IN SPACE

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:10

The release of Lost In Space continues two current movie trends: 1) the evolution of favorite '60s TV shows into feature films, and 2) the triumph of special effects over screenwriting.

First of all, this movie is set in 2058, only 50 years in the future, but the technology seems to be more like 1,000 years ahead. A minor point, but an indicator of the kind of shoddy scriptwriting that is to follow. An excursion is about to begin that will take the Robinson family [John (William Hurt), Maureen (Mimi Rogers), Judy (Heather Graham), Penny (Lacey Chabert) and Will (Jack Johnson)] to another planet that may be habitable for the human race. This is a dire necessity considering the fact that the use of fossil fuels and the greenhouse effect has continued unchecked and threatens to make Earth uninhabitable in less than 20 years. The transgalactic crossing will be made through a pair of gates designed to open up a wormhole in space, yatta, yatta, yatta, you've heard it all before.

Also on board are the hotshot pilot who didn't want this job, Don West (Matt Leblanc of Friends), evil stowaway Dr. Smith (Gary Oldman), and the new-and-improved-but-not-all-that-much robot (voice of Don Tufeld, who portrayed the robot on the TV series), re-programmed by Smith to destroy the Robinsons and the ship shortly after takeoff. Of course, Smith didn't plan to be on the ship at the time.

After the robot is almost successful in carrying out Smith's orders, the disabled ship and ticked-off crew are headed straight for the sun. But West figures out that to avoid turning into candle wax, they must use the ship's "hyperdrive" to -- get this -- fly right through the sun and out the other side. Okay, all right, all you scientists out there, stop laughing and wipe the tears from your eyes; you've gotta hear the end of this. So the ship survives, but our friends end up in deep space without a map. And promptly crash-land on a foreign planet.

From this point on, Akiva Goldman's story, which had been teetering on the edge of disaster, finally takes the plunge. The first hour or so of the movie, although full of holes plot-wise, survives on the spectacular beauty of special effects. But when the ship crashes, so does the script--and even the effects computers can't save it. It becomes exponentially more complicated and far-fetched with each passing minute.

The acting is generally average, but Stephen Hopkins's directing is virtually non-present. The characters' relationships are half-baked and spotty. We are supposed to believe that John and Maureen are at once hot for each other and emotionally distant, but really there isn't much connection between Hurt and Rogers at all. There is no reason why John would be so inattentive to his young son Will--the boy genius is obviously following in his father's footsteps--but talk about a deadbeat dad! This is established so that there can be an "emotional" reconciliation, but why such a dysfunctional family would be chosen to make this historic voyage is never explained. And adult daughter Judy and pilot West have the old standby relationship: arrogant, horny man meets intelligent, offended woman and wins her over through increased arrogance and horniness. Touching.

I know, I know--this is based on a '60s TV show; they didn't ponder these issues then. BUT YOU'RE SPENDING MILLIONS OF DOLLARS! PONDER THEM NOW! ★★★

MERCURY RISING

Rated R - Running time: 1:52

If it weren't for the acting of 12-year-old Miko Hughes, this would be nothing but another pointless, slash-and-burn action movie. But because director Harold Becker chose Hughes, who already has an impressive resumé dating back to 1989, he has elevated his film to a position slightly higher than the genre's standard. Thank goodness for talented kids.

Simon Lynch (Hughes) is an autistic child, who, though he can barely relate to anyone including his loving parents (John Carroll Lynch, Kelley Hazen), possesses an uncanny ability to decipher puzzles. He can run his pen from start to finish through the most difficult maze without error or hesitation. When his teacher gives him a new book of brain-teasers, he is intrigued by a page of numbers, letters, and symbols that to you and me would just look like gibberish. But upon seeing it, he dials the phone and calls the office of the most top-secret program in the U.S. government: the Mercury Program.

The Mercury Program, headed by Lt. Colonel Nicholas Kudrow (Alec Baldwin), has established this supposedly uncrackable code to protect U.S. informants around the world. If it is ever deciphered, the safety of hundreds could be compromised. But when he realizes that Simon figured it out without even knowing what it means, he breathes a sigh of relief. The solution is simple: off the child (and, of course, his parents).

An agent shows up at Simon's house and unceremoniously kills the parents, but Simon disappears before the man can get him in his sights. That's when FBI special agent Art Jeffries (Bruce Willis) is called in. He not only finds Simon, but kidnaps him--for his own good, of course--and begins his search for the reason this kid is so popular with the U.S. government.

The performances of the adults in this movie are nothing out of the ordinary. Alec Baldwin is his standard know-it-all suit; Willis is his standard renegade tough guy with the heart of gold. And the script, written by Ryne Douglas Pearson, who wrote the book (Simple Simon), with Lawrence Konner and Mark Rosenthal, is nothing out of the ordinary either. It is strictly run-of-the-mill Hollywood action, with U.S. government agents killing anyone inconvenient to them.

Hughes is undoubtedly the star of this picture. His portrayal of an autistic child whose ordered life has been thrown into chaos is quite unsettling. His gaze is unfocused, aimed at the sky, mostly. His speech is slow and deliberate, but seems not to be connected to reasonable thinking. He only says things he has learned to say, through years of painstaking practice; when presented with unfamiliar circumstances he instantly short-circuits and becomes hysterical.

A word of warning for sensitive parents: though Hughes excels, this film is not for people who can't deal with child abuse. Simon is not abused in the traditional ways, but to him, simply being left with strangers is enough to rock his world. He's picked up, dragged around against his will, and placed in dangerous situations without so much as an "I'm sorry" from the supposedly sympathetic Jeffries. And witnessing the execution of his parents doesn't help. So if seeing a panicked kid screaming "Mommy!" puts you off, maybe you'd better give this one a miss. ★★★½ team was the Grantsville Lions. Joe Fink, the Lions coach, started him off in right field, but moved him behind the plate after asking Judy and Gary's permission. "Joe came to us and said he'd like to make Alan the catcher," Judy laughed, "because he was the only player on the team who wasn't afraid of the ball. Alan just wanted to play, so from then on he was a catcher."

Dreams Of Majors

Later Sebold's raw talent came under the tutelage of NHS coach Carr. As he does with all of his Husky ballplayers, Carr stressed the basics, and helped the young catcher lay a strong foundation of basic baseball skills to build upon in the future. "I learned a lot from coach Carr," Sebold said, "and I really enjoyed playing for him. He really stressed the fundamentals of the game."

Player and coach, student and teacher, the pair worked together in the spring months on the school's team and for 50-60 games throughout the summers on the county's American Legion team. "Alan always had a really good attitude," Carr said. "He committed to improving himself through hard work, and by that example became a natural team leader in his junior and senior years at Northern. He was a quiet kind of leader who let his playing do most of the talking, was team captain his senior year, and was also named Most Valuable Player."

Sebold drew the Orioles' attention, first during American Legion play and then during his senior year at Northern. "They liked his arm strength in throwing from the crouch to second base," Carr said. "Alan was able to throw a lot of baserunners out. His power from the left side of the plate was another plus — the pros are always looking for left-handed power hitters. More than once I saw him hit the ball over 400 feet. That's going to make any scout sit up and take notice."

Although drafted by the Orioles, Sebold decided to continue his education at Garrett Community College while playing ball for the Lakers. The next year he transferred to FSU to enter into the university's physical education degree program. His stellar Bobcat career got a boost as it began when FSU coaching legend and baseball teacher Bob Wells returned to coach the team that same year, and over the next two seasons Wells helped Sebold further refine his skills both at and behind the plate.

"Alan has some of the most natural talent we've ever had here at Frostburg," Wells commented. "He has all the tools, his strong work ethic just keeps growing and growing year by year, and he's an excellent student — just a terrific person. Although he's a quiet and unassuming person, the other players look to him for leadership, for the big hit or the big play, and he usually produces. His chances at making the big leagues are pretty good."

Sebold was named the Bobcats' MVP in his first year at FSU when his .402 batting average led the team, as did his home run and RBI totals. His .391 average led the team in hitting again in 1997, he repeated as home run leader, and was named team MVP for the second year in a row.

Although Sebold's 1997 statistics were a ballplayer's dream, the season had its nightmarish side when problems with his right shoulder caused inflammation, tendinitis, and increasing pain; yet he continued to produce. "He played through his injury," said Wells, "and never complained. It's part of his unselfish personality, and in a way at times I wish he was a little more selfish. He wouldn't talk about being hurt; I would only find out about how much pain he was in from some of his closest friends on the team. All Alan wants to do is go out and play baseball."

Oakland orthopedic specialist Dr. David Tuel operated on Sebold's shoulder following last season to correct a subacromial decompression. "Basically my right collarbone was always just little bit too long," Sebold said. "Over time the end of the bone ground into the rotator cuff of my shoulder, so last June Dr. Tuel cut open the deltoid muscle and shaved off a bone spur on the end of the collarbone." The surgery was a success, and after a strict strength-building regimen over the fall and winter, Sebold says his arm is "95 percent back to normal. Dr. Tuel is a great doctor, he really knows what he's doing," he said.

So far in this 1998 season, the 6-foot, 200-pound senior is once again a cornerstone of the Bobcat team, batting .348, with one home run and a team-leading 17 RBI (through Tuesday, April 7) under Phil Caruso, FSU's new head coach. Caruso, the latest in the line of noted western Maryland baseball gurus to work with Sebold, has made an impact with the ballplayer, who is noted by his coaches for his willingness to learn. "I like to hit fastballs, and always liked to pull the ball to right field. This year coach Caruso has been teaching me how to hit more to all fields. That's expanded my range at the plate," Sebold said.

For his part, the coach has nothing but praise for his catcher and team co-captain. "Alan is the heart and soul of our team," Caruso said. "He's worked harder this year than he ever has, and it shows. He realizes this is his last opportunity to lead the team to a championship, and by continuing to elevate his level of play his teammates are inspired to elevate their own level of play. It really means a lot to him that he can help his teammates win."

As of yesterday the Bobcats boasted a 13-4 record, and stood alone atop the Allegheny Mountain Collegiate Conference with a 2-0 conference record. "I really think we're going to go to the NCAA's this year," Sebold commented. "Everyone can play just about every position, and we have lots of depth, with good backups all over the field. We're also a young team, with only six or seven seniors, so what we do this year can really help the team down the road."

According to Sebold's coaches, past and present, it's characteristic that he would be thinking of his team's performance after he will have moved on. He also hopes to one day be able to come back to the annual Bobcat Alumni Breakfast and, with his teammates, be able to share great memories of the 1998 season with future FSU students.

Having already provided many wonderful baseball moments for Husky, Laker, and Bobcat fans, the best memories may still lie ahead, perhaps in the white, black and gold of the Pirates, or another major league uniform, on Garrett County television screens. With his own field of dreams lying in wait, Sebold encourages local youngsters to reach for their goals, modestly reflecting, "Anybody can do it with hard work and a little luck. You've just got to go for it and give it everything you've got."

Garrett County baseball fans wishing to catch Sebold in his final season at FSU can see the Bobcats in action in the team's upcoming home stand, which includes a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m. this Saturday against Penn State University-Behrend, a Sunday single game matchup against Bethany College at 3:30 p.m. on Monday, April 13, and a twinbill against the University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg on Tuesday, April 14, at 1 p.m.

Glimpse of The Past . . .

Fire fighters from Oakland, Deer Park, and Gorman VFDs were summoned to the two-story, brick veneer, five-apartment building at 10:44 p.m. after Gary and Debbie Wilt, ages 32 and 30, discovered the fire in a first-floor bedroom. The Wilts told Deputy Fire Marshal Bruce A. Shafer that they were in the living room while their two oldest children were sleeping in a second-floor bedroom and the two youngest were asleep on the couch, also in the living room. When Mrs. Wilt opened the door to the first-floor bedroom, smoke rolled out into the rest of the apartment and set off a smoke detector in the hallway. Mr. Wilt then went into the bedroom and threw a burning pillow out the door, after which he and Mrs. Wilt alerted their children — Tinsa, 11, Andraya, 7, Chelsy, 4, and Stephanie, 1 — and all exited the house.

Upon arrival of the first fire units, flames were coming from the windows of the unit and shooting some 40 feet into the air. Quick action by the 55 volunteers brought the blaze under control in a matter of minutes and kept the fire from spreading to the other four townhouses. The units are also separated by a fire wall, Shafer said, which aided the fire fighters in their efforts to minimize damages.

The Wilts lost all of their possessions, as the heat and smoke destroyed everything in the apartment. Shaffer estimated the loss to the structure, owned by Garrettland Realty, to be $80,000 and the loss of the contents to be $20,000. The family, which had no insurance on their possessions, was being aided this week by the American Red Cross.

Also summoned to the scene was the county air cascade vehicle from Deep Creek and the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad. Three emergency service volunteers were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released for minor injuries.

Standing by at the Oakland station was a unit from the Terra Alta VFD.

The third structure fire of the week occurred early Tuesday about two blocks away from the Pinewoods blaze, as Oakland and Deer Park VFDs were called to the residence of Mona Cree. Upon their arrival they found a wood frame outbuilding in flames, with the fire beginning to spread to the adjacent single-story brick house.

The outbuilding and its contents were destroyed, but damage to the house was kept to a minimum. The loss was estimated to be $10,000. The cause of the 12:12 a.m. fire is still undetermined.

Fire fighters remained on the scene for one hour and a half. Also responding was the Southern Rescue Squad and the air cascade vehicle.

Miss Bittinger Will Be Bride Of Mr. Weimer

Miss Bittinger is a graduate of Northern High School and is employed by Unitel Corp., Frostburg. Mr. Weimer is a graduate of Northern High School and Allegany College of Maryland. He is employed by Diehl's Ford Sales, Grantsville.

The wedding will take place on May 9 at Jennings Church of God. Following the wedding, a reception will be held at the Salisbury Municipal Building, Salisbury, Pa. Some invitations have been sent, but all family and friends are welcome to attend.

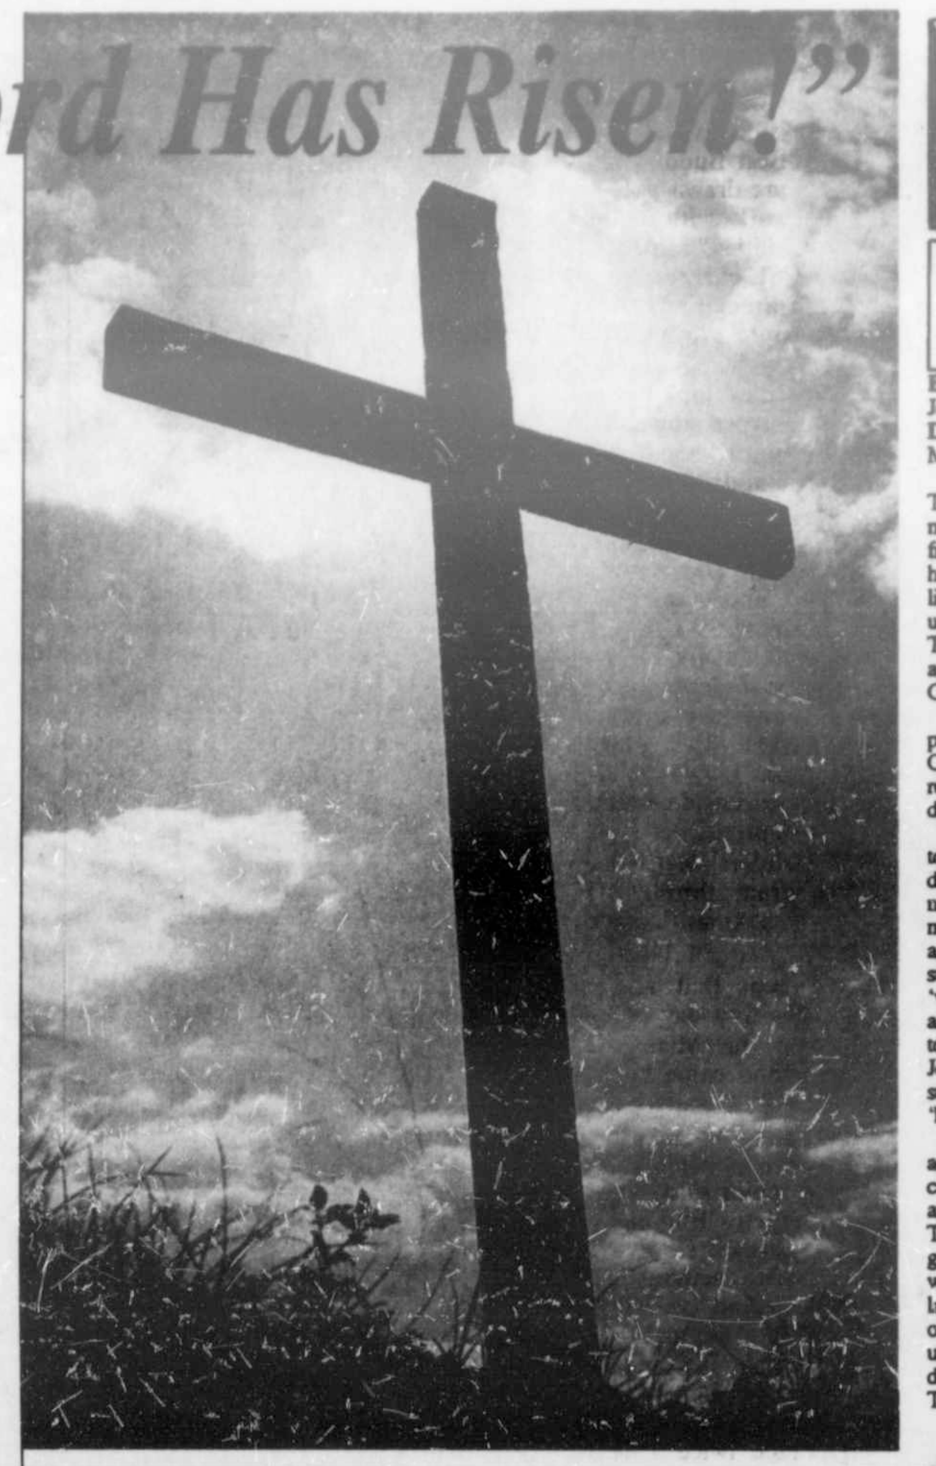
"The Lord Has Risen!"



Hallelujah...Christ has risen!

As we worship this Easter, may we meditate for a moment upon the impact of the word "risen". Christ is our "risen" Savior, who died to atone for our sins. Romans 4:24-25 states this as we read, "It will be reckoned to us who believe in Him [God] who raised from the dead Jesus our Lord, who was put to death for our trespasses and raised for our justification."

Armed with the faith that Christ rose from the dead after the gravestone rolled away, likewise, we shall rise above spiritual death, our soul intact. For as God guides our spirit, the suffocating stones of despair, anxiety, and fear are rolled away and we shall be forever joyful.

Therefore, may we praise Christ, our Savior, who gave His life on the Cross, that we might have life everlasting.

Hallelujah...Christ has risen!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IS 'SEEING' 'BELIEVING'?
April 12, 1998

Background Scripture:
John 20:19-29
Devotional Reading:
Mark 9:14-24

I've always thought that the Apostle Thomas has gotten a 'bum rap' from many people who have judged him from the comfort and safety of 20/20 hindsight. Without justification, I believe, he has been saddled with that unfortunate sobriquet, 'Doubting Thomas' and held as a negative example of how not to respond to the Good News.

Yes, I know that even before this post-resurrection encounter with the Christ Thomas had already gained a reputation for being a doubter. But did he deserve this reputation?

In John 11:16, when Jesus resolves to go to Jerusalem even though this decision is fraught with danger, Thomas' response is one of both pessimism and intense loyalty and courage. In John 14:5, when Jesus assumes that the disciples know the 'way to the Father's house,' Thomas alone is humble and honest enough to confess that he doesn't know what Jesus is talking about. Are we to assume he was the only one who didn't 'know'?

We need also to consider Jesus' reactions to Thomas on these two occasions. It is not recorded that he was angry, impatient or disappointed with Thomas. In fact, his expressed doubts gave Jesus the opportunity to clarify what he was trying to say. When, at last, Thomas does understand, he is one of the most loyal disciples. So, up to John 20, I don't think he has deserved to be called "Doubting Thomas."

THE OTHER ELEVEN

Let us take a look at the other eleven apostles on the night when Jesus first appeared to them. Were they a group of fervent believers waiting for Jesus to appear? No, John tells us they were meeting behind locked doors "for fear of the Jews." What fears put us behind closed doors?

They were in hiding when "Jesus came and stood among them and said, 'Peace be with you.'" Having heard those words, did they jump up and greet him joyfully? John doesn't say that. Instead he tells us that Jesus then showed them "his hands and his side." "Then the disciples were glad when they saw the Lord" (20:20). Then and only then.

Notice, too, the message which Jesus brings them: "Peace be with you." Twice he says this to them because he knows that they have been without peace in their hearts (20:19, 21). Shattered by sorrow and despair, they are deeply in need of the peace which the risen Lord bestows upon them. Is that not what we often need to hear him say to us, too: "Peace be with you"? Most of the negativity that haunts my life comes from fear. And fear often manifests itself as hostility, faithlessness, and despair. With Christ's peace in my heart the fear doesn't stand a chance.

When Thomas enters the room where the rest are in hiding, they tell him, "We have seen the Lord!" It is then that Thomas speaks those words that have marked him through the centuries: "Unless I see in his hands the print of the nails, and place my finger in the mark of the nails, and place my hand in his side, I will not believe" (20:25).

Once again Thomas is open enough to admit his doubts; and is his attitude really all that unreasonable? What the other apostles were asking him to believe was the very thing that up until his appearance before them they had not believed either! The consequences of this belief are of the most profound nature. Jesus was crucified and buried, but he has risen from that grave and was here with us!

"UNLESS I SEE..."

Their experience can open the door and point the way for us, but each of us must be able to say with Thomas "Unless I see...I will not believe." The resurrection of Jesus can mean nothing to any of us unless we too can say that in some way we also have 'seen' the Lord. The resurrection is too vital, of too great consequence, for us to accept it as a second-hand belief.

Note, then, what happened with Thomas. Jesus appears to the apostles again, but this time Thomas is with them. Instead of rebuking Thomas for his reaction to the report of his fellow apostles, Jesus invites him to actually touch his wounds. Unlike his fellow apostles on their first encounter with the risen Christ, he exclaims, "My Lord and my God!"

Still not rebuking Thomas, Jesus says: "Have you believed because you have seen me? Blessed are those who have not seen and yet believe" (20:29). Blessed are those who will be able to encounter the risen Lord without having to experience his physical wounds and presence. We do not have to 'see' Jesus physically, but we do have to encounter him spiritually and, when we have, we join Thomas in proclaiming, "My Lord and my God!"

Southern High Graduate Bridges Barriers As An FSU "Best Buddy"

TRAINING TO BE A "BEST BUDDY" last summer was Oakland native Misty Sanders, right, shown in Miami, Fla., during a break in the "Best Buddies" training program. Sanders is shown with her program director Michelle Biccochi, who works out of the Best Buddies office in Baltimore. Sanders, a senior in the social work program at Frostburg State University, got the FSU Best Buddies chapter at FSU up and running after being trained in bringing college students and community members with developmental disabilities together for socialization, recreation, and companionship.

The dream of a Frostburg State University (FSU) social work student who hails from Garrett County has built bridges of friendship in the Frostburg area by bringing college students and community members with developmental disabilities together.

Misty Sanders, 1994 graduate of Southern High School and daughter of Cathy and Don Sanders of Oakland, formed an FSU chapter of "Best Buddies" last fall and has nurtured it into a group of nine students and nine community members who meet on a regular basis for social and recreational activities.

"Our 'Best Buddies' participants are drawn by a desire to work with people with disabilities," said Sanders, the FSU chapter founder and director. "I think many people are afraid of people with disabilities. 'Best Buddies' look beyond the stereotypes and get to know the individual."

"Best Buddies" is an incorporated, non-profit organization founded in 1987 at Georgetown University in hopes of encouraging college students to reach out and serve others, a trait that many students possess but may not have an outlet for. The non-profit organization has grown to 200 chapters worldwide, and the FSU chapter was born when Sanders learned of the program through the university's AmeriCorps office. She was so taken by the concept that she enrolled in a four-day training workshop in Miami last summer and came back to FSU eager to start a local chapter.

"We bring people together," the senior said. "Everyone completes 'Buddies' applications that help us identify favorite activities and pastimes, and we match people with mutual interests. Chapter members are asked to sign contracts stating that they will meet face-to-face twice a month for a year." Members also agree to attend group outings with their "Buddies" twice a semester.

Sanders said she hopes that "the established relationships will go beyond a year commitment, and that the FSU chapter will continue to grow. I'd really like to see someone step in to help the organization continue after I graduate this spring."

Getting involved in the lives of others is not new for Sanders, who as vice president of the FSU Sociology/Social Work Club organized a "homeless sleep-out" last fall to help give fellow students a taste of what life is like for some of the people on the edges of society. She has also worked as a counselor for children with special needs at a day camp in Alexandria, Va., and has volunteered at the Brandenburg Center, a residential facility for adults with developmental disabilities in Cumberland.

Crediting her family and several Southern High faculty members, including psychology teacher Doug Oxford and student service alliance coordinator Lisa Bender, with helping to instill in her an interest in working with people, Sanders said she will seek employment in the social work field after graduation. She has plans to eventually obtain seek her master of social work degree in the future.

Sanders said that sharing her time with her Buddy has been an education unto itself. "Working with my own buddy, I've gotten a lot more out of it than I ever expected," she said. "I learned a lot from her. She enjoys life — it makes you take a step back and see that people really are individuals."

Local Resident Receives Award At Luke Mill

Scott Graham, Grantsville, has received the Luke mill's John T. Summers Safe Employee of the Quarter Award for the first quarter of 1998, according to an announcement by Maggie Rosch, total quality director.

As area supervisor of Nos. 5-7 Paper Machines and chairman of the Lower Paper Mill Safety Committee, Graham has been "instrumental" in developing the committee "into a very proactive and effective group," Rosch said. The team meets monthly to review all accidents or near misses, discuss progress made on eliminating safety hazards, discuss new safety concerns, review safety procedures or policies, and conduct safety audits within the department.

"Through these efforts, the Lower Paper Mill has developed a safety culture. The department has met or exceeded the TCIR goal in each of the past two years and recently worked 214 days without a recordable injury," stated Rosch.

Graham, who has been employed by the Luke mill for over 10 years, encourages all Lower Paper Mill personnel to become involved in the mill's safety program and with the elimination of safety hazards and unsafe conditions. He is or has been an active member of the Millwide Safety Focus Group, the Machine Guarding Corrective Action Team (CAT), Millwide Lockout/Tagout CAT, and Confined Space CAT.

Nominations Sought For Annual State Environmental Award

The Maryland Department of the Environment and the Maryland Petroleum Council have announced that nominations are now being accepted for the 1998 Tawes Award for A Clean Environment, named in honor of the late governor of Maryland, J. Millard Tawes (1959-1967).

The annual environmental recognition program is broken down into two categories: Youth/Adult or Organization. They are presented in the late spring to individuals or organizations that contribute to protecting Maryland's natural resources. It can include activities such as recycling, spill prevention and response, school or education projects, animal habitat, community clean up, and beautification projects.

Winners and runners-up and their guests will be honored at an awards luncheon in Annapolis. A donation will be made to each recipient's favorite nonprofit organization. They will also receive either a handsome engraved plaque or a certification of commendation.

For more information and nomination forms, interested persons may contact the council at 410-269-1850 or fax 410-269-8830. Deadline for nomination submissions is April 15.

Course On Needs Of Frail Elderly Set For Therapists

Rehabilitation professionals and others who work with the elderly in rural settings have a continuing education opportunity in a course scheduled Friday, May 8, at Allegany College (AC) in Cumberland.

"Frail Elderly in Rural Settings: Opportunities for Therapeutic Interventions" is for physical and occupational therapists and assistants, nurses, and other professionals concerned with home and extended care. Unclaimed Funds List Generates Many Inquiries

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said nearly 7,500 callers have contacted his office as a result of the spring unclaimed property advertising supplement. The comptroller's website also handled 9,500 inquiries on unclaimed property as a result of the ad.

The 40,000 most recently reported accounts can be searched on the comptroller's website. "Individuals and web surfers who called as a result of the ad or website search are being sent claim forms," Goldstein said. "Please, don't forget to return the claim forms, so we can send you your money."

Most of the 14,000 unclaimed accounts advertised in March were bank accounts which had no deposit or withdrawal activity in the past five years, unclaimed wages, contents of safe deposit boxes and unclaimed security deposits. Unclaimed funds also include unclaimed life insurance benefits, lapsed insurance policies with a cash value, and medical insurance benefits. The accounts recently advertised remained unclaimed for at least five years, and most of the money is still with the financial institutions and corporations. Approximately 80 days after the publication of the ad, businesses that hold these funds will turn the money that remains unclaimed over to the state.

General information on Maryland unclaimed funds is available on the comptroller's website and the Forms-by-Fax system. Information on requirements for businesses to report unclaimed money is also available. Insurance companies are required to report unclaimed benefits to the comptroller's office by April 30 for the year ending December 31, 1997. The website address is www.comp.state.md.us, and the Forms-by-Fax system can be reached by calling 410-974-3299.

"Remember," Goldstein said, "if you've ever moved to a different address, or had a friend or loved one die, there may be unclaimed utility deposits, bank or other financial accounts, and other funds that were overlooked or forgotten. This money can still be claimed by a rightful owner or heir, even if it has been forgotten for many years. There is no statute of limitation on claiming the money."

The comptroller's office honored 6,560 claims totaling $9,966,054 during calendar year 1997. The average claim was $1,519.

Arbor Day Number 115 Is Observed

Wednesday, April 1, 1998, marked the 115th year that Marylanders have celebrated Arbor Day. Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Forest Service Project Forester Ernie Metz reminds county residents that the first Wednesday in April is always Arbor Day in Maryland "and it's a good time to start thinking about spring and tree planting."

"The many trees and seedlings that are planted on Arbor Day focus attention on the values of our trees and forests," Metz said. "It's important to plant trees every year so that future generations can enjoy their beauty, appreciate their ability to reduce soil erosion, moderate temperature and wind, and provide wood fiber, wildlife habitat, and recreation opportunities.

Each year to help commemorate Arbor Day, the DNR Forest Service gives pine seedlings to public school third-graders. Working with the cooperation of the county school system, the seedlings are distributed to the children with the hope that the young pine trees will be planted, nurtured, and recognized as important renewable resources, Metz explained. "Trees planted on Arbor Day help bring attention to a resource essential to our quality of life," he said.

Forest landowners are encouraged by Metz to contact the DNR Forest Service at Mt. Nebo Work Center, 1728 Kings Run Road, Oakland, MD 21550, telephone 301-334-3296 for free information about how managing forest land can benefit them and the environment.

Northern GOP Women Convene

The Northern Garrett County Republican Women's Club met March 31 at Hill Top Inn, Grantsville, with Carolyn Ganoe presiding.

Louise McKenzie, treasurer, reported a $234 profit from the auction in October. Letters of thanks were read from the Roger Glotfelty family and from Hospice for donations from the club. A check for $50 was given to Northern High School for the after-prom party.

The club will again have the fruit basket each month as a fund-raiser. Chances will be $2.

A tentative program was reviewed for the year and the budget was revised slightly and approved.

The next meeting will be April 28. Responsible for the fruit basket are Twila Mae Fike, Lois Rowe, Sheila Baker, and Lillian Crowe. Sen. John Hafer and Del. George Edwards will be guest speakers.

Members present were Zeola Robeson, Leanna Layman, Lois Rowe, Carolyn Ganoe, Cora Bowser, Louise McKenzie, Orpha Miller, Jean Friend, Charlotte Sebold, and Cleda Baker.

COVER STORY

The Staircase is more twisted than uplifting

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

Barbara Hershey

Roughly halfway through The Staircase, someone comes by night and smashes the titular spiral, which is under construction. As the Sisters of Loretto survey the splintered remains, one of them asks woefully, "Who could be so angry?"

In this movie? Everybody. From the church contractor to an Apache lad, the architect to the mother superior, every shoulder has a chip on it.

Airing Sunday, April 12, on CBS, the film is extrapolated from the story of the "miracle staircase," a 120-year-old wooden spiral in the Loretto Chapel in Santa Fe, N.M.

Legend has it that when the Gothic sanctuary was built, a means of access to the choir loft was somehow omitted. In the limited space, no conventional solution was satisfactory.

The nuns said a novena to St. Joseph the carpenter. At the conclusion of their prayers, a stranger appeared at their door. He built a spiral staircase without a center post, some say in a single night. There is no record of where he obtained the wood, and he disappeared before he could be paid.

Today the staircase attracts tourists daily. The lucky few who ascend it report a spring action underfoot and say the hair on their necks tingles.

In a desert city whose name means "holy faith," this is one of the tangible fruits of the spirit.

When screenwriter Christopher Lofton (True Women) heard the legend 20 years ago, he was intrigued. But he did not believe an audience would sit still for the story of an inanimate object, so he constructed a flock of characters and a swarm of conflicts around the scant facts.

Hopelessly miscast as a pioneer bride of Christ, Barbara Hershey stars as the tempestuous Mother Madalyn, with Diane Ladd as her oft-provoked assistant. William Petersen is strong as Joad, the mysterious itinerant. David Clennon (thirtysomething) plays the pinch-faced builder, with Justin Louis as the trigger-happy architect.

In making up his story, Lofton has run roughshod over history. The appearance of Apache chief Geronimo is completely spurious: The warrior was in Mexico, not New Mexico, at the time. Besides, it was Comanches, not Apaches, who figured in the nuns' story. And, as Lofton admits, none of the women was ever attacked. But it is hardly a surprise that Lofton got it so wrong, since in all of 20 years he never visited Santa Fe.

The true stars of The Staircase are the set and setting, which includes panoramas of Georgia O'Keeffe's Ghost Ranch. The chapel used for filming was a condemned structure in nearby San Juan Pueblo, restored as part of the production. And the dramatic centerpiece is the replica staircase, built by set designer Fred Harpman and crew.

Filming finally brought Lofton to the Loretto Chapel. Climbing the stairs, he says, "I felt whoever had built this was not only powerful physically but had some enormous will, like a bull."

Thank goodness it is the sort of power that can withstand a battering by fools.

JoMarie Payton-Noble

Q: I noticed a new person is playing the role of Harriette Winslow on Family Matters. What happened to the "old" Harriette? –B. Bigler, New Glarus, Wis.

A: After more than a decade of playing Harriette – a role she created on Perfect Strangers two seasons before Family Matters premiered in 1989 – JoMarie Payton-Noble told the Matters producers that she wanted to do something besides simply acting on the show.

When her efforts to write or direct an episode were met with little encouragement, she decided to move on to other things.

Q: There is a girl named Suzanne Cupito in the movie Yours, Mine and Ours. Is this the actress we now know as Morgan Brittany? –"O'Neal" via e-mail.

A: Indeed it is. Brittany, now 46, was born Suzanne Cupito. According to her credits in the Internet Movie Database, Yours, Mine and Ours marked the last time she used her real name.

She then assumed the name by which she is best known from her appearances as Katherine Wentworth on Dallas and many other roles.

Q: Please translate the last line of the All in the Family theme song before "those were the days." It sounds like "Gee are all the sour red great." –R.A.O. via e-mail.

A: Many people can't make out this line, because they don't know or remember an old car called the LaSalle. Once you know that, it becomes easier to hear "Gee, our old LaSalle ran great" in those last lines.

Q: My son was watching Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles III and there was an actor who looked a lot like the guy who plays Dr. Anspaugh on ER. Is it really the same actor? –Lydia Edwards via e-mail.

A: Yes. Before joining ER as Dr. Donald Anspaugh, actor John Aylward played Niles in the 1992 Turtles sequel.

Q: Has singer-songwriter Elton John ever appeared in any movies? –Jennifer McKinney via e-mail.

A: Yes, but nearly always as himself. John played the Pinball Wizard in both Ken Russell's 1975 Tommy and in 1989's The Who Live, Featuring the Rock Opera Tommy. As himself, he has appeared in Born to Boogie, The Return of Bruno, Spice World and Tantrums & Tiaras.

Q: Are Jerry O'Connell and Jason Bateman related? The resemblance is remarkable. –Josh via e-mail.

A: No, but if you think O'Connell and Bateman look alike, wait till you see O'Connell's real-life brother, Charlie, when he joins the Sliders cast in new episodes starting June 8 on the Sci-Fi Channel.

Goldstein Notes Common Errors On Tax Returns

"If you still haven't filed your state and local income tax return, you can easily avoid the most common errors we're seeing on the more than 1.2 million forms we've already received," said Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

One way to avoid errors is to file electronically through a participating tax preparer. "When an electronically filed return is accepted by our system, the taxpayer can be assured that it is free of errors and that it is received on time," Goldstein said. "Taxpayers who file electronically and choose to have their refund directly deposited into their bank accounts need to be sure they provide both their bank account number and bank routing information."

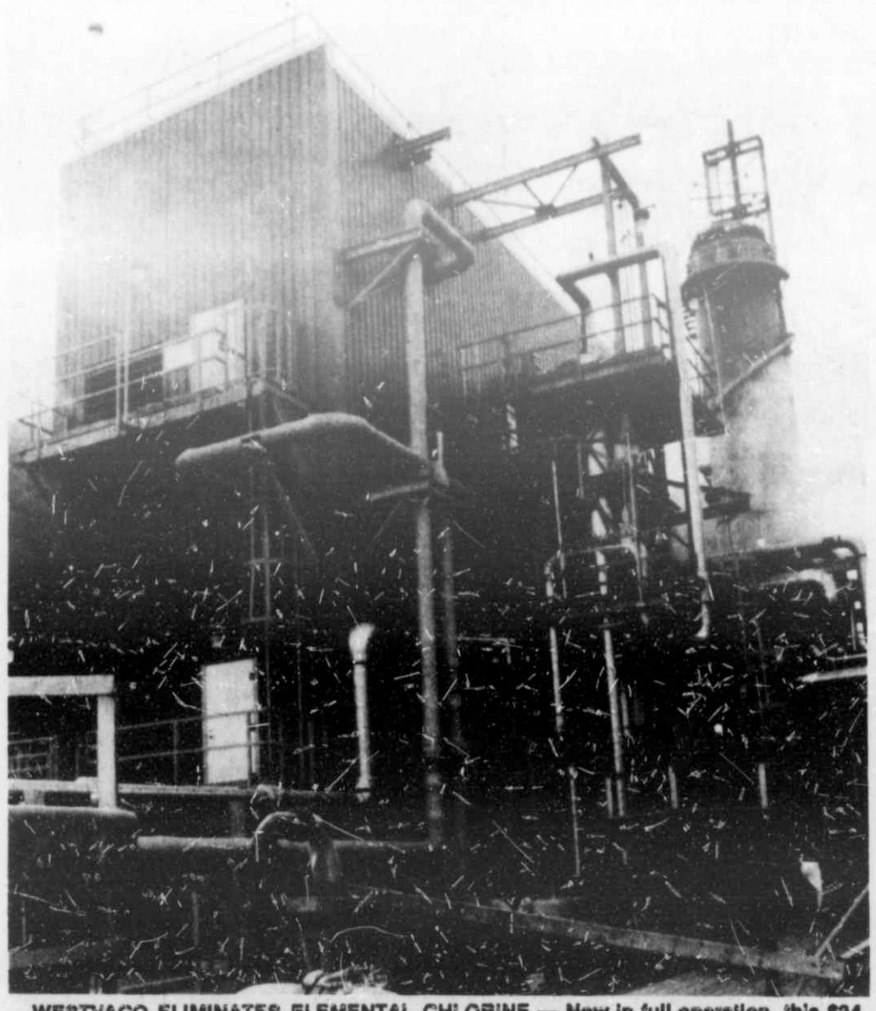
Taxpayers who are filing paper returns can easily avoid the most common errors found on returns filed this year. About 58% of Maryland taxpayers use the standard deduction instead of itemizing. However, some taxpayers must calculate their standard deduction instead of using a flat dollar amount. "We've included a worksheet in the tax booklet instructions to help you determine your standard deduction correctly," Goldstein said.

Incorrect standard deductions and math errors are the most frequent problems seen on paper returns submitted this year, which is why it's important for taxpayers to double check their math.

"Some taxpayers are also filing state tax returns unnecessarily because their incomes are below the minimum filing threshold. Social security and railroad retirement benefits are exempt from state tax. These benefits should not be included in determining your income level," he said.

Returns that are completed with red ink or in pencil can also cause problems, since they are not easily read by computer scanners. Other common errors include putting the state return in the federal envelope and assembling the tax form and attachments in the wrong order. Page 16 of the Maryland tax booklet has special information on what needs to be submitted and how to assemble it for prompt processing.

"All of these mistakes delay processing of the return, slowing the taxpayer's refund," said Goldstein. "Whether you choose direct deposit or not, electronic filing of your state tax return will shave weeks off the time it takes to get your refund at this time of year. Don't delay, file today, and we'll send your refund on its way!"



WESTVACO ELIMINATES ELEMENTAL CHLORINE — Now in full operation, this $24 million two-year construction project at Westvaco's Luke mill eliminates the use of elemental chlorine in the bleaching process. Belt Construction Company, Cumberland, was the primary contractor, and over 150 workers from various companies were involved in the project. The facility is another significant environmental improvement at the Luke mill, according to Roger A. Dandridge, vice president and mill manager.

Electronic Filing Can Secure Tax Refunds Quickly

Maryland citizens who file their income taxes electronically can expect to receive their tax refund in two days if they ask to have their refund directly deposited into checking or savings accounts, according to Louis L. Goldstein, Maryland state comptroller.

Goldstein stated that among the 1.2 million state returns filed so far, more than 190,000 were filed electronically through commercial tax preparers—about 36% more than at this time last year. Nearly 27,000 of them chose the direct deposit feature available to electronic filers. About half of Maryland taxpayers use professional tax preparers.

"Electronic filing becomes more important the closer you get to the April 15 deadline. Filing electronically will shave weeks off the time it takes to get your refund and you'll get that same quick service—even if you file on April 15," Goldstein said.

Aside from speed, the comptroller cited several other advantages of electronic filing, including:

- accuracy, because any mistakes are completed before the preparer transmits the return;
- security, because the preparer receives acknowledgment that the return is received; and
- efficiency, because electronic returns can be processed at one-fifth of the cost of paper return processing.

Refunds generated by electronically filed returns are averaging $675, compared to the $478 average refund from paper returns. "We've already sent back 908,106 refunds and many taxpayers are wasting little time filing electronically to get that big refund the fastest way possible," Goldstein said, adding that 75% of Maryland returns generate refunds.

"Taxpayers who owe additional tax can also take advantage of the speed and accuracy of filing electronically. They can file now and wait until April 15 to pay," Goldstein said. Neatly 8,200 taxpayers who owed additional tax have already filed electronic returns and will submit their payment with a voucher (Form 502V) provided by the tax preparer. These taxpayers benefit from the acknowledgment that their return was received and the assurance that the amount they owe is accurate, eliminating the fear that a mistake will result in additional tax, penalty, and interest charges after April 15.

Taxpayers with questions or needing forms can get help at the comptroller's website, www.comp.state.md.us or by e-mail at taxhelp@comp.state.md.us. Telephone assistance is available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 410-974-3981 in central Maryland or 1-800-MD TAXES from elsewhere. Forms are available by e-mail at forms@comp.state.md.us or through the Forms-by-Fax system at 410-974-3299, as well as in local libraries and many post offices.

"If you bring your completed federal return and your W-2 statements to any of our 20 taxpayer service offices listed on the back of the Maryland tax booklet, we'll even prepare your Maryland income tax return for you, free of charge," said Goldstein.

GARRETT COUNTY NOTICE OF A PROPOSED PROPERTY TAX INCREASE

The County Commissioners of Garrett County propose to increase property taxes.

1. For the tax year beginning July 1, 1998, the estimated assessable base will increase by 3% from $750,022,957 to $775,965,348.

2. If Garrett County maintains the current tax rate of $2.59 per $100 of assessment, property tax revenues will increase by 2%, resulting in $390,087 of new property tax revenues.

3. In order to fully offset the effect of increasing assessments, the property tax rate should be reduced to $2.54, the constant yield tax rate.

4. The County is considering not reducing its property tax rate enough to fully offset increasing assessments. The County proposes to adopt a tax rate of $2.59 per $100 of assessment. This tax rate is 2% higher than the constant yield tax rate and will generate $390,087 in additional property tax revenues.

A public hearing on the proposed property tax increase will be held at 11:00 a.m. on April 21, 1998, at the County Commissioners' Meeting Room, County Courthouse, Oakland, MD. The hearing is open to the public, and public testimony is encouraged. Persons with questions regarding this hearing may call 301-334-8970 for further information.

Local Scouts Sought For World Jamboree

Boy Scouts from the local area will join with scouts from around the world in Santiago, Chile, in late December to participate in the 19th World Jamboree.

The World Jamboree is an international encampment of Scouts designed to show how the scouting program can develop world brotherhood through shared activities and cultural exchange. Participants will have the opportunity to go on outings, compete in Latin American games and physical challenge events, or walk through the "Global Village" filled with exhibits and activities from the cultures of the world. In addition, there will be several ceremonies which will bring together Scouts from more than 150 countries in a central arena.

This event is held about every four years in a different host country. The first World Jamboree was held in England in 1920. Recent jamborees have been held in Canada, Australia, and Korea. In 1995, the local Potomac Council was represented in Holland by five Scouts and two leaders.

This jamboree in Chile marks only the second time the event has been held below the equator and offers U.S. Scouts the opportunity to celebrate New Year's Day in the warm sun of the Chilean summer.

The jamboree will begin on December 27, 1998, and end on January 6, 1999. An optional four-day tour to Costa Rica is available at the close of the jamboree.

To attend this event, a Boy Scout must be at least 13 years old and of First Class rank by December 1, 1998. Explorers must be at least 14 years of age. Interested persons may obtain further details by contacting the local Scout Service Center in Cresaptown at 301-729-1300.

Frostburg State University Associate Professor of Philosophy Dr. Jorn Bramann has recently released Phantom Doors, a novel of suspense and action.

Set in an Appalachian lake resort community, surrounding area, and nearby college campus, the mystery unfolds as videographer Zeno Venn receives a commission to produce a video featuring the controversial art of the late Basil Baroda.

According to the book's publisher, Venn's suspenseful and complicated journey starts when the character (while searching for a lost taped interview with the dead artist) is "quickly drawn into an intrigue that involves art forgery, musicians who moonlight as drug dealers, an attractive art instructor with a romantic interest in Venn, a rich art collector with connections to Baroda's widow, and most of all the mysterious Penna Sewall, whose past dealings with the dead artist and other figures of the art world remain an object of wonder and speculation for Venn."

Flowing through the novel is the bildungsroman (simplified as a youth's emotional growth into adult maturity) of Venn. "Phantom Doors describes the encounter of a young man who wants to be an artist, and a woman who rather lives life," Bramann stated. "She teaches him that art too often is a substitute for living. That is the bildungsroman element in the story."

Drawn to mysteries for what he calls a "metaphysical reason," Bramann explained, "Suspense and mystery is the only genre that I really like. The detective, by trying to solve a mystery, inevitably highlights certain facts over others, and thus creates a structure. That structure is, of course, entirely ephemeral and arbitrary, but by that very artificiality says something about the (modern view of) the world."

Bramann is currently working on Traveling Light: An Introduction to Philosophy. Following its completion, he plans to start a companion to Phantom Doors, a work of fiction based on a crime and set on a college campus.

Phantom Doors is published by G. Aston Nelson Books and will be available locally.

Antiques

Q. I saw some old children's books called "Big Little Books" for sale in an antiques store. They were priced from $20 to $60. What can you tell me about them?

A. Whitman Publishing Co. produced Big Little Books starting in 1932. The first one was "The Adventures of Dick Tracy."

Comics, television shows and movies were translated into Big Little Books, with pictures on one side of the page and words on the other.

The books were published until recently. The pre-1950 versions are the most desired.

The 3 1/2-by-2 1/2-inch books were cheaply made, so there were few that survived the years. Big Little Books in good condition sell for up to $100.

Q. I have two glass vases stamped "A Hunebelle" and "France." Do you have any information?

A. Andre Hunebelle was among the specialist glassmakers who created glass in the style of Lalique during the 1920s and '30s.

Marius-Ernest Sabino also imitated Lalique, and became famous for nude figurines and small opalescent glass animals.

Hunebelle did not gain as much fame as his contemporaries.

Q. What can I expect to pay for a barbershop chair?

A. You might find a child's chair from a barbershop for around $100. For an adult chair, you'd spend from $500 to $2,500, depending on age, decoration and condition.

Although wooden chairs are older, nickel-plated chairs sell for the most money.

The Garden Club
by Elizabeth Queenan

Thoughts of spring inevitably turn toward gardening. However, you have to be very careful this time of year if you live in a temperate climate. It isn't uncommon to have frost. In fact, in some areas of the country, you can have frost up until Memorial Day Weekend!

Where I live, I don't put in my vegetable garden until Memorial Day. That's when the local Cornell Cooperative Extension advises is the best time to plant. Planting earlier than that endangers whatever you put in.

Of course, you can plant earlier and cover everything with a plastic cover before night falls. People I know who do that are generally successful.

It's also a good idea to use pesticides as little as possible, if at all. There are books on organic gardening which can help you with pest control. Apparently, some plants actually repel different pests. It's a good idea to find out what they are and use them to your best advantage.

I don't like pesticides because I don't want to ingest them. It's as simple as that. It's bad enough that you're at the mercy of your local supermarket's produce suppliers during winter. However, when you grow your own produce, you can be more discriminate.

For winter, I still enjoy my own produce since I can what I harvest in the fall. While it's a lot of work, it's definitely worth it!

SPRING TIPS

• Ask your local gardening center for your specific needs for your lawn. You may need such products as feed and weed, nitrogen, fertilizer, etc.

• Prepare your vegetable garden by tilling your soil, using fertilizer and adding mulch after you seed or plant.

• Now is the time to prune any unwanted branches from your trees and shrubs.

• Be sure all of your gardening equipment, such as your lawn mower, weed whacker and any other gasoline-powered tool, is operational.

Home Tips

CHILL OUT — After foot surgery, I needed a small ice bag, which I didn't have. So, I took two snack-sized food bags (plastic zipper-type), taped the bottoms together and filled each bag with ice.

They wrapped comfortably around my foot and were held by two large rubber bands. You could do the same with larger-sized bags, too. Harry C., Rutland, Vt.

TWICE AS NICE — After I clean our automatic drip coffee maker, I use the hot white vinegar that has run through the coffee maker, along with baking soda, to clean my drains.

The heated vinegar makes the soda twice as fizzy and since you just pour the vinegar down the drain after cleaning the pot, it gets to do double duty. Rita D., Plano, Texas

CAFE LATTE — Do you want a natural, healthy, practical and cheap alternative to coffee creamers?

Non-fat powdered milk does the trick. Sometimes, by necessity, you find much better alternatives, as I think I did. Liz S., Newark, N.J.

EASY CLEAN — To get the grunge and mildew out of a toothbrush holder, which is hard to clean inside, place it in the dishwasher when you wash a load of dishes.

It cleans great and disinfects it, too! Lucy P., Dover, Del.

REMINDER — If you have any sort of medication that must be taken before bedtime, put it in a plastic bag on top of your bed pillows. You can't forget it, no matter how late you go to bed! Fran M., Clearwater, Fla.

EASY AS PIE — When putting a pie in the oven, place it on a pizza pan to avoid spills and burns. Marie T., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Lawsuit Abuse Group Names New Exec. Director

Western Maryland Citizens Against Lawsuit Abuse, a non-partisan, grassroots, non-profit organization dedicated to educating the public about the high taxpayer cost of frivolous litigation and celebrating citizens who accept jury duty as their civic responsibility, has selected Linda Irvin-Craig as its new executive director as of March 17.

Irvin-Craig brings with her many years of public service experience in both volunteer and elected official capacity, having served the community as county commissioner and elected school board member. In this new role she will direct the group's day-to-day activities, including a speakers' bureau that is available to speak to business, civic, and fraternal organizations about what they can do to help curb the growing concern with frivolous lawsuits in Maryland. She will also be seeking community financial support and volunteers to continue the educational outreach efforts of the organization.

According to Irvin-Craig, this new professional opportunity based in the four counties of Western Maryland, which have a reputation for accountability and responsiveness in their legal systems, opens the prospect for this group to become a model for other regions by promoting the use of more cost-effective means to resolve legal claims.

She replaces Michael O'Connor, who has accepted a position with a Frederick-based cable television station, but who will continue to serve WMCALA on the board of directors. He joins Jack Doll of Marjon Inc., Frederick County; Dr. Frederick Miltenberger, thoracic surgeon, Allegany County; Janna Naylor of A.D. Naylor Inc., Garrett County; Vikki Nelson of Jarnel Iron, Washington County; and Bobby Resh of Richardson's Restaurant, Washington County, in that capacity.

Advisory Council members for WMCALA include John Baer, Josh Brooks, Michael Callas, Jerry Geisler, John Korpela, Oakland mayor Asa McCain, and Jonathan Warner.

READING TO RISING STARS - Grantsville Elementary School students enjoyed a story read to them recently by local business owner Mary Alice Broadwater. She volunteered her time to participate in Gov. Parris Glendening's Rising Stars reading program challenge to encourage students to read 10 books before the end of this school year. Members of many Garrett County communities have joined in to help by reading or listening to children read in schools. Anyone who would like to participate may contact a local school for further information.

I'd like some memory of me to be a happy one.
I'd like to leave an afterglow of smiles when life is done.
I'd like to leave an echo whispering safely down the way of happy times and laughing times and bright and sunny days.
I'd like the tears of those who grieve to dry before the sun of happy memories that I leave whenever life is done.

Hospice Hosting Teleconference On April 22

Hospice of Garrett County Inc. and Garrett County Community College will join 2,000 other organizations across the United States and Canada as a local host for the fourth annual National Bereavement Teleconference, sponsored by the Hospice Foundation of America. The event will be held Wednesday, April 22, at Garrett Community College, Room 307, from 1 until 4:30 p.m.

"Living with Grief: Who we Are, How We Grieve," a live-via satellite video teleconference, will explore how such factors as culture, spirituality, gender, and age influence the experience of loss and the expression of grief. The program will be moderated by Cokie Roberts of ABC News and will feature a distinguished panel of experts.

The Hospice Foundation of America is a non-profit organization established to assist those who cope either personally or professionally with terminal illness and the process of death, grief, and bereavement. The teleconference is being co-sponsored by the Association for Death Education and Counseling (ADEC), Compassionate Friends, and Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), in cooperation with the American Nurses Association, the American Hospital Association, and funded in part by Service Corporation International Inc.

"Loss touches us all," said Jack D. Gordon, president of the Hospice Foundation of America. "Grief is a universal condition and at the same time an intensely individual process. In an increasingly diverse society, it is essential the hospices and other organizations have the opportunity to explore the ways that cultural attitudes and spiritual beliefs affect the grieving process. Hosting or co-sponsoring the teleconference provides an opportunity for local organizations to discover and network with other diverse resources in their own communities.

In addition to hospices, teleconference sites will include hospitals, state offices on aging, universities, community colleges, and funeral homes.

Ms. Roberts will moderate the 2½ hour panel discussion. The panel will include Ronald K. Barrett, Ph.D., a professor of psychology at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles, who specializes in the study of cross-cultural differences in death and dying; Kenneth J. Doka, Ph.D., Lutheran minister and professor of gerontology at the College of New Rochelle; Bernice Catherine Harper, M.S.W., Msc.Ph., L.L.D., with the Health Care Financing Administration, well-known in the field of long-term care; Patricia Murphy, R.N., Ph.D., F.A.A.N., clinical specialist in ethics and bereavement at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center; and Bradley Stuart, M.D., Hospice medical director for VNA and Hospice of Northern California.

Last year's teleconference was seen by 150,000 people in over 2,000 communities, according to a spokesperson.

"The teleconference was excellent; panelists were knowledgeable, topics relevant, and the moderator kept everything going smoothly. It was a great opportunity for people from the community—hospice staff, volunteers, clergy, funeral directors, and families—to hear valuable information from the nation's top experts in the field," explained Jane Sealing, local Hospice director of bereavement.

This conference is open to the public: however, persons must register in advance by calling Hospice at 301-334-5151 or 1-800-521-5252.

CIVIC CLUB LISTENS TO FUNDING REQUESTS — The Civic Club of Oakland held its annual meeting for funding requests last week, with members listening to 20 representatives of a wide range of non-profit groups and causes. Each representative had two minutes to explain his or her organization and to ask for funding help. The Civic Club distributes varying amounts of money each year to those groups who attend the annual get-together and give their pitches for assistance. Each group represented will most likely receive some money, according to a club spokesperson. Members vote to prioritize the requests, and the allocations will be announced later this month. Pictured in the front row, left to right, are Bonnie Haenftling and Jennifer Schroyer, both from Accident Head Start; Mary McEwen, Warm the Children; Bernadine Friend, G.C. Humane Society; Jane Avery, Our Town Theatre; Ruth Goldbloom, G.C. Lighthouse; Elaine McDonald, G.C. Memorial Hospital Foundation; Donna Cumerlato, Big Brothers/Big Sisters; and Edith Brock, G.C. Historical Society Museum Fund. In the second row, same order, are Fred Stemple, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival; Barbara Briggs, G.C. Habitat for Humanity and the G.C. Cooperative Ministry; Asa McCain, Save Oakland Station; Martin Heise, House of Hope; Steve Schiosnagle, G.C. Arts Council; Ron Petrella, girls' high school soccer; Alice Hevner, G.C. 4-H Program; Sheila Hughes, Ruth Enlow Library; Ida Maust, Hospice of G.C.; and Dorothy Leuba, G.C. Organization for the Handicapped. Not present for the photo was Carol Agnew, who represented Garrett County Crime Solvers.

Vitamin B-6 and Risk of Strokes

According to a new report, the number of Americans afflicted with stroke (damage to the brain due to a disruption of blood flow to the brain) is much higher than health officials previously thought. The actual number of people in the U.S. who have at least one stroke each year is about 731,000 (about 40% higher than earlier estimates). Strokes can cause loss of memory and difficulty speaking, walking, and controlling emotions. A number of factors are related to increased risk of stroke. Such factors include smoking, high blood pressure, high cholesterol levels, fatty deposits in the blood vessels, and diabetes.

The initial treatment for stroke usually requires hospitalization. Agents that dissolve blood clots may be administered. Antiseizure medicines may be required. Stroke prevention therapies may include drugs that prevent the clumping of platelets in the blood stream. A recent report in the journal Circulation indicates that about 20% of the U.S. population may be at risk for stroke and heart attack because they do not consume enough vitamin B-6. If dietary intake is not adequate, supplementation with vitamin B-6 and other vitamins may provide protection against this risk.

Crellin Assembly Of God Marks Easter In New Sanctuary

A major renovation and addition to the Crellin Assembly of God Church, on Hutton Road in Crellin, is nearing completion in time for Easter services that will be conducted in the church's new sanctuary.

The building project began late last summer, and over the course of construction the sanctuary was enlarged and completely renovated to increase the seating area by a third. New pews, carpeting, and lighting, and a new sound control room, choir loft, and pulpit area have been added. A number of new Sunday school classrooms, four new handicapped-accessible restrooms, and an elevator lift are among the new features.

During the fall and winter months services were conducted in the downstairs fellowship hall, and renovation to that area and some exterior work remain to be finished in the next few weeks.

Pastor David Snodgrass and the congregation of the Crellin Assembly of God invite the public to participate in all of their services, especially this Easter Sunday. Sunday school begins at 9:45 a.m., followed by morning worship at 10:45. The church also has services on Sunday evenings at 6 p.m. and Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m.

SHS Students To Compete In State Auto Skills Match

Two students from Southern Garrett County High School will pit their automotive repair skills against nine other two-member teams from across Maryland in Ford/AAA's annual Student Auto Skills Competition.

Jason James, Kitzmiller, and Jeremiah Johnson, Oakland, will vie with other students to win a portion of the nearly $8 million in scholarships and prizes to be awarded.

Contestants will face a "hands-on" challenge of their abilities to repair identically "bugged" Ford automobiles. The competition will take place at Catonsville Community College in Baltimore County on April 18. Scores will be based on quality of work and length of time used to repair the vehicles. Participants in the event were selected based on scores earned on a written automotive test earlier this year.

The winning Maryland team will represent the state in the national finals contest in Washington, D.C., June 15. The two winning students will also earn a spot in the Ford Motor Company's ASSETT (Automotive Student Service Educational Training) program, which includes scholarships to associate degree automotive technology programs and paid apprenticeships to Ford or Lincoln Mercury dealerships.

NHS Post-Prom Party Committee Notes Progress

The Northern High School after-prom party committee has held several meetings to plan activities and entertainment for the special event. Members of that group have reported progress in planning for the party.

The theme for this year's after-prom activity is "Rock Around the Clock." This drug/alcohol/tobacco-free all-night social event will be held at Northern High School from 11:30 p.m. May 9 to 6 a.m. May 10.

The planning committee for this post-prom event will meet Tuesdays, April 14 and 28, at 7 p.m. in Room 113 of NHS. Parents and guardians are encouraged to participate in this process.

Monetary donations to help defray the cost of the party may be dropped by the school office or mailed in care of NHS After-Prom Committee, 86 Pride Parkway, Accident, MD 21520.

SUPPORTING POST-PROM PARTY - The Northern Garrett County Republican Women's Club made a donation to the Northern High School post-prom party. Farming In Maryland.....

Dairy Farmers Struggle To Join Compact

by Amy L. Miller,
Information Services
Maryland Farm Bureau

Last month, Maryland dairy farmers received a setback in their annual search for more uniform fluid milk prices in the region.

On March 12, members of the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee rejected SB 285, a bill that would have allowed the state's dairy farmers to join the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. The compact, created as part of the national 1995 farm legislation, sets the purchase price for raw milk in all states which are part of the agreement. Government programs such as schools and welfare are exempt from the pricing agreement.

The bill was an attempt to help dairy farmers, who have argued over the past few years that they need help resisting economic pressures from milk producers in other states. For example, farmers in Virginia and Pennsylvania are guaranteed a minimum price for their fluid milk from a state milk commission. Once they've made a profit in their home state, these farmers can then sell their excess milk in Maryland at prices lower than local farmers can afford to offer.

Maryland has lost 82 dairy farms in the past year alone, which, according to agricultural economists, means about $13 million lost to the state's economy. Agricultural economists have determined that each dairy farm generates about $160,000 per year for Maryland's economy.

"I am disappointed that people want to preserve farmland, but not viable agriculture," said Myron Wilhide, a Carroll County dairy farmer. Wilhide, former chairman of the Maryland Farm Bureau dairy committee, has served on several task forces studying the future of Maryland's milk industry.

"This recent freeze which damaged some crops should be a lesson for people," he said. "Crops can be lost, but strawberries and peppers can be replanted and replaced. If you lose a dairy farm, it can take you years to get back into the business."

In previous years, Maryland dairy farmers have proposed the state create a dairy commission similar to those in Pennsylvania and Virginia. However, with New York and Pennsylvania working to join the federal compact, this cleared the way to allow Maryland the same opportunity.

Federal legislation requires that only contiguous states be part of the agreement. At present, only the New England states are part of the compact, which has been in operation for over a year. In each case, states must pass legislation allowing their dairy farmers to apply for membership in the compact. Final approval then rests with Congress.

As always, opponents to milk pricing—such as Giant Food and other large grocery chains—set out early to categorize the compact as a subsidy to farmers and a "milk tax" on consumers. In letters to legislators and statewide advertising, grocery chains argued that setting a price for raw milk would automatically raise prices at the store.

However, Maryland Farm Bureau and other agricultural organizations pointed out that members of the compact have been receiving about $1.45 per gallon for their milk. Meanwhile, Maryland dairy farmers were receiving around $1.50 per gallon during the same period.

In addition, surveys of milk prices have shown that Baltimore City residents often pay more for their milk than citizens in most other areas of the state. Agricultural lobbyists say this shows that the market, rather than wholesale prices, drives the cost of milk in grocery stores.

"The price might go a little bit higher, but we have to live within reality," Wilhide said. "The price can only go so high. All things being equal, this is about as high as it's going to go."

It appears that the bill, which was rejected by the Senate committee in an 8 to 3 vote, may have died in a political dispute rather than on its merits, agricultural lobbyists say. Urban legislators, upset that their rural counterparts had voted against a bill they considered important, decided to vote against the milk compact bill.

Agricultural lobbyists are now working with legislators to make a similar bill introduced in the House of Delegates more palatable to those opposed to the concept. As of press time, the bill—which had been heard in the House Environmental Matters committee on March 4—had not yet been brought up for a vote.

"I would like to thank the rural legislators for the support they've given us," Wilhide said. "I'm very thankful for what they've done in our interest."

In other dairy legislation, a bill which would designate milk as the state drink has passed the House of Delegates and is being considered in the state Senate. Lawmakers in the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee were expected to hold a hearing about the bill on March 26.

A similar bill did not pass out of the General Assembly last year.

Farm Bureau Says Nutrient Management Bill Unnecessary

The American Farm Bureau Federation told Congress last week that it is unnecessary to establish a federal regulatory and permitting program for animal waste management with Agriculture Department jurisdiction.

Farm Bureau "believes this approach to be unjustified and wasteful of limited resources and one that will lead to confusion among landowners and redundancy among state and federal agencies," AFBF declared in a statement submitted to the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The committee held a hearing last week on S. 1323, a bill submitted by Sen. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa), which would create a new federal regulatory permit program at USDA separate from that of the Clean Water Act. It would impose new and different standards, requirements, and liabilities on a much broader class of livestock producers than is currently required by the Clean Water Act.

Farm Bureau stated that the legislation would impose upon USDA a role that conflicts with its long history of working in partnership with farmers and ranchers.

"This is certain to have a chilling effect on longstanding relationships with producers that have been built on mutual trust, consultation, and friendship," Farm Bureau stated. "That role and relationship is unique in government and critical to solving these inherently local and site specific watershed problems."

Farmers and ranchers throughout the nation are voluntarily implementing proven techniques and strategies to improve water quality, Farm Bureau said. "There is ample authority under current federal and state law to address water quality concerns, and, in fact, much has been done and much is currently under way. This legislation neither replaces nor pre-empts existing state and federal law, but rather competes."

Farm Bureau said what is needed are additional resources better targeted to impaired watersheds and directed at on-the-ground activities and practices that will result in water quality improvements. Agricultural research, technical assistance, and conservation initiatives are keys to continued agricultural abundance.

Farm Bureau believes that flexible, voluntary, and incentive-based conservation programs will achieve greater levels of participation and water quality improvement with less administrative cost than the approach proposed in Harkin's bill.

"The conservation revolution that has occurred on farms and ranches across the country is a remarkable accomplishment in a relatively short period of time. Farmers and ranchers have proved that incentive-based partnerships with government can work. We believe that nutrient management can and should be approached in a similar manner," Farm Bureau stated.

Agricultural Land Values Escalate

The January 1, 1998, Maryland farm real estate value, including land and buildings, reached a new record high of $4,120 per acre. The average value per acre advanced 3% from a year earlier. Since 1990 Maryland farmland value per acre increased 61%, and since 1980 the increase was 84%.

In the United States, farm real estate reached a new record high of $1,000 per acre, continuing a climb that began in 1987. Since 1987 the average value of an acre of U.S. farmland has grown from $599 an increase of 67%.

Regional increases in the values of farm real estate during 1997 ranged from 3 to 9%. The Northeast Region with its urban influences had the highest average value of land and buildings at $2,676 per acre, up 3% over the previous year. The Corn Belt, at $1,869 per acre, showed the largest percentage gain at 9% from 1997 and surpassed the prior all-time high of $1,776 set back in 1981. The Lake Region also exceeded its previous high of $1,243 set back in 1981 with a new high of $1,288 per acre. The Southeast and Northeast regions showed the lowest increase at 3% each, while the remaining regions rose 4 to 8%. All states showed increases from the previous year except for Vermont and New York, which remained steady.

Planting Underway Across Maryland

The planting of field crops and vegetables has begun throughout the state. Field corn planting was underway and running slightly ahead of the five-year average. The planting of tobacco beds at 91%, were nearly completed, ahead of average. Vegetable planting was off to a good start, especially with potatoes and green peas. Potato planting stood at 21% while planting of peas was reported at 27% complete. Wheat condition was 3% very poor, 6% poor, 29% fair, 50% good, and 12% excellent. The barley crop was 3% very poor, 6% poor, 20% fair, 60% good, and 11% excellent. Rye condition was 1% very poor, 3% poor, 26% fair, 66% good, and 10% excellent. The mild winter allowed for good growth of small grains in most areas of the state.

Pastures were 8% poor, 15% fair, 67% good, and 10% excellent. Hay supplies varied statewide, but were mostly adequate overall.

Apples and peaches got off to an early start with blooming running ahead of the five-year average. Some pats of western Maryland were concerned about the potential freeze damage due to the early bloom. Strawberries were blooming right on schedule.

Topsoil moisture was 2% short, 69% adequate, and 29% surplus. Subsoil moisture was 77% adequate and 23% surplus. There was an average of 4.8 days suitable for fieldwork for the week ending on April 5.

Maryland's crop progress for the week which ended April 5, listing the item, the percentages for this week, last week, last year, and the five-year average, in that order, follows:

Planting progress: field corn, 2, n/a, 4, 1; potatoes, 21, n/a, 69, 25. Fruit crops blooming: apples, 14, n/a, 15, 5; peaches, 32, n/a, 33, 15; strawberries, 8, n/a, 5, 6.

Md. Agriculture Needs Updated "Right-To-Farm"

by Valerie Connelly, National Affairs Maryland Farm Bureau

The Maryland General Assembly is in the final week of the 1998 session. One of the issues Farm Bureau has actively pursued this year is an update of our state Right to Farm law. As farms in Maryland continue to change and evolve in response to market demand and in anticipation of new nutrient management requirements, the law that protects farmers from lawsuits by neighbors who harass and persecute them over standard agricultural practices must be updated.

Senator Walter Baker (D, 36th District) and Del. Robert Baldwin (R, 33rd District) have introduced bills to make three minor changes to the state law that will, in the end, send a strong message of support to farmers across the state.

SB 404 and HB 1108 recognize that Maryland farmers play an important role in the state's economy—generating more than $11 billion in revenue and employing 14% of the workforce with 350,000 jobs.

The bills also recognize that farmers play a pivotal role in protecting and preserving our land and water resources with 14,000 farms on about 2.5 million acres. SB 404 and HB 1108 recognize the importance of the farm community in the nationally acclaimed Agricultural Land Preservation Program, Program Open Space, Smart Growth, and Rural Legacy Program.

In this regard the legislation strengthens the ability of farmers to defend themselves against the harassment and disdain that have unfortunately become the norm in many areas of our state where rural communities and suburban sprawl collide.

The farming community is committed to a peaceful coexistence with new neighbors who move out to the country in search of beautiful scenery, open space, and the friendliness of our small communities. Most of today's farmers are the second and third generation in their family to tend the land on which they live. They are the backbone of rural Maryland.

More and more, however, farmers are being challenged by neighbors over the noise, dust, smells, and hours of operation that are necessary to produce food and fiber to feed our nation and the world. For instance, Harford County farmer, Joseph Roll, has been involved in a dispute with some of his new neighbors over the fact his farm smells bad when he spreads manure on his fields. The neighbors want him to stop his activities, even though he is following the nutrient management plan written for him by our state Cooperative Extension Service.

They objected when he removed a broken-down fence and the weeds that had grown and replaced it with a new fence to keep his animals in the pasture. They did not want him to disturb the "natural aspect" of the land. You should also know that the Roll farm is in an area of the county that has been zoned specifically for agricultural use.

Joe Roll's neighbors have taken their case to the court of public opinion. They have called local radio talk show programs to harass his farming activities. They have called the slaughter house that processes his pigs and have told them not to buy Mr. Roll's animals because he is producing them in a "suburban area." They have even contacted local and state elected officials in an attempt to halt his operation.

Mr. Roll is worried that he will have to spend a lot of money to defend himself in court someday soon. He wants to know what more he can do to end this harassment. He is just one of many farmers across the state who are in this position.

SB 404 and HB 1108 send a strong message to the communities that include farms. It says to rural neighbors that agriculture is important to Maryland and that we will not allow our farmers to be harassed out of existence. It says to farmers that we appreciate the work you do and we want you in our rural landscapes. The General Assembly should enact the changes we have proposed in SB 404 and HB 1108.

Protecting Plants From Frost

Although the weather has cooled down I still expect an early bloom on fruit and flowering shrubs. Applying water to the plants can help protect the blossoms from frost damage. The water should be sprayed over the plants as a light mist forming a coat of ice on the blossoms. The energy created between the ice and the surface of the blossom often provides enough heat for frost protection. As a rule-of-thumb, start misting when the temperature falls to 32 to 34 degrees F. For plants such as strawberries, check the temperature at ground level. Ground level temperatures at this time of the season will cool off faster. Continue the misting after daylight until the ice melts. It is very important that the ice melt is the result of the applied water rather than sunlight.

Tractor ROPS Save Lives

No matter how careful we are, things still happen. Steve Ellsworth, a farmer in Letts, Iowa, found that to be true in the summer of 1996. Steve was mowing a roadside ditch less than a quarter-mile from his home, when the tractor's front tire sank into a hole, resulting in the tractor overturning onto its side.

Steve knew the hole was there and had mowed around it numerous times before. He said he remembered it at about the same time he felt the wheel go in. He said, "The scary thing was that the instant I felt the tire sink, I knew exactly what was going to happen, and there wasn't a thing I could do about it. In the event of an overturn, there is no time to react and to think that I'll be really alert and careful and can react if something goes wrong."

Carol Lehtola, Extension Agricultural Engineering safety specialist at the University of Florida, states that "Steve began to change his tractor usage practices following the continuous exposure to safety messages about the importance of rollover protective structures (ROPS)." She adds, "These safety messages were promoted by manufacturers, extension personnel, the media, and organizations such as the National Safety Council and the Iowa Center for Ag Safety and Health." In the past, he had mowed using an open station, non-ROPS equipped tractor, for doing the maintenance type of mowing. After doing a safety assessment of his farm, he made the decision to use only tractors equipped with ROPS.

Thus on that summer day, Steve was able to crawl out of the cab of his overturned tractor and walk home to call the tow truck and hug his wife and son. Steve stated, "There is no doubt in my mind that the use of the ROPS made the difference, not only in keeping me protected, but also by limiting the tractor to overturning only on its side. This also resulted in minimal damage to the tractor. Being kept in the zone of protection also enabled me to be able to turn off the mower, which continued to operate as a 'dirt and rock thrower'—if I would have been pinned and unable to do that, it would have posed a hazard for anyone attempting to rescue me."

Steve further added that his neighbor was mowing along a nearby roadside only a few weeks later and using a non-ROPS tractor. The tractor overturned, the farmer was killed, and the estate auction was held 7 months later.

As Steve found out, all it takes is 'once' and the use of an ROPS and seat belt are indeed effective in preventing death or serious injury in the event that the tractor does overturn.

Carol emphasizes that "an ROPS used with seat belts is considered to be 99.9% effective in preventing deaths due to tractor overturns." She adds, "major tractor manufacturers now offer programs where ROPS can be purchased for most tractors manufactured since 1970. Check with your local dealership for more information. The life you save may be your own!

The National Safety Council encourages all farmers and ranchers to take the first step and put an emphasis on safety during National Farm Safety and Health Week and throughout the year. It will take a team effort to prevent tractor rollover deaths and other farm and ranch injuries.

This article was prepared by Carol J. Lehtola, Ph.D, Extension Agricultural Engineering safety specialist, Agricultural and Biological Engineering Department, Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences, in Gainesville, Fla.

Scientists Testing Poultry Vaccine Against "Bird Flu"

Microbiologist Mike Perdue of USDA's Agricultural Research Service traveled last week to Hong Kong to deliver for further tests a new poultry vaccine with potential to protect poultry against the "bird flu" (avian influenza H5N1).

The vaccine was jointly tested by scientists with the ARS Southeast Poultry Research Laboratory at Athens, Ga., and researchers at Protein Sciences Corporation, Meriden, Conn. In December 1997, the vaccine was shown to protect chickens from the virus in controlled studies at the ARS facility at Athens.

Under the research partnership between ARS and Protein Sciences, the scientists developed a previous vaccine to protect against a different avian influenza strain, one that appeared in Mexico in 1995. The Mexican strain is in the same genetic family—H5—as the Hong Kong virus, but gave no evidence of infecting people.

Scientists from the Hong Kong Department of Agriculture and Fisheries and zoo officials from Hong Kong's urban services department will test the vaccine's potential to protect poultry and other bird species from the bird flu strain. An effective vaccine could reduce the likelihood of the virus's spread in poultry if it returns. The virus is 100 percent lethal in chickens.

Perdue and other scientists at SEPRL have evaluated the genetic make-up of North American and Asian-origin H5 viruses. Protein Sciences Corporation researchers combined the researchers' insights and genetic material from the viruses with patented technology to develop their vaccines. The technology uses an insect virus, baculovirus, to produce huge quantities of a single viral protein. In ARS tests conducted in Athens, the vaccines have provided 100 percent protection to chicks exposed to H5. Unvaccinated exposed birds died.

The Protein Sciences vaccines for avian influenza are in the process of being evaluated for approval in the United States in case of another outbreak. One advantage of vaccination with these new vaccines is that the baculovirus-produced proteins will allow regulatory agencies to readily distinguish vaccinated birds from birds that have been infected naturally with the influenza virus.

World Guernsey Conference Held In United States

Guernsey breeders from around the United States welcomed the 9th World Guernsey Cattle Federation Conference to Louisville, Ky., from Thursday, March 26, through Monday, March 30. This conference was held in conjunction with the annual American Guernsey Association Convention.

Starting out in Washington, D.C., for a week-long pre-conference tour, approximately 30 international guests toured through the states of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Ohio, seeing Guernsey herds and special sights before making their way to Louisville for the World Guernsey Conference.

On Thursday, March 26, Guernsey representatives from the host state of Kentucky welcomed international guests representing the countries of New Zealand, Canada, Brazil, Isle of Guernsey, England, United Kingdom, Republic of South Africa, Kenya, and Australia to the conference.

During the week, ideas echoed around on how to keep the Guernsey breed prospering around the world and moving forward for future generations. Together, Guernsey breeders from around the world attended seminars on topics such as product development and marketing objectives, youth extension programs, breeding strategies within small populations, environmental policies, farming objectives, and Guernsey global breeding plans. Like the audience, the speakers too came from around the world, representing the countries of England, Sweden, Isle of Guernsey, United States, and Canada.

A highlight of the conference was the Kentucky National/World Guernsey Conference Sale, which averaged $2,360. The high-seller was purchased by Pleasant View Farm Dairy of St. Thomas, Pa., for $10,400.

U.S. breeders are particularly proud of association members representing them on the World Guernsey Federation Executive Committee and Board of Directors. Neil Jensen of Reynoldsburg, Ohio, will serve as chairman of the executive committee. John Morrow of Tyrone, Pa., and Dr. John Mozier of Stanley, Kan., will be serving on the board of directors.

As the 9th World Guernsey Conference came to a close on Monday, March 30, the Republic of South Africa contingents invited everyone to attend the 10th World Guernsey Conference in South Africa in the year 2001. A closing banquet was also held, as new and old friends parted with renewed enthusiasm and commitment to the Guernsey breed.

The American Guernsey Association is the national organization for the registration and promotion of Guernsey cattle and is headquartered in Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

Good Will From Goodwill

by Clara Withnell
Goodwill Nursing Home

Residents, staff, and villagers are all enjoying the first warm days of spring. In addition to flowers blooming, mallards are nesting near first- and second-floor windows, and killdeer are again building their nests on the flat roof.

Naomie Cutter (Dimples) is coming again twice a month with her ceramics, as she has for many years. Old time residents will remember when she brought her 5-year-old son Bill with her and they will be pleased to hear he has presented her with a new grandson, Trevor William. Dimples pours the slip into molds and makes the first firing in her shop. She brings the greenware to the home, where it is glazed. Margaret Alexander, Ellen Saunders, and Agnes Teets are the residents who really enjoy this activity, aided by volunteer Mary Alice Skidmore. This continues from spring through November, when the ceramics are taken to Uniontown and other malls for sale. We appreciate the generosity of the malls for not charging us for the craft tables.

Martha Bender, dietary supervisor, is trying to limit the Easter egg coloring to about 30 dozen. Last year they found that 600 eggs (50 dozen) was too tiresome for the residents.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church from Accident (Carnie Silber's home church) hosted the birthday party. Honorees were: Ollis Brenneman, Amanda Wilburn, Saloma Schrock, Ora McKenzie, Eleanor Dolly, Claude Maust, Carnie Silber, Maude Hockenberry, Ottie Meadows, Marie Sisler, Barbara Pendergast, Rennie Bartholomew, Mary Tabler, and Thelma Cascia. Thirty-one family members came from far and wide for Ottie Meadows' 100th birthday. They made her a quilted lap cover that was signed by each one. They bought monkeys, geese, and a cat to take all the way to Iowa.

Emmanuel Lutheran Church of Bittinger hosted the tea party with skits and singing. They served cheese, crackers, fruit, and punch.

On March 31 the American Health Care Apparel Ltd. was at the home with their extensive collection of adaptive clothing for the handicapped (as well as traditional clothing) for sale. We thank them for the friendly service they provide the residents.

We really appreciate the following people who volunteered for our Thursday morning chapel services: Henry Tice of Mountain View Christian Fellowship, Alan Kaufman of Glade Mennonite Church, Sanford Bender of Dry Run Mennonite Church, and Eli Hershberger of Swanton Mennonite Church.

We enjoyed a great variety of programs this month. On four separate mornings we had films about Russia, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, Washington, D.C., and water birds. The evening programs included Donna Sites singing and playing with her guitar, Pam and Tammy Brenneman from Bittinger, Marsha Caton, who sang hymns, a group of seven people from Maple Glen Mennonite Church, who sang a cappella, Alan Birkby, who played his fiddle, and a group from Little Meadows Baptist Church. Also entertaining were Heaven's Mountain Band, The Glory Bound Singers, Dwight Yinkey, Tammy Swauger from Grantsville with her 6-year old daughter, and Frank and Helen West. Other programs included: 11 children from the Oak Dale 4-H Club in Accident; Trinity Assembly of God sent a pianist and a ventriloquist; and the Reverend Karsten and his wife from Accident brought a group who sang and played the trombone, clarinet, and organ in honor of Barbara Pendergast's birthday. Lolly Yommer from Jennings Church of God presented a program in honor of Amanda Wilburn's birthday. Others included 24 singers from Dry Run Mennonite Church, Brenda Shreve from Jennings Methodist Church, who played the piano and sang, 12 a cappella singers from Swanton Mennonite Church, Ray Teets, who gave a talk, and Jack Smouse, who played the organ.

One of the favorite programs was given by the JFKs (Just For Kids). They are a group of 12 people, aged 5 to 10 years, from Springs Mennonite Church. Using Spring as their theme, one girl played the piano, some recited poems, others brought bird seed, flowers, and even a caterpillar. Two other lively programs were: the Irvin Ullery Family singing to the piano and guitar, and Oscar and Owen Preston, from Pine Grove Church in Mt. Savage, who performed as an organ grinder and a monkey.

Anthony Lehman, assistant administrator, brought Terry Beitzel, photographer, through the village and nursing home taking pictures of various activities. Verna Bender, director of nursing, used the pictures for a display that she and Anthony took to job fairs at Rocky Gap and Allegany College.

Kevin Yoder and his maintenance crew really appreciate the donation by Gordon and Betty Werner (villagers) of a D R Trimmer on wheels.

Augusta Witcoski, from Goodwill Independent Living (apartments), will be moving into the new cottage when it is finished later this spring. Grady and Margaret Forrester (Ottie Meadows' daughter and husband) from Texas will also be moving to the village.

The villagers gathered at Penn Alps to celebrate Jack Smouse's birthday, at the instigation of Henry and Mary Yoder.

MVA Motorcycle Safety Program Has New Service

The Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA) has made it more convenient for customers to receive their motorcycle license after they complete a course through the MVA's Motorcycle Safety Program. For the first time, students who graduate from the course will not have to take additional written and skills tests to receive their motorcycle licenses. Those tests will be given during the course. Students can bring their course completion certificates to any MVA office, pay a fee, get their picture taken, and receive their Class M license.

Now in its 14th year of offering educational courses to both new and experienced riders, the Motorcycle Safety Program is operating 12 course locations at various sites throughout Maryland. The award-winning program has trained over 35,000 students since 1985, and more than half of those students have gone on to get their motorcycle licenses.

"The Motorcycle Safety Program has been an extremely successful program, which is important to all Marylanders who share our highways," said Motorcycle Safety Program Administrative Officer Ron Billingsley. "Both motorists and motorcyclists need to look out for one another to reduce accidents and increase safety."

Two courses are currently offered, each costing $50 per student. The beginner's course teaches the fundamentals of riding and helps students overcome any initial fears about actually operating a motorcycle. The program consists of eight hours of classroom instruction and 12 hours of actual motorcycle use. After successfully completing the course, students are given a certificate which they can take to any MVA office to receive their Class M motorcycle license. A learner's permit is not required for taking the course or obtaining a Class M license through the course.

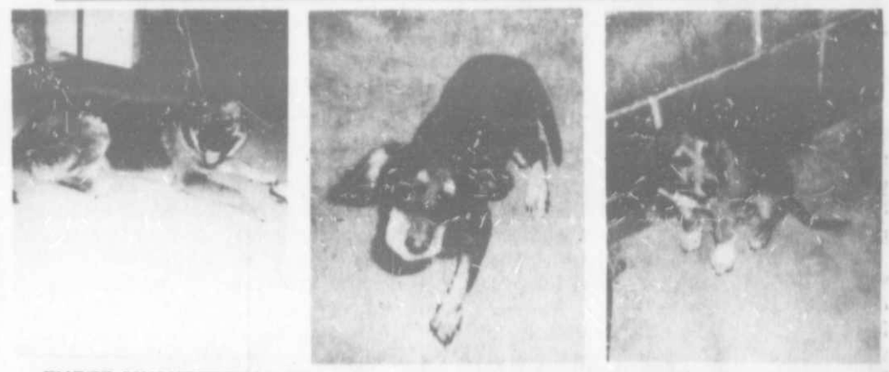
Students will be provided with training motorcycles, and safety equipment is available. Students are required to wear protective clothing, including long pants and long sleeves, as well as ankle-high leather shoes or boots during the actual motorcycle training.

For already-licensed motorcyclists, an experienced rider course is offered to refine or improve skills. Participants are encouraged to use their own motorcycles; however, training motorcycles will be provided if needed.

While most of the students in these courses are male, women now make up approximately one-third of the total enrollment.

Training is offered at Allegany, Carroll, Harford, and Prince George's community colleges, as well as the Glen Burnie, Annapolis, Hagerstown, Frederick, Salisbury, and Waldorf MVA offices. Training also is offered at Cardinal Gibbons School in Baltimore and the Orbital Sciences Corporation in Germantown, Montgomery County.

The program runs from April through October. For more information on how to sign up for the course, the public may call toll free at 1-800-638-1722 Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.



THREE MUSKETEERS? Not quite, but these three dashing doggies are available for adoption at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. The mixed shepherd/husky male at left is wise beyond his 1 year as he can sit, lie down, and shake hands — when asked politely, of course. At center, a tri-colored 6-month to 1-year old mixed dachshund/beagle male struts his stuff for the camera. On the right, a 3-month old black, brown, and white male hound, described as "very gentle," is in search of a human companion of similar temperament and tastes. These youngsters can be viewed at the shelter on Sang Run Road Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The shelter can also be reached at 301-334-3553.

Scott Graham

Safe Employee of the Quarter

Scott Graham, Grantsville, has received the Luke mill's John T. Summers Safe Employee of the Quarter Award for 1st Quarter 1998.

As Area Supervisor of Nos. 5-7 Paper Machines and Chairman of the Lower Paper Mill Safety Committee, Scott has been instrumental in developing the committee into a very proactive and effective group. Through these efforts, the Lower Paper Mill has developed a safety culture. The department has met or exceeded the TCIR goal in each of the past two years and recently worked 214 days without a recordable injury.

Scott, who has been employed by the Luke mill for over 10 years, encourages all Lower Paper Mill personnel to become involved in the mill's safety program and with the elimination of safety hazards and unsafe conditions. Slashed Tuition Available To Local Guard Members

Chad Maroney of Oakland is a Garrett County resident whose membership in the Guard is helping pay for his college education at Garrett Community College (GCC). Active members of the Maryland National Guard can receive a 50 percent tuition reduction at GCC.

Maroney has high praise for the tuition reduction program and what service in the Guard has to offer young people today. "Besides the financial benefits of the tuition reduction and the G.I. Bill," Maroney says, his Guard experience is also a "character builder. It instills a strong sense of responsibility and creates a high level of self esteem. My grades have improved, and I would recommend it to other young people."

Maroney, a second-year student at GCC, also has praise for his GCC educational experience thus far. At GCC, "I can see my advisor anytime and the instructors really care about the students," he said.

A combat engineer in his Guard service, Maroney completed his basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., last fall and returned to college for the spring semester. He is majoring in elementary education and is looking forward to a career as an elementary school teacher. "I especially enjoy helping children learn," he said.

Maroney is a 1996 graduate of Southern High School, where he was a member of the track team and an office aide.

Meet Garrett County's NEW TEACHERS

Susan Hillen, a part-time math resource teacher at Yough Glades Elementary School, began the school year at Red House Elementary. This is her first teaching assignment and she has had the opportunity to benefit from classroom interaction with a number of veteran teachers, who acted as mentors. "The teachers in the classroom have helped me a lot," Hillen said.

Having earned an AA degree from Garrett Community College, Hillen later graduated magnum cum laude from Frostburg State University with an undergraduate degree in early childhood/elementary education. She later completed her master's degree in reading.

While she was in college, Hillen worked as a substitute teacher for the Garrett County Board of Education and served as a graduate assistant at FSU for three semesters.

Hillen completed her internships at Loch Lynn Elementary, where she worked with Mary Ann Friend's kindergarten class, and at Dennett Road Elementary, where Irene Sigel supervised her work in a fifth grade classroom. In addition to her regular teaching duties, she currently serves as a tutor at the Renaissance Learning Center in Oakland.

At Yough Glades, Hillen works with fellow math resource teachers Jarrod Hauser and Amy Thayer, who also started as part-time math teachers at Red House and Loch Lynn schools.

Hillen spoke about her reflection on her first year teaching. "It is pretty overwhelming. It is so good to have the new teachers class in which to share concerns and ideas — ideas we can take into the classroom," she said.

Though she has found teaching a challenge, she enjoys her students. "The kids are great. It is fun to watch them learn," she said. Hillen also said she appreciates working in the new school with its special resources such as the enlarged media center and well-equipped computer classroom.

Hostas To Be Topic At Meeting Of Garden Club

The topic for discussion during the next meeting of the Mountain Laurel Garden Club will be hostas. Hostas are the new number one perennial in popularity in the modern shade garden according to Jim Hawes, retired horticulturist, who will be the guest speaker at the club meeting.

Hawes has a large hosta garden on his Backbone Mountain farm with the greatest number of named and unnamed cultivars of hostas in Maryland, about 2,000 different kinds. He began his one acre, semi-shaded, woodland hosta garden on Kempton Road in 1983, where he built his retirement log home. He grows about 25 acres of Christmas trees also, but said that hostas are his favorite plants.

At the garden club's meeting in April he will tell those present about the many methods of propagation of hostas and give a few guidelines on hosta growing.

A graduate of the University of Maryland with BS and MS degrees in horticulture, Hawes has worked for more than six decades as a scientist, teacher, researcher, and flower grower. He is a worldwide traveler and agricultural expert, having visited or worked in more than 80 countries. He speaks several languages and is familiar with the commercial floricultural industry from many perspectives.

Hawes has served as an expert consultant to international organizations and institutions.

Hostas are related to lilies and are indigenous to Japan, China and Korea. The U.S. leads other countries in the development and promotion of new and better hostas, but hostas are becoming more and more popular in England, Holland, Germany, and Japan.

Hawes has been a member of the American Hosta Society for several years. This organization has about 2,000 members who are gardeners, nursery workers and scientists, all dedicated to the promotion and education of the use of hostas in shade gardens.

Having written dozens of articles in The Hosta Journal, Hawes has been a frequent speaker at the Hosta College held each year in Ohio and attended by about 500 participants. He has also been a speaker at the Regional Hosta Society meetings.

All interested persons are invited to attend the meeting on Tuesday, April 21, 10:30 a.m. at the Will O' The Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, and should make reservations by April 17 with Joanne Henry at 301-334-3450.

Proper Cooking Can Help Prevent Easter Meal Ills

As Easter quickly approaches, it is an excellent idea to plan the Easter festivities. Included, of course, is the Easter meal, which in many homes is centered around a ham, and the children's Easter egg hunt. Both can be sources of bacteria; however, both can be safely enjoyed by the whole family if proper care is taken to minimize the risk of foodborne illness, according to the Garrett County Health Department.

There are a variety of hams on the market today, so it is important to read the label and follow its specific instructions in handling and cooking the meat. For example, some of the canned hams are shelf-stable, meaning they do not need to be refrigerated; however, other canned hams do need to be refrigerated. Further, some smoked hams are fully cooked and can be eaten without further cooking, while other smoked hams need to be cooked.

It is important that all food be cooked thoroughly. All perishable foods must reach an internal temperatures high enough to kill bacteria.

Following the meal, all perishable foods should be refrigerated immediately, no longer than two hours after removal from the refrigerator or oven. Meats still on the bone should be removed from the bone and stored in small shallow containers in the refrigerator or frozen for later use.

Hard-cooked eggs for an egg hunt must be prepared with care to prevent cracking the shells. If the shells are cracked, bacteria can enter through the inside of the egg. The eggs should be hidden in places protected from dirt, pets, and other sources of bacteria. The total time for hiding and hunting eggs should not exceed two hours. The "found" eggs must be re-refrigerated until they are eaten.

With a few precautions, Easter festivities can be enjoyed with a reduced risk of illness.

In Memory Of Carlton "Dale" Harvey
who died April 13, 1997

God looked around his garden and found an empty place.
He then looked down upon the Earth and saw your tired face.
He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful: He always takes the best.
He knew that you were suffering, He knew that you were in pain.
He knew that you would never get well on Earth again.
He saw the road was getting rough, and the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyelids and whispered "Peace be thine."
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you didn't go alone,
For part of us went with you the day God called you home.

Convicted Thief To Spend Six Years In Prison

A Bel Air man was sentenced last week by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge James Sherbin to six years in jail. Robert L. Tucker III, 19, received the jail term for his role in four burglaries committed in May and June 1997. For each of the defendant's three guilty pleas to felony theft, Sherbin imposed two years, to run consecutively. For Tucker's guilty plea to the charge of misdemeanor theft, Sherbin gave him six months, to run concurrently with the rest of the sentence.

Tucker and two co-defendants, Jerry A. Helms and Jason D. Mallon, are accused of breaking into three homes and stealing food and numerous household items. The Body Works, a Deep Creek Lake area business owned by Dennis Savage, was entered and a sum of cash was taken. The cases were reportedly jointly investigated by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and the Maryland State Police.

Kevin A. Lipscomb, 19, Oakland, pleaded guilty last week to four counts of first degree residential burglary, one count of felony theft, and one count of second degree burglary of a business. The defendant and another individual were charged in connection with a total of 14 burglaries and [illegible] that took place last [illegible].

Sherbin ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Lipscomb and revoked his

AT LAST, OAKLAND OWNS IT! Oakland Mayor Asa McCain has put pen to paper to claim the town's ownership of the historic Oakland Train Station. "We've been working on this for 10 years," McCain said. "And now we need local support more than ever." McCain was referring to the cost of the station, which is $150,000. To date, the town, the Greater Oakland Business Association's revitalization committee, and Save Oakland Station (SOS) have raised $27,000. The rest of the purchase price amount will have to come from donations, as the grants available for projects such as this generally only fund restoration work, not land or building purchases. Several grant proposals are in the works, McCain said, and more discussions with state agencies for various funding avenues. Fund-raising events and business donation incentive plans are also being developed. CSX, the railroad company that owned the station, is to be out of the building by Dec. 1, although the town may start working on exterior repairs now. Plans include special fencing and new landscaping, all to be a part of the town's revitalization plan. "This closing was delayed for weeks — it's great to have finally made it to this stage," McCain said.

American Trust Tournament To Benefit Hospice

American Trust Bank is planning its Tenth Annual Charity Golf Tournament, to be held at the Oakland Golf Club on Friday, July 10, 1998. The bank has sponsored a charity tournament of this nature for the last nine years and has succeeded in raising over $125,000 for a number of Garrett County organizations through the generosity of area contributors. This year's recipient of funds will be Hospice of Garrett County.

"We are delighted to be the recipient of the funds generated by this event," said Brenda Butscher, executive director for Hospice of Garrett County. "This is a wonderful way for us to enter into our 15th year of providing care for the terminally ill patients in Garrett County. Our hospice services have touched the lives of many Garrett County residents. The money we receive from the golf tournament will help us provide medications, medical supplies, equipment for patients' homes, home health care, and care in the hospi-

Reception Time Moved For Oliver North's Program

Conservative spokesperson Oliver North will be speaking to a dinner gathering at Will O' the Wisp restaurant tonight, Thursday, April 16. The evening's reception for North, originally scheduled to occur prior to the 7 p.m. meal, has been moved to a new time, following the meal.

Third Rabies Case Confirmed On Cranesville Road

A raccoon that was destroyed by a local citizen who witnessed it staggering around his property located on Cranesville Road recently was confirmed to have been positive for the rabies virus, according to a spokesperson for the Garrett County Health Department.

While the property owner took precautions and was not exposed to the racoon, his currently vaccinated dog was outside at the time and it is unknown if it came into contact with the rabid animal. Following the incident the dog was given a rabies booster as a safety measure.

"This once again reinforces the need to keep the vaccination status of pets current," the spokesperson said. There will be a week of low-cost rabies clinics, sponsored by the health department, running from Monday, May 4, through Saturday, May 9. The clinics will occur throughout the county, and exact locations and times will be announced in the near future and will be published in The Republican.

Wakefield Will Lead University Wind Ensemble

When the University of Maryland Symphonic Wind Ensemble appears in concert at Southern High School, Oakland, on April 26 to open the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival season, the band will be led by John E. Wakefield, director of bands and chairman of the wind and percussion of the Department of Music.

Wakefield is an active adjudicator and guest conductor throughout North America and has been coordinator and conductor of numerous groups during his 30 years at the University of Maryland, including the Washington, D.C, American Youth Performance Band, the Washington Post Bicentennial Band in 1976, and the All-American Honor Musicians, whom he led on concert tours to Athens, Moscow, Leningrad, Istanbul, Rome, and Amsterdam. As the solo euphonium player of the University of Michigan under the direction of William D. Revelli, Wakefield traveled with that group on tours of the Soviet Union and Middle East.

He is a past president of the Eastern Division of the College Band Directors National Association, member of the Music Educators National Conference, past president of the Maryland Music Educators Association, and past president of the Maryland Band Directors Association. He was elected to membership in the exclusive American Bandmasters Association.

Wakefield holds the bachelor of music degree in music education and the master of music degree in wind instrument performance from the University of Michigan.

Tickets for the Symphonic Wind Ensemble concert are now available at the GLAF office by calling 301-387-3082 Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

GLAF events are funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council through the community arts development program.

Five Injured In Accident On Route 219

An accident on Route 219 at Mosser Road resulted in injury to five people. Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, said that the two-vehicle mishap occurred at 5:25 p.m.

The report stated that Stacey K. Gore, 22, Frederick, had stopped at the intersection of Mosser Road and Route 219 to make a left turn onto 219.

James M. Cupp, 40, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., was northbound on Route 219 at that time. Gore reportedly turned into the path of the Cupp vehicle, which struck her vehicle.

Northern and Southern rescue squads responded to the scene along with the Deep Creek VFD. Both drivers and three passengers in the Cupp vehicle were taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Gore was charged with failure to yield right of way.

Strikes Embankment

A driver was injured in a single-vehicle accident on Friday around 8:45 a.m., police said. William H. Baker, 26, Grantsville, was traveling on Jennings Road when the incident occurred. He was allegedly not giving full attention to his driving, and traveled onto the roadside. His vehicle impacted the embankment, rolled

DGL Committee Will Meet With State Officials

The Garrett County/ Deep Creek Lake Advisory Committee will meet on Saturday, April 18, in the public meeting room of the Garrett County Commissioners to continue discussions about GPU Energy's divestiture of the lake power plant facility. The meeting will begin at 11 a.m and is open to the public.

Prior to the public portion, an executive session will be held, beginning at 9:30 a.m., at the request of James Brady, secretary of the Maryland Office of Business and Economic Development, and John Griffin, secretary of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

The meeting Saturday is in lieu of the previously scheduled meeting on April 23.

Information was released this week from GPU, noting that it has initiated its exit from the electric power generation business. Apparently, detailed information about the assets to be sold was mailed out to qualified bidders this week.

Up for sale are GPU's ownership shares in 26 operating fossil and hydro-electric generating stations, with approximately 5,350 megawatts of capacity in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Maryland, along with several support service organizations and generation development sites.

Garrett County Bounty Marketing Program Approved By Commissioners

Local individuals or property owners who are instrumental in bringing new business into Garrett County will now be eligible to receive a cash bounty for their efforts, as part of a new marketing program approved by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners this week.

The Garrett County Bounty Marketing Program, introduced by the Garrett County Development Corporation, is open to any resident or property owner (including part-time residents) of the county who refers any sort of business to the economic development office. If that business eventually either purchases land from the county (i.e., the industrial parks), develops its business somewhere in the county, and/or creates one or more new jobs in the county, then the referring individual will be rewarded.

The bounty payment schedule is as follows: 5% of the purchase price of any Garrett County government-owned land will be given to the referring individual at the time of purchase, and 1% of the total development cost of improvements to the property, plus machinery and equipment, will be paid to the individual at the completion of the development and the commencement of production.

For each new job created and sustained for three years, the referring individual will be paid $250. The maximum bounty to be paid in all will be $10,000.

Participants in the program will first have to prequalify the new business to determine the level of seriousness in actually locating and staying in the county, according to a spokesperson for the development corporation. The name, address, contact person, telephone number, and other pertinent information about the

Public Urged To Avoid Providing Food Sources For Black Bears

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Wildlife and Heritage Division estimates that over 300 black bears live in Maryland, primarily in western Allegany and Garrett counties. Maryland's black bear range is part of a much larger Southern Appalachian Mountain region, encompassing parts of both West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Black bears prefer expansive forested habitats, and populations throughout the tri-state area have been on the increase in recent years.

Although numerous, black bears are shy and secretive by nature and are rarely seen by humans. During the spring and early summer months, black bears do, however, become more active. This increase in activity is due to the fact that young bears (about 1-½ years old) are chased away by their mothers to find a home of their own. Also, during June and July, black bears are breeding, and older males will wander long distances in search of a mate.

DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division warns that people who come upon black bears should treat them with respect and leave them alone.

Bears usually pose no threat to humans unless they are harassed, pursued, cornered, or have cubs with them.

Bears should not be approached for any reason. It puts both you and the bear in danger. In Maryland, it is ILLEGAL to feed, harass, pursue, or destroy a black bear. If left alone and without a food source from humans, the wandering bear will find its way back to more suitable habitat, usually within a day or two.

Avoid approaching bears which appear to be tame. DO NOT APPROACH A BEAR WITH CUBS OR CUBS THAT APPEAR TO BE ALONE! Female bears may move off a short distance from their cubs but can return rapidly and aggressively if the cubs are threatened.

Bears have an excellent sense of smell and it is not uncommon for bears to raid garbage cans, birdfeeders, corn cribs, or ransack outbuildings in search of food, especially when natural foods are scarce. At no time should food be left out on purpose for bears, since this may cause them to lose their natural fear of humans. Maryland law strictly prohibits the baiting or feeding of bears. A bear which associates food with humans is more likely to hang around waiting for more handouts and may lose its ability to survive in the wild. Encounters with black bears are less likely to occur in situations where bears have learned to fear people.

A few simple suggestions that should help prevent problems that may occur if a bear is spotted in the vicinity of a home follow:

* Remove all possible food sources from the yard and porch, including trash, barbecue grills, pet food, and birdfeeders.
* Feed pets only as much as they can eat at one time and bring the remainder inside.
* Bring in bird and other wildlife feeders until the bear moves on.
* Do not store bird food, corn, or trash on screened porches.
* If garbage must be placed outside, sprinkle ammonia on the bags and in the can before securing the lid. The ammonia vapors will build up and help deter the bear, should it try to get into the can. This must be done daily.

It is important to remember that bears are very opportunistic feeders and they have very good memories when it comes to finding food. If a bear has had a meal of garbage, pet food, or bird seed, it will more likely return to feed again. It is, therefore, very important to stop the problem before it starts. A bear that associates food with people will eventually lose its natural fear of humans. This, in turn, may lead to the bear needing to be relocated or destroyed.

Seeing a black bear is proof that we still have forests extensive enough to provide habitat for this wide-ranging animal. Encounters with bears are remembered and retold for years to come.

DNR requests the assistance of every citizen in managing this extraordinary wildlife resource. Persons with questions or who seek further information about black bears in Maryland are encouraged to call the local DNR Wildlife and Heritage office at Mt. Nebo at 301-334-4255.

Auditions Set For Our Town Theatre Play

Auditions for The Dining Room, a two-act play by A.R. Gurney, will be held this Sunday, April 19, from 1 to 5 p.m. and on Monday, April 20, and Tuesday, April 21, from 6 to 8 p.m. at Our Town Theatre.

"The reason why these try-outs are so early in the evening is because at this time we don't have any electricity in our building, stated Jane Avery, artistic director of OTT. "We hope to be hooked up any day now, but for a while, rehearsals may have to take place in another location. We are hoping to open in May, and The Dining Room will probably be presented near the end of May or sometime in early June; the date will be up to the renovators and the actors."

The Dining Room will be OTT's first community production. Containing several dovetailed scenes, connected only because all take place in a dining room, the play has numerous roles which could be played by a small or large number of actors. "I could use 7 or 17 actors in the cast," said Avery. "Each scene is fairly short, so this would be a wonderful vehicle for someone who would like to be in a play, but doesn't want to attend an overwhelming number of rehearsals or learn pages and pages of lines. I'm hoping that we'll have a large turnout for auditions. Since Our Town Theatre is a community theatre, it would be fun to have a diverse cast for the variety of characters."

Any questions should be directed to Avery at 301-334-4359.

Cantata To Be Presented By Community Choir

The Grantsville Community Choir, under the direction of Gloria M. Martin, will present the cantata "My Faith Still Holds" at St. John's United Church of Christ, Salisbury, Pa. The performance is scheduled for Sunday, April 19, 3 p.m.

The choir performs free for the public but does accept donations from those who attend. "The offerings taken are always given to needy families, and to date the choir has raised over $10,000," Martin noted.

Soloists for the cantata in Salisbury will be Sue Beachy, Sharon Kamp, Gerry Beachy, Carol Humberson, Seth Brownlee, and Dr. David Rawe. A quintet consisting of Dr. Rawe, Camilla Rawe, Sharon Kamp, B.J. Miller, and Todd Schneider will present several numbers.

Auditions For EYM Production Slated April 26

The Ecumenical Youth Ministry will conduct auditions for the Broadway musical Runaways, as the play will be one of many events the week of June 15-20 dedicated to the elimination of violence. The EYM and the Garrett County Department of Social Services are working together on this multi-dimensional project.

The auditions are open to all regional youth and everyone who auditions will be in the cast of the play. They will be held at St. Peter's Catholic Church on Sunday, April 26, from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Students are asked to prepare a one-minute song that shows off the best part of the voice. No audio tapes can be used for the audition, and auditioners should bring music for the pianist. Students should be prepared to stay for the entire audition period, if possible.

According to Lynn Broderick, "Runaways opened on Broadway in 1978 and received a Tony nomination for Best Musical that same year. The musical, written and composed by Elizabeth Swados, developed from "just an idea" in late 1976 to a fully staged musical in 1978. Miss Swados was primarily known in New York as a gifted composer, but when she approached Joseph Papp, producer of the Public Theatre and the highly renowned New York Shakespeare Festival, with the idea of developing a musical about runaway children, he recognized the social impact the play could have on a society whose family values were "changing." He provided a rehearsal space and significant financial backing for the project.

"For over a year, Swados interviewed young people, wrote and rewrote scenes for the play, composed music and lyrics, rehearsed 28 young performers, only three of whom were professional actors, choreographed dance sections, arranged the instrumental accompaniments, and finally distilled the play into 100 minutes of powerful theatre," Broderick said. In the program notes, Swados says, "Their journey has been incredible, and I'll vow that there's not a kid in that group who is not better, healthier, and more secure from this experience."

"The play is composed of 20 monologues and 14 songs woven together in a theatrical piece that is sometimes sad, sometimes angry, always intensely passionate, always fiercely optimistic," Broderick said. "From the driving reggae beat of the opening song, to the final ballad, the music reinforces the comic as well as tragic responses to life situations that cause people to run away."

Broderick became acquainted with the musical in 1981 when she was educational director for the Columbia School of Theatrical Arts in Columbia. "I had a large, ambitious musical theatre class who wanted to do 'something challenging'," she said. "We looked at Runaways and agreed it would push the limits of where the kids had been theatrically. Little did I anticipate the shocking connections the play had to some of the young performers' lives. We took one rehearsal period to tell the stories of when we had run away from home. While most of the stories were very funny, we realized we had all done it at least once, and that at the time of the experience, running away was most often an 'extreme solution' to something happening at home."

Broderick said that the EYM always welcomes new students to its ministry, regardless of church affiliation. Youth who are interested in being part of the ministry should call Lynn Broderick at 301-334-6300 to discuss ways in which their talents, abilities, and interests can be woven into upcoming program offerings.

GCSO Investigating Attempted Burglary On Lake Shore Dr.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office is investigating a burglary that may have involved a planned return visit by the perpetrator(s) to the victim's home. The burglary occurred in the 100 block of Shoreline Drive in the Thousand Acres area of Deep Creek Lake, near Swanton.

When the homeowner arrived on April 3, he found the front door to the residence unlocked and the deadbolt locked. Inside he found a number of items from throughout the house stacked up on and in front of the living room couch. Some of the items had been placed inside a large sheet and some others had been placed in a quilt as if they had been packaged up to be carried out of the house.

In checking further the homeowner found that a Macintosh SE computer with printer, valued at $800, a Sony cordless phone with an answering machine, valued at $100, and two large metal trash cans, worth $25 each, had already been stolen from the residence.

In other sheriff's news, an 18-speed bicycle was stolen from a back porch of a home on N Street in Mtn. Lake Park on Sunday afternoon. Valued at $129, the bicycle is a purple, 24-inch mountain bike, with a straight handle bar and a water bottle assembly attached to the bike. The owner reported that there are visible scratches on the handlebar that may serve as distinguishing characteristics.

The killing of a Brahman bull near Swanton is under investigation, and the Maryland Farm Bureau is offering a $500 reward for information that leads to the conviction of the perpetrator(s).

The bull's owner found the animal shot in the head with a small-caliber bullet on February 8 in its barnyard located off the 600 block of Pine Hill Road. The sheriff's report noted that the barnyard was in an isolated wooded area a long distance from any connecting roads or trails. It was also indicated that the owner that had lost several domestic turkeys to gunfire from unknown persons over last fall and winter, and that a goat had been wounded by a .22 caliber bullet but had recovered.

Persons with any information about these incidents are urged to call the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911 or Garrett County Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975. The reward in the case of the bull killing will be awarded by

Deem Wanted By Garrett, Preston Sheriff's Offices

The Garrett and Preston County sheriff's offices are seeking information which will lead to the capture of Brian Eugene Deem, shown above. Deem is wanted by the GCSO for child abuse and second-degree assault, charges which stem from a January incident at his Crellin residence. An additional charge of domestic battery has been filed against Deem in Preston County.

According to detectives with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Deem has been on the run since the initiation of the criminal investigation and is believed to be on foot camping in wooded areas in Preston County around Terra Alta and surrounding communities. Specific areas where Deem has been seen in the past week were Salt Lick Road, Lantz Ridge, Cool Springs, and Rag Tavern Road. At Rag Tavern Road, Deem was seen using a walking stick.

Deem is 30 years of age, 5'9", 160 to 180 pounds, with brownish blonde shoulder length hair, blue eyes, and wears glasses. He has been diagnosed as a paranoid schizophrenic and should be considered dangerous, but is not believed to be armed.

Citizens who see Brian Deem should not approach him. Anyone who sees him or has any information on his whereabouts is asked to call the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911, Garrett County Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975, or the Preston County Sheriff's Office at 304-329-1611.

It Sickens Us...

It's exciting that, after years of hard work by Oakland Mayor Asa McCain, the town council, and a number of volunteers with Save Oakland Station, papers were finally signed yesterday turning over ownership of the historic Oakland B&O Railroad Station to the town. However, the station's price tag is $150,000, and even though the town now holds the deed, only about $27,000 has been raised to meet the price.

It's also ironic, and exasperating, that on the very day Oakland assumed ownership of the B&O station, the Maryland Board of Public Works approved the purchase of another railroad station in neighboring Allegany County — the Old Depot in Frostburg. The price tag for this structure, and the failing business which it houses, is not $150,000, but $600,000. The monies will not be raised by a volunteer committee, but will be our tax money, simply allocated for the purpose.

The folks mentioned in the first paragraph above have worked for some 10 years on the Oakland Station project, while the purchase of the Old Depot has come about in less than a year and by little more than a wave of the hand of Speaker of the House and Cumberland's own Casper Taylor. It is a good friend of Taylor's who owns the Old Depot and needs to be bailed out.

The justification of this purchase has been that the Depot is an historic structure that must be preserved, and that it will be a drawing card for tourists. The fact that the Oakland Railroad Station is one of the best examples of Queen Anne architecture in the country, and the fact that it, too, will be a drawing card for tourists, and that it does not currently house a failing business, and it is not presently owned by a crony of Mr. Taylor has made no difference.

To add to the irony, Gov. Glendening is going to be in Cumberland tomorrow for the grand opening of the Rocky Gap Lodge and Golf Resort, another Taylor project paid for by millions of our tax dollars and one that will be in direct competition with private enterprises in Garrett County, particularly the privately owned Wisp Resort and its convention business. It's as if we in Garrett County must go it entirely on our own, while people in other areas seem to have so many things just handed to them at taxpayer expense.

When Casper Taylor was the delegate for Allegany County, we could understand his concentrating all his efforts toward getting what he could for his constituents. But as Speaker of the House, his constituents include every Maryland resident, and it seems his efforts and concern should be spread equally throughout the state. Frankly, we don't know of a thing the man has done for Garrett County. In fact, many of his efforts, including those just described, have been a detriment to our county.

Why are millions of dollars approved for projects in Allegany County when we can't get even a small percentage of that for projects in Garrett County which are at least as worthy? To Gov. Glendening's credit, he did, in his supplemental budget, recommend money to finance a new roof on the B&O Station, but so far there have been no government funds whatsoever allocated for acquisition of the property, which is the major obstacle right now.

It's all politics, and it sickens us.

To the Editor:

I write in response to your recent editorial regarding Mrs. Margaret Shoemaker. I personally found it appropriate that you, the editor, made such glowing remarks about her attempt at accuracy in communicating the news. Mrs. Shoe, as affectionately known, certainly had a sense of community. She was always interested in what was happening with the local fire department, rescue squad, or other community organizations, not just as noteworthy items, but she had a genuine concern for people. She was one who certainly liked to talk and as she did so, many interesting facets of our home town and the families who live here were shared. She knew much about the town's early history and often said how things have changed. She knew how families were related and how the children fit into the scheme of things. She noted that many families had to leave Friendsville to find jobs elsewhere, including her own children. However, Margaret knew most often where they had gone and what they were doing.

As you said in your editorial, she was consistent. She reported the news because others depended on hearing word of the local activities or who had been ill and was recuperating. It was her sense of responsibility.

Mrs. Shoe deeply cared about her family and proudly shared photos of her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. She was a very loving person; a wife, mother, and grandmother. And so it was natural that all the kids meant the world to her. I believe they were God's perfect gift from above to one who loved them as flowers in her garden. I know they will miss her dearly.

I wanted to acknowledge your kind remarks about Mrs. Shoe. I felt it very fitting to recognize such a talented and interesting contributor to our local newspaper. I'm sure if she would have read the commentary, or heard what I'm saying about her, she would have certainly smiled. I know many within the town will miss her inquiries, her phone calls, and the interesting and amusing conversations she had with so many. And we will miss her careful rendering of all the news of her beloved small town.

Respectfully,
Pat Bowser
Friendsville

To the Editor:

This letter is to inform the public of our organization's intentions and recent challenges and give you the opportunity to play a part in our future.

As you know, the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad has been serving the local citizens of Southern Garrett County for many years. In fact, this year we celebrate 25 years of providing emergency medical care and transport; 24 hours a day, 365 days a year! We take a lot of pride in our accomplishments. We're also tremendously proud of the community support we've received since 1973, the year when our service started.

As you also probably realize, running an organization such as this requires a lot of teamwork and isn't without its challenges. Our membership has been discussing these challenges, one of which is our facility. We've occupied our current structure since the late 1970s and it's served us well. However, our building is old and lacks efficiency and safety standards. It will also require extensive repairs soon. We've discussed renovations and relocating and decided to allow you to understand our circumstances and provide us with feedback and support.

We realize that our first obligation is to those we serve. Therefore, we need to ensure that we have adequate manpower for coverage, a well-maintained modern fleet of transport vehicles and top-notch medical supplies first and foremost! In order to house and maintain all of this equipment and provide a place for our members to meet and provide coverage, we also need a safe, adequately functional facility.

In closing, we would encourage you to submit your ideas or suggestions concerning renovating or relocating. Also if you'd like to help us financially or volunteer your time and become a member providing emergency medical care, this would be greatly appreciated as well. Please drop us a letter or stop by! We'd love to hear from you. Again, thanks so much for the tremendous support in the past and your continued support in the future.

Sincerely,
Jay Kestner, President

To the Editor:

On April 6, someone chose to enter my car and take my purse as I left it out of it to do a small task. I am sure to your disappointment you found no credit cards, checks, bank cards, or even so much as a penny. To my disappointment you took something more valuable to my heart than any money could be worth. That would be my children's pictures. Even my driver's license can be replaced, but my pictures can not. If anyone should find my purse or even just my pictures and license, please call me at 301-334-7941. No questions asked. I would truly be thankful. My last name would appear on the back of the photos. If you do not want to call, leave it with a cashier at a store and have them call. Please, it is important I get my pictures back.

Mrs. Perando

To the Editor:

Please feel free to place your liberal of liberal opinions in my front yard without fear of reprisal. If they are offensive (in my opinion), I will dispose of them with the other trash regularly disposed there by non-caring motorists.

Bob Groves

Dear Mr. Groves:

Liberal — "generous... tolerant of views differing from one's own...broad-minded...favoring reform or progress...favoring political reforms tending toward democracy and personal freedom for the individual..."

Wow! And I always thought I was rather conservative.

ANOTHER TAX DAY GONE

The talk of talk radio during the past few weeks has been taxes. It serves as a useful theme for the greedy and the complainers all year-round. For the first half of April even those who are just confused about taxes become interested.

So we've heard all the old junk once again. The income tax is unconstitutional. Income tax should be replaced by a sales tax. The current income tax system should be transformed into a flat tax, of which there are infinite varieties of flatter and allegedly fairer taxes.

For myself, I would be pretty near to satisfied if Congress, the IRS, and the tax courts would just let it be for a few years. I would like to have the experience of getting used to the last set of changes before they make the next set.

Of course, the last set of changes put into motion a whole series of changes. If there are any more amendments to the income tax code during the next half dozen years, the newest changes will have been mandated before all of the last set of changes have been implemented.

To all whose lives are simple enough or who are trusting enough not to have an accountant, a tax lawyer, or a tax preparer of some kind, you have my most envious congratulations. I have crossed the Rubicon, and doubt ever to live so simply or confidently again.

Even as a columnist on general subjects, I have failed in the realm of taxes. I have quoted before the reader who told me I knew just enough to get into trouble on any subject.

Several months ago a cousin approached me at a funeral—an event which can also engender conversations about taxation. I had erred, he informed me, in stating that farmers paid taxes on a quarterly basis. Farmers, he pointed out, never knew how much money they had made until the end of the year, and therefore paid their taxes once and at a time when no one else (or almost no one else, I can't remember) pays taxes.

Most of the farmers I know haven't paid too many taxes lately, but that is another subject.

News drifting over the Mason-Dixon Line from Pennsylvania has included sound-bites from Governor Ridge. He promised that the voters will be consulted twice before any so-called tax reform is put into place. The first time when the reform is proposed, and the second time when local taxes are raised to compensate for the loss of revenue due to the reform.

The issue in Pennsylvania, as it is in many places, is that real property is taxed without any necessary relationship to the property owner's ability to pay. I have experienced a taste of this myself. When I first came to my home, it was a broken-down farmhouse. I could afford to pay the property taxes. Over the course of time I have done some fixing up, and my property taxes have increased by 50%.

When that fixing up is sweat equity, performed by homeowners who could not afford to hire others to do the work, they are forced to pay taxes in money on work that was done largely without money. Even for those who are able to hire others to do the work, increased property taxes are a disincentive to improvement.

But the money has to come from someplace.

I hope we can all agree that people making $600,000 a year or more do not need additional tax breaks. Well, not all of us agree, because two-thirds of the benefit from the so-called "Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997" passed by Congress went to just those folks, the top one percent of our population.

Certain rules of thumb become obvious. Government is run for the benefit of the rich. Politicians never lower your taxes, no matter what they say. But if they could just make taking our money a little less complicated, I, for one, would be grateful.

To the Editor:

Sunny days and spring flowers have finally chased away my winter lethargy, prodding me to write about my dearest avocation — theatre. I have to ransack my mind for the necessary superlatives to express my delight in all that is happening within the next few months concerning theatre in Garrett County.

First of all Brava! to Nancy Learey, the Garrett Choral Society, and The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival for their fine work in the past and for their work in their imminent production 1776! To produce a musical in a space that is not an actual performance facility takes guts, creativity, and determination. The Garrett County Court House will make a splendid stage setting for Nancy's vibrant work. Best of luck to GLAF, which continues to provide us with such exemplary programming.

Next, Accolades! to Lynn Broderick and the EYM for their exceptional past productions and the inspirational work they will be doing for the community with Runaways. What an exciting production this will be for all of Garrett County. Theatre is truly a wonderful medium; it makes the audience think and feel. I'm looking forward to seeing some of my students in this presentation.

Kudos to The Republican for winning such a prestigious award for your active coverage of the arts in Garrett County. You really do a wonderful job, not only in informing the public about forthcoming programs, but by your generous photographic coverage, as well as appreciative editorials, articles, and critiques.

And of course, Applause! to the Garrett County Arts Council, without which none of us could be nearly as productive. The GCAC, with its vigorous board of directors guided by the dynamic team of Steve Schlosnagle and Helen Earles, really keeps the arts alive and kicking in our community.

Our Town Theatre also will be contributing to the busy schedule of performances within the next few months. In May, students from one of Southern Garrett High School's Theatre II classes will perform Keepsakes II, which comprises original monologues about historic Garrett County forebearers. Another class will produce The Jack Tales, a series of Appalachian folk tales for children. Both of these performances will be for the public.

On Sunday, April 19, Monday, April 20, and Tuesday, April 21, Our Town Theatre will hold auditions for its first community theatre production, The Dining Room. Please see the article in this week's Republican for details.

Through involvement in theatrical experiences, people grow, have fun, and form strong friendships. If you don't want to participate in an actual production, I hope you will go to see a least one of these Garrett County shows. In such a sparsely populated area, it is truly amazing to see the talent and diversity of theatrical enterprises that we offer.

Sincerely,
Jane B. Avery
Artistic Director
Our Town Theatre

To the Editor:

Judge Wright was wrong in her recent ruling in the Paula Jones Case. You needn't be a lawyer to know it. Common sense helps. Her convoluted ruling defies credulity, and is at best a tainted, temporary escape from reality for Mr. Clinton. This present phase of judicial insanity will ultimately pass; but another liberal judge has defiled the law for little more than a delay in the inevitable day of reckoning for the first felonious libertine ever to occupy the White House. And yes, we do have liberals

Student Arts Fair Coming To Garrett Co.

Colors, textures, rhythms, shapes, and movements of the arts will be showcased at the Garrett County Student Arts Fair next week. For the second year this countywide public event will take place at the McHenry campus of Garrett Community College.

The day-long celebration of the arts will be open Saturday, April 25, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Displays, activities, concerts, and plays will run concurrently all day in different areas of the school. The artists featured at the fair are from all grades and all schools of the public school system.

Coordination of the arts fair has required the combined efforts of students, teachers, and staff. The event originated to bring to the public samples of the creative energy and expressions of Garrett County youth, the coordinators explained.

HI HO, HI HO, TO THE ARTS FAIR WE WILL GO - Grumpy, Sleepy, Bashful, Sneezy, Happy, Doc, and Dopey will all be there along with Snow White and her prince as the third grade students from Grantsville Elementary School bring these fairy tale-size puppets to life at the Garrett County Student Arts Fair. The puppets were created in the art classroom of Carolyn Collen-Dubose to fascinate and entertain visitors to the arts fair. This colorful event boasts something for everyone to enjoy. GCC will host the fair on Saturday, April 25. See story.

The schedule of the day's events lists dance, a cappella singing, puppets, instrumental solos, and drama. Fabric, sculpture, woodcut, and painting will be demonstrated and displayed.

"This year we have expanded that part of the fair," said art teacher and fair coordinator Carolyn Collen-Dubose. "We want the young children to be able to enjoy many different hands-on experiences. The children who use the salt clay will be able to take home whatever they make," she added.

Last year's first student arts fair brought together over 1,000 people for the event. "It was a delightful day. And I don't even have any children in the school system. I just enjoyed the experience," said one resident who attended the fair.

The admission will be $3 for adults and $1 for children. Food will be available throughout the day.

Bounty Program

business will then be given to the economic development office.

The economic development office will then issue a voucher to certify a referral. This voucher will be good for two years from the referral date. If active negotiations are taking place, the voucher time limit will be extended.

Employees or immediate family members of any of the county entities involved cannot participate in the program, the spokesperson said. Business owners who start up a business within their own establishments, or simply expand their operations, will also be ineligible to participate. Finally, any business ruled by the Garrett County Board of Health to be environmentally detrimental to the county will also be ineligible.

After some minor alterations to the program plan, the commissioners formally approved the idea Tuesday. The county will be the funding entity in the program, with monies coming from any the sale of land included in the new business's establishment, or from the contingency fund. The commissioners said they could also start a small fund at the time of the referral, so that funds would be there at the end of the three-year time allotment for sustained jobs.

tal and nursing homes."

Ms. Butscher continued, "We dedicate ourselves to providing the very best end of life care with the same love and compassion you received when you entered this world. You deserve the best and with the help and support of American Trust Bank we will continue to provide that care."

"We are anticipating a truly successful event again this year," said Gary Yoder, member of the organizing committee. "As in the past, we will continue to have an assortment of outstanding prizes. Upon concluding the round of golf participants will enjoy a cookout at the club."

To ensure speed of play, the organizing committee has decided to limit the number of teams to 36. Interested participants are urged to enter their teams as soon as possible to ensure a place in the tournament.

Registration forms for the tournament are now being accepted by American Trust Bank. The event has been planned to include the golf tournament, contests, prizes, and dinner. Businesses and/or individuals can participate by entering teams, sponsoring teams, or by simply contributing a donation. For more information, persons may call American Trust Bank at 301-334-5451 or the golf professional, Wheeler Stewart, Oakland Golf Club, at 301-334-3883.

AMERICAN TRUST GIVES TO GLAF — The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) received a generous boost this week from the American Trust Bank in the form of a $1,000 donation. The funds will be used to present "Velvet Sounds," a program of the University of Maryland Symphonic Wind Ensemble, slated for April 26 at 3 p.m. at Southern High School. Shown left to right are Shari Delaney, vice president and regional manager of American Trust; Marcene Huebner, GLAF chairperson; and Fred Stempla, GLAF's executive director.

Baker was taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment. Police charged him with negligent driving.

Strikes Guardrail

A man was injured in a one-vehicle accident Monday at 9:50 a.m., police said. Brian S. Friend, 22, Potomac, was traveling west on I-68 at the time of the mishap. He reportedly passed a truck tractor, lost control of his vehicle, and struck a bridge and a guardrail.

He was taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment. No charges were filed. Friendsville VFD also responded to the scene.

EMS Sponsoring Child Passenger Safety Program

Almost everyone in the Emergency Medical System (EMS) will agree that the most difficult emergency to handle are those in which a child is injured, so EMS companies across the nation are taking a pro-active stance against injuries to children by supporting and sponsoring child passenger safety programs.

The Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems is asking fire and rescue personnel in Garrett and Allegany counties to join the effort to reduce injuries and deaths to children by participating in a national Buckle Up Kids training program.

"As a former EMT, I know how injuries and death to a child can effect the provider," said Diane Lee, Garrett County highway safety coordinator for the MIEMSS local office. "Any death is traumatic, but the death of a child is the worst.

"The Buckle Up Kids: Child Passenger Trauma Prevention is a training program which will allow participants to gain life-saving knowledge to pass along to the community, while receiving continuing education credits," Lee said.

The class will include information on mechanisms of motor vehicle crashes, choosing the correct seat for a child's size and age, hands-on training, and practice installing many different car seats. Class members will participate in an actual car seat check.

The class will be held at Cresaptown fire hall on May 2 and 3, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Persons may register for the class by calling the Region I EMS Office at 301-895-5934 or 301-746-8636 by April 27. MIEMSS will cover the cost of the class. To receive continuing education credits, a participant must attend both days of the class. BLS will receive 16 hours of "T" credits and ALS will receive 16 hours of "B" credits, according to Lee.

Friendsville VFD Acquires New Extrication Gear

The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department recently added a power extrication tool to its equipment, making it easier for members to help victims of certain vehicle crashes.

This addition completes a Region I EMS Advisory Council five-year goal of having power extrication equipment available to all the fire departments whose first-response areas cover Interstate 68. The entire stretch of the road, which passes through Allegany and Garrett counties, about 74 miles, is now covered by companies with this equipment.

The goal was reached with the help of a series of 50% matching grants from the Maryland State Highway Administration through their State Department of Transportation EMS Projects. SHA provided half of the funds for the equipment, with the receiving fire department paying for the other half. Also involved in the process were the Region I EMS Advisory Council, The Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems state and regional offices, and both Allegany and Garrett county governments.

The SHA grants have been instrumental over the years in meeting local rescue and medical equipment needs.

National Week To Vaccinate Infants Noted

National Infant Immunization Week is April 19-25. The Garrett County Health Department has issued statements reminding parents to provide vaccinations to protect the very young against dangerous diseases.

Babies should have shots very early in life in order to receive the needed immunizations, a heath department spokeswoman said. "They need shots 5 or 6 times by age 2," she stated.

Many children are lacking the necessary protection of immunizations. "One of four of America's children is not fully protected against childhood diseases," she added.

To verify the status of a child's vaccinations, parents are encouraged to contact the family physician or the health department at 301-334-8111 or 301-895-3111.

MY GIANT

Rated PG - Running time: 1:43

For a film that is intended to be a feel-good story, My Giant is written a little too cynically for its own good. Penned by Billy Crystal and Brian Seltzer, this script fails to illicit as much sympathy for Crystal's character as it should. But it is funny, especially the first half, and contains some truly amazing images showing the diminutive Crystal alongside the 7'7" Rumanian-born Gheorghe Muresan, making his acting debut after distinguishing himself as one of the top centers in the NBA.

Crystal plays Sammy Kanin, a New York talent agent who has traveled to rural Rumania for a film shoot. His wife Serena (Kathleen Quinlan), tired of coming in second to Sammy's movie business, has recently left him, taking their son Nick (Zane Carney) with her. When he wrecks his rental car, he is saved by a huge Rumanian man, Max (Muresan), who he then decides is perfect for this movie. But Max, having lived for years in a Catholic monastery, doesn't even know what a movie is.

Max is at first unwilling, but when Sammy convinces him that they can go to America to find his long-lost girlfriend who emigrated over 20 years ago, Max agrees. After a rocky but successful day at the shoot, the two take their long voyage to the states, with Sammy making calls to get Max in the movies, and Max looking forward to seeing his childhood sweetheart.

The relationship between Sammy and his family in this movie is almost identical to that of Jim Carrey's Fletcher Reede character in Liar Liar (1997). He is loved by his neglected son, though constantly disappointing him, and left by his wife for the same reason. But while Fletcher's lying was overblown and the basis for broad comedy, Sammy's lying is more of a depressing side issue. Supposedly trying to satisfy everyone's needs, he deceives everybody in the movie, including his son, his wife, and his Giant. And when we expect him to finally own up to all his shenanigans, he fakes us out, too.

There is also an unsettling issue involving Muresan's character. While Max is sensitive about his size, he is booked at such humiliating events as studio wrestling and dwarf-throwing. Sammy tries (but not too hard) to protect him from such things, spouting about respecting Max for who he is. But Muresan himself was obviously chosen for this movie for the same reasons, and forced to endure the very same type of exploitation. The script gives lip service to the "respect yourself" idea, but the end product contradicts this notion.

My Giant goes from being a silly farce to a lesson in lying your way out of a jam, with some truly sappy tear-jerking thrown in. Crystal is a good actor and a funny comedian, but if he wants to be a giant in the screenwriting trade, he still has some growing to do. ★★★

Rated: R - Running Time: 1:30

In response to the marginal success of Species (1995), MGM has thrown a bunch of money at the sequel, hoping to match the popularity of the Alien series, after which this gore-fest is patterned. But even though the first Species had a cheaper price tag and some major holes in its fabric, it had a modicum of common sense about it that, in the sequel, is blown away like so much raspberry jam exploding out of someone's stomach.

We start out at the research facility where Dr. Laura Baker (Marg Helgenberger) has grown another version of the alien/human creature like Sil (Natasha Henstridge) from the first movie. This one is called Eve. Why Dr. Baker would do this after repeatedly being almost killed by the vicious monster is beyond me. But this time, she assures us, Eve (Henstridge again) is being monitored more closely. She is equipped with a biological collar that fries her brain if she escapes, and her instict to mate (which was the driving passion of Sil) is curbed by the fact that there are no men on the premises. All scientists, technicians, and guards are female. So it's just like one big sorority party.

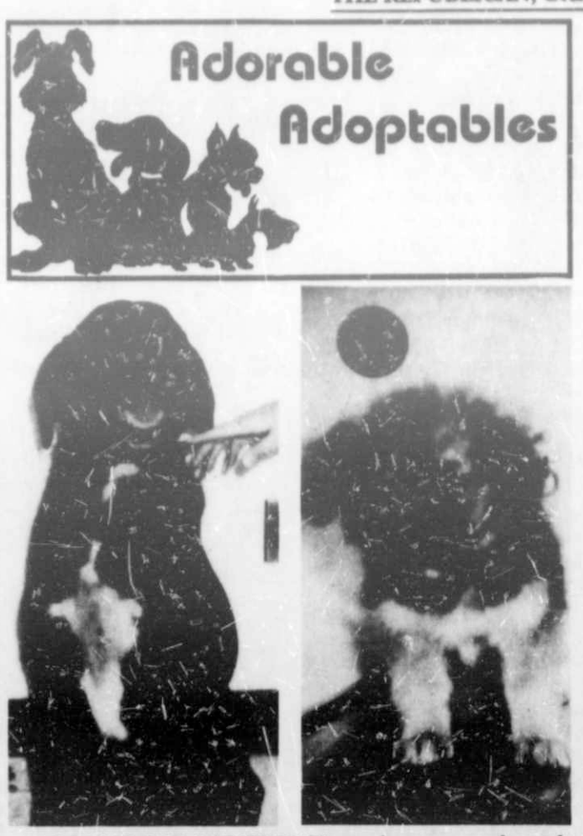
Meanwhile, however, the first manned mission to Mars has gone awry. During a seven-minute silence in their radio transmissions, the three members of the crew (Justin Lazard as Patrick Ross, Miriam Cyr as Dr. Ann Sampers, and Mykelti Williamson as Dennis Gamble) have been infected with Martian DNA by some goop that emerged from one of their soil samples after thawing onboard the ship. So now, although Eve is well-guarded, there are three other possible beasties looking to reproduce, and they happen to be nestled inside the bodies of the three most famous, attractive, and hot-to-trot astronauts on the planet. As Homer would say, "D--ohh!"

Though Matthew F. Leonetti's cinematography is beautiful, especially that depicting the Martian landing, director Peter Medak has obviously turned up the gore and writer Chris Brancato has turned down the characterization. Helgenberger has had a makeover since the last movie, and I think the character of Dr. Baker was washed down the sink in the process of the blonde rinse. Where she had been a semi-credible scientist, she's now spouting eminently clever lines like, "If he's reproducing, then there's a chance of offspring." Henstridge's alien is supposed to be deeper and more sensitive, but as in the first movie, she's terrible at anything other than looking good. And also returning is Michael Madsen as Press Lenox, the hired assassin whose character is unchanged, understandably irritated that he is again being asked to hunt down these creatures that almost killed him before. Why, he wonders--as do we--do they keep making MORE?

Brancato's astronauts are two-dimensional, especially Gamble, who should be a respected black scientist (you know, like an astronaut?) but whose role is written like a homeboy from the projects. I would think Williamson would have been offended at this script. When the other two are home making love to their spouses, he's talking about "gettin' some booty."

An appearance by James Cromwell as Ross's domineering father tries to make up for the loss of real actors like Ben Kingsley and Forest Whitaker from Species, but overall, Species II is much gorier and less credible than its substandard parent. The effects are there, though, and that's what sells those tickees. ★★½

Adorable Adoptables



LOOKING FOR A FRIEND? These dogs are each ready to be a loving family's friend and are now available for adoption at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. The cutie at left is a mixed black lab-hound. He's already neutered and only needs a rabies shot (just $6) to get out of jail. The furrball at right is a male sheltie-terrier mix. He's just 9 weeks old and has a sister who is looking for a lap to claim, too. For cat lovers, there are at least two 8-week-old domestic short hair tabbies, both female, who are available for adoption. To give any of these animals a home, persons should call the shelter as soon as possible at 301-334-3553.

MAJOR LEAGUE: BACK TO THE MINORS

Rated: PG-13 - Running Time: Unavailable

They just can't stop doing it. Those Hollywood people just have to make sequels, no matter how ill-advised the project may be. Major League: Back To The Minors is well named, because everything about it is minor. Minor laughs, minor plot, minor connection to the first two movies, minor participation from the original cast. Apart from Corbin Bernsen, Bob Uecker, and a few other (minor) characters, there's little to convince one that this movie has anything to do with either of its much more amusing predecessors, Major League (1989) or Major League II (1994).

The plot of this no-hitter centers around Gus Cantrell (Scott Bakula), a washed-up pitcher who is asked to coach a minor league farm team owned by his old acquaintance, Roger Dorn (Bernsen). In the same story that we have seen in every baseball comedy since The Bad News Bears, Gus takes this non-descript Triple-A team called the Buzz, and transforms them from a bunch of bungling subhumans into a winning machine, eventually challenging the Minnesota Twins, the big-league team also owned by Dorn and coached by arrogant S.O.B. Leonard Huff (Ted McGinley).

This movie, written and directed by John Warren, suffers from a split personality. It doesn't seem to know whether it's a comedy or a serious sports story. Though all the players on the Buzz are strange for one reason or another, and they all engage in their own brands of ridiculous behavior, the coach (Gus) is written and played totally straight, as is his relationship with them. Not that they're funny, but they're supposed to be. The mutual animosity between the two coaches becomes quite bitter and nasty, and the tension we're supposed to feel during the final game, which was so well cultivated in the first two movies, is simply not present.

The only thing that makes this movie even slightly bearable as a comedy is Uecker, who is back in the booth doing his commentary alongside various stunned partners. He was one of the funny things in the other two films, and he's the only funny thing here. Not that his presence makes any sense. In the first two films, which were about the Cleveland Indians, he played their regular announcer. The Indians are never even mentioned here, but there he is in the booth, announcing for the Buzz. Was he busted down to the minors?

After I realized that this film has little to do with ML and MLII, I tried to judge it solely on its own merits. But as a free-standing work of cinema, it doesn't have the star power or the screenwriting to distinguish itself. Bakula's acting is adequate, but the story is largely misguided and uneventful. It's simply boring.

Major League: Back To The Minors lacks the humor and energy of its two namesakes, and it lacks the heart of, say, Bull Durham or A League Of Their Own. Warren, Bernsen, and the producers are just attempting to follow the money. Anyone paying to see this film because they liked the first two Major League movies is in for a big disappointment. Come to think of it, maybe there is a better title for this movie: Major Greed. ★½

Martin Announces Candidacy For County Sheriff

David Junior Martin, a resident of Crellin, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the office of Sheriff of Garrett County.

Martin was born and raised in Crellin. A graduate of Southern High School, he has successfully operated Martin Auto Body for the past 15 years. He has served as Sunday School superintendent and teacher at Crellin United Methodist Church, where he has attended services for the past 40 years.

Martin recently celebrated his 25th wedding anniversary with his wife Ann. The couple has raised two children, Jeff and Tammy.

"Garrett County has been a wonderful place to live, raise a family and run a business," said Martin. "I'd like to serve as sheriff because I have some ideas I believe will make our community safer and stronger."

At the heart of the Martin For Sheriff campaign is a plan to limit juvenile crime, according to the candidate. "It breaks my heart when I see a youngster go bad because, in many cases, this sad situation could have been helped by some of the things I'd like to encourage as sheriff," noted Martin. "Garrett County has been a relatively safe place to live because we've had a lot of unselfish people give time and money to programs for young people. But even though we have some great programs in place we need to do more, and we need to have our sheriff involved in these programs."

SALUTING MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT - In conjunction with other cities and towns across the state, the mayor and town council members of Oakland officially recognize April 20-24 as Municipal Government Week. There will be an open house at Oakland City Hall to mark the celebration, and residents are invited to stop in for a tour of the building. The town officials also voted to fly the Municipal Government Works flag, shown in the photo held by Oakland Police Chief John Sines, left, and Mayor Asa M. McCain Jr. Municipal Government Week provides an opportunity for citizens to learn more about government in their towns.

Martin, who has served as a football and baseball coach for young people over the past 12 years, says it's time to P.L.A.Y., or "Participate in the Lives of America's Youth," and he would like to establish a "Police Athletic League."

"I've been involved in sports leagues and church groups," he stated, "but there are several other positive ways to reach out to young people to keep them on the right track. Garrett County has strong 4-H and FFA programs, Boy and Girl Scout troops, and other school and church related activities that help teach our kids right and wrong, and channel their interests and energies in the right direction. I think if we added more personal involvement from our sheriff's department, me results would be even stronger," he said.

Stating that he and many Garrett countians have been saddened by the controversy that has surrounded the sheriff's office for the past several years, Martin said he would work remedy that perception by strengthening the sheriff office's internal administrative review process, "focusing on an accountability system that would include making the police operation and expenses more visible to the public."

Martin has proposed establishing a "Citizens Police Academy," which would allow residents an opportunity to learn more about the sheriff's office in an up close and personal way. He said that he believes the department needs to be increasingly more proactive in focusing attention on community problems such as domestic abuse, drunk driving and drug abuse.

Martin also indicated that one of his priorities is hiring a female deputy. "We're knocking on the door of the 21st century, and it's high time we have a woman on the force. There are several ways that would help the department, but we should always remember that police officers are role models. I think a female officer would be a tremendous role model for the young women of this community and would bring a great perspective to the way police work is done."

Finally, Martin said law enforcement is a team approach. "We can't have a deputy on every corner where trouble might happen. We need Garrett Countians to know they are an important part of law enforcement. Nine times out of ten, it's the individual citizen that sees something going on, picks up the phone and calls the sheriff's office. And more often than that, it's the individual citizen that makes the difference, whether it be through being a good parent or being a good role model for our young people," he said.

Martin concluded by saying that above all he wants to restore trust and respect to the sheriff's office. "A lot of things have happened over the past couple of years that have shaken the public trust in the department. We need to rebuild that trust. I don't come into this race with a chip on my shoulder. As far as the department goes, I'm an outsider, but I think that's an advantage because I can bring a fresh approach and a citizen's point of view to the department - something I think has been missing."

the Maryland Farm Bureau upon the conviction of the perpetrator(s), so information that could lead to the solving of that case should be directed to those phone numbers as well.

ACCIDENTS

Several accidents were investigated by the sheriff's office recently that resulted in injuries requiring treatment at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH).

On Friday at 10 p.m., a 1988 GMC pickup truck driven by a 17-year-old male attempting to make a left turn onto Weber Road from Oakland Drive drove into the path of a 1991 Toyota Tercel driven by Amy Michelle Fazenbaker, 21, Oakland. Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported Fazenbaker to GCMH, where she was treated and released. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene. The juvenile was charged with failure to yield right of way.

On Monday at 3 p.m. Duane Stein II, 19, Grantsville, was operating a 1990 Honda 300 4-wheeler on private property just east of Springs Road when his vehicle struck a rut and overturned. He was transported to GCMH by private auto, where he was treated and released.

On March 27, just after midnight, Todd Alan Thorpe, 29, McHenry, was operating a 1984 Honda ATC 3-wheeler on Dixon Road near Blooming Rose Road when he failed to negotiate a turn. His vehicle traveled over an embankment and struck a culvert. He was transported to the hospital by Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, where his status was unavailable.

DWI ARRESTS

Jeanne Riggins Hoff, 57, Oakland, and Jonathan Ray Williams, 38, Eglon, W.Va., were each arrested recently for driving while intoxicated.

in the Republican Party.

I've been waiting for a liberal Democrat to step forward and call a spade a spade, as Senator James Buckley (R-NY), a conservative, did in 1974, when he was the first member of his party to tell his "good friend," publicly, for the good of the country, he must resign. This was the man who had seconded Nixon's nomination for re-election, and supported his political agenda. Then I remembered: most liberals have a different kind of allegiance. Their ideology comes first, then the party, and what's best for the country, a distant third. I was one of the anointed myself for over 40 years. They know they are right, for only they are truly compassionate. It gives them the right to commit egregious wrongs...in order to save us all! After all, they are not just fighting opposing political views; they are fighting evil!...and must do whatever is necessary in order to prevail: lie, cheat, steal...what are the limits of such audacious arrogance? If your name is Clinton, there are none! He has already committed nearly all the sins in, and against, the Book. What does he have to lose at this stage? Nothing! Imperil your country, it was never worth fighting for anyhow...was it? His dalliances with the Red Chinese border on treason, and may even be proven such before his traveling snake-oil show is finally shut down.

It's not about sex! It's about committing perjury, subornation (asking others to lie) of perjury; obstruction of justice; Clinton's role in it all...and the long-term viability of our country after eight years of his trashing it...and its institutions. And this is the short list!

Ask yourself: would you personally have given Clinton a pass on groping, and exposing his genitals to anyone...then instructing a subordinate to "kiss it?" Judge Wright did. Her ridiculous ruling gives governors this right without it being deemed "sexual contact." Dear God! Where does one go for justice when "Slick Willie", is around?

And keep this in mind: Judge Wright, in order to find a summary judgment in this case, by law, had to assume that everything Paula claimed could have happened! And yet she ruled that Jones had no legal grounds on which to proceed to a trial of her peers!

Friendsville Man Pleads Guilty To Drug Possession

A drug search of a Friendsville home by the Maryland State Police resulted in a guilty plea from one of the residents on a charge of marijuana possession, and stetted charges against his two co-defendants in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings before Judge Ralph M. Burnett.

Jai Michael Mastro, 23, was arrested in November by state troopers executing a search and seizure warrant at his Malachi Way residence. A variety of rolling papers, smoking pipes, small weighing scales, and plastic baggies, many of these items tainted with marijuana residue, were found in the house, along with a ledger book and a large quantity of cash, and a plastic baggie of hallucinogenic mushrooms.

Mastro was handed a 30-day sentence, 25 days of which were suspended, fined $155, and placed on six months of supervised probation. Additional charges of possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute, possession of marijuana paraphernalia and possession of hallucinogenic mushrooms were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

Bridget Lynn Smith, 27, of the same address, and Kurt William Mueller, 24, Appleton, Wisc., were also arrested at the scene and charged with possession of marijuana and marijuana paraphernalia. The charges against each were stetted, with the condition that Smith perform 30 hours of community service. No conditions were specified in connection with Mueller's stet.

In other recent district court news, Jerry Edward Weimer, 20, Frostburg, pleaded guilty to damaging county property at two public schools in February. Weimer was arrested by state troopers investigating a late-night incident where a truck was driven across the grass in front of Accident Elementary School, destroying five small trees, and across the Northern High School softball field. Weimer reportedly was the truck's driver during part of the incident, and a passenger during another portion. The total amount of damage was estimated at $2,100.

After pleading guilty to a misdemeanor charge of malicious destruction of property, Weimer was handed a 60-day sentence, with all but four days suspended, fined $300, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 50 hours of community service. An additional charge of felony malicious destruction of property was not prosecuted.

Jason Dale DeShong, 19, Lonaconing, was sentenced after a previous conviction for fourth-degree burglary and misdemeanor theft. He was handed a one-year suspended sentence, fined $300, placed on two years of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 50 hours of community service. DeShong had been arrested by state troopers in connection with an April 1997 burglary of a cabin on Savage River Road. He was also ordered to pay the owner of the cabin $1,649 in restitution for damages.

William Thomas Sachs, 37, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded guilty to a charge of second-degree assault stemming from his February arrest by deputies from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office after his wife reported that he beat her with a vacuum cleaner during a domestic altercation, causing injuries. Sachs was handed a 60-day jail sentence, receiving credit for 52 days already served.

SWORN INTO OFFICE - The new town officials in Oakland were sworn into office recently by Mayor Asa M.McCain Jr., far right. Those taking their positions were, left to right, council members Peggy Jamison, Harold "Moose" Cannon, and Mary Lou Stemple; and treasurer Blair Glass.

Dennis Ray Swartzentruber, 46, Oakland, pleaded guilty to felony malicious destruction of property and was handed a 60-day jail term with a restitution payment still to be determined. The charge stemmed from his January arrest by sheriff's deputies for allegedly breaking into a Mtn. Lake Park home and stealing a bottle of liquor. Additional charges of fourth-degree burglary, misdemeanor theft, and driving while intoxicated were not prosecuted.

DeWayne Anthony Holliday, 18, Grantsville, was sentenced after a previous conviction for fourth-degree burglary and felony theft. He was handed a 15-month sentence with all but three months suspended, placed on two years of supervised probation, and ordered to pay $2,250 in restitution to the victim, whose Sky Valley residence in Swanton was the target of the burglary. Holliday was arrested by state troopers in October.

Todd Allen Whitacre, 29, Kitzmiller, pleaded guilty to disobeying a police officer, a charge that stemmed from his October arrest by sheriff's deputies when he refused to comply with repeated requests to turn down the music at a late night party at his home. He was handed a 30-day sentence with all but 10 days suspended and placed on six months of unsupervised probation.

John Thomas Gordon, 22, and Ricky Kent, 35, both of Mtn. Lake Park, were each convicted of second-degree assault stemming from their February arrest by sheriff's deputies for allegedly entering an acquaintance's Mtn. Lake Park home uninvited and beating him during an altercation. Each defendant was handed a 60-day sentence with all but 10 days suspended, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to jointly pay restitution to Garrett County Memorial Hospital of $321.49.

A week after that incident Gordon allegedly assaulted Kent at the Mtn. Lake Park residence they share. Sheriff's deputies arrested Gordon a second time and charged him with second degree assault. During his trial last week Gordon admitted to having a physical altercation with Kent, claiming he acted in self-defense, and was found not guilty.

A charge of violating an ex parte order faced by Michael Eugene Evans, 40, Oakland, was placed onto the stet docket. Evans had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in January after allegedly yelling at the Mtn. Lake Park residence of Lois Evans and looking into her windows at 2:00 in the morning.

A charge of misdemeanor theft against Thomas Edward Gank, 18, Oakland, was stetted. Gank was arrested by sheriff's deputies in February after he reportedly ate a meal at the Oakland Denny's and left without paying.

David Allen Troshak, 40, Mtn. Lake Park, was found not guilty of a harassment charge that stemmed from his January arrest by sheriff's deputies after Patricia Glotfelty reported that he had come to her place of work and threatened her, then coerced her into driving him to his home.

Dean Francis Norton, 35, and Freda May Curtis, 35, both of Mtn. Lake Park, were each found not guilty of possession of marijuana and paraphernalia stemming from their July arrest by sheriff's deputies following a traffic stop in McHenry. A violation of probation charge against was dismissed as well.

David Claude Ridings, 32, Oakland, was found not guilty of charges of fourth-degree burglary and malicious destruction of property after his wife refused to testify against him. The charges stemmed from Ridings's February arrest by sheriff's deputies after an altercation with his wife that reportedly included threats with a knife.

Jason Michael Bloom, 27, Cumberland, was found not guilty of three counts of second-degree assault and one count of felony malicious destruction of property stemming from his January arrest by state troopers after a fight in the Wisp parking lot. An additional charge of first-degree assault was not prosecuted.

Brandon Shane Baumgardner, 19, Friendsville, was not prosecuted on charges of possession of marijuana and marijuana paraphernalia after his November arrest by state troopers who had reportedly found him sleeping at the wheel of his car at 5 a.m. on Route 219 near Mosser Road. Baumgardner was found in violation of an earlier felony theft conviction, however, and his original sentence was reimposed, with all but three months suspended.

Clarence Robert Guthrie Sr., 60, Grantsville, was not prosecuted on charges of second-degree assault, reckless endangerment, and use of a deadly weapon with the intent to cause injury, and an additional charge of first-degree assault was dismissed. He had been arrested in January by state troopers after his son, Clarence Jr., alleged that he hit him with a hammer during the course of an argument.

Von William Johnson, 52, Oakland, was not prosecuted on charges of disobeying a police officer and endangering himself via the consumption of alcohol. The charges stemmed from his December arrest by the Oakland City Police.

Brett R. Glotfelty, 25, Oakland, was found in violation of probation of an earlier assault conviction. His probation was continued and modified to run to August 1st, by which time he is required to have completed a class in domestic violence prevention.

Todd Riley, 23, Hopewell, Va., was found in violation of probation of a felony auto theft conviction. His probation was modified and sanctions were withheld, and he is ordered to complete restitution payments to the car's owner by the end of the month.

A November conviction of Michael Lee Paugh, 26, Oakland, on charges of felony theft, reckless endangerment, and driving while intoxicated was revised to suspend the balance and credit time served.

DWI & DUI Hearings

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) cases were heard recently.

Gary L. Wiles, 46, Smithfield, Pa., pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $300, handed a 90-day sentence with all but 14 days suspended, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

David Arthur Schaumloeffel, 29, Eglon, W.Va., was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) for DWI and fined $100, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

John Jason Rinker, 24, Mtn. Lake Park, was handed a PBJ for DUI, fined $300 and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Jesse Vaughn McRobie, 26, Massillon, Ohio, was ordered to complete 100 hours of community service as a condition of a stet ruling stemming from a DWI charge.

William D. Church, 54, Burton, W.Va., was found in violation of DWI probation, which was revoked. His original incarceration time was reimposed, with all but 14 days suspended.

Jimmie Martin Casteel, 40, Friendsville, was found in violation of DWI probation, with probation continued and his sentence reimposed with all but 10 days suspended.

A DWI charge faced by Sharon Denise Lowe, 26, Friendsville, was dismissed.

Violation of DWI probation charges were dismissed for both Brian Kirk Lantz, 26, Aurora, W.Va., and Timothy Wayne Arnold, 44, Mtn. Lake Park.

Unbeaten SHS Girls Top Keyser, Allegany; Southern Boys Second

The track and field teams of Southern High School opened their home season Tuesday when a meet originally scheduled to be hosted by Allegany had to be moved to Southern because of the temporary closure of Greenway Stadium in Cumberland. Also competing in the meet was Keyser.

The Southern girls, coached by Bill Freyman, remained unbeaten in three outings by finishing with 99 points, followed by Keyser with 59 and Allegany with 17. The Southern boys, under Coach Loren Bowser, finished in second place by just one point, as Keyser finished with 70 points, the Rams recorded 69, and Allegany placed third with 35.

Top winners of the day for the Southern girls were Amy Snyder with four firsts, Beth Sauder with three, and Andi Bender and Katelyne McBee with two each.

Snyder, a junior, won the 400 dash, the 800 run, the 300 hurdles, and was a member of the winning 1,600 relay team, while Sauder captured first in the 1,600 run and was on the winning 3,200 and 1,600 relay teams.

Andi Bender took first in the high jump and triple jump, and McBee was a member of the 1,600 and 3,200 relay teams.

Toni Sullivan was the winner of the long jump for the Rams, Jody Bowser won the 100 hurdles, and Erin Hoalcraft, Liz Paesani, and Angie Sincell were also members of the winning relay teams.

Jada Davis had three first places for Keyser.

The Southern boys were paced by Eric Rexrode with three first places, Sean Conroy with two, and Jonathan Price with one.

Rexrode won the 800 and 1,600 runs and was a member of the winning 3,200 relay team, while Conroy won the 3,200 run and was also on the 3,200 relay team. Price captured first in the 110 hurdles.

Southern will compete again today at Beall, with that meet slated to get underway at 6 p.m. They will host a meet next Tuesday, beginning at 4 p.m., with teams to be announced. Next Thursday, the Rams will host Hampshire, Keyser, and Preston in another 4 p.m. competition.

Husky Netters Swept By Alco

The girls' tennis team of Northern High School faced Allegany on Tuesday in Grantsville and fell to the undefeated Campers not once, but twice, in the same day, as the two teams had to conclude an earlier match that was suspended by darkness.

The Huskies were edged 4-3 by the 6-0 Campers in the conclusion of the suspended match when the doubles team of Anne Failing and Natalie Hodges edged Northern's Kathy Arnold and Kristen Wright, 9-7.

The Northern girls were also defeated by a 5-2 spread in the full match on Tuesday, with Abby Bruch getting the only singles win for the Huskies. The doubles team of Katie Sisler and Amber Polk was also victorious.

Winning in singles for the Campers were Failing, Hodges, Erin Hohing, and Brooke Friedenberg. Failing and Hodges again teamed up for a doubles win.

Meanwhile, in the boys' match the undefeated Allegany boys (6-0) whipped the Northern boys, 6-1. Only the doubles team of Joe Weimer and David Butler was victorious for the Huskies.

Easily sweeping the singles competition were Allegany's John Failing, Fedrico Pino, Chinmay Hegde, Scott Crawford, and Kevin Drew.

The Huskies are slated to compete again this afternoon at home against Keyser, travel to Southern on Friday, and take on Bishop Walsh in Cumberland next Monday.

Rams Fall To 3-0, But Rebound For Four Wins

A 3-2 defeat by host Allegany last Friday dropped the Southern High School Rams, who are the defending WMIL and Area baseball champions, to 0-3 on the season; however, the Rams are now playing truer to their usual form and have won four straight games since Friday, including a huge 2-1 victory over Fort Hill, the area's number-one ranked squad.

Coach Jim Bosley's team warmed up for Fort Hill by sweeping their own Easter tournament on Saturday in topping Meyersdale, 16-13, and Petersburg, 10-5. After edging visiting Fort Hill on Monday, they nipped host Westmar last night, 6-5. The Rams' overall mark of 4-3 includes a WMIL standing of 2-1.

The Rams took a brief 1-0 lead in Friday's game with Allegany when, after a rain delay, Derek Everd drew a walk, Jason Weaver followed with a single, and Chad Warnick singled to plate Everd.

The Campers responded in the bottom of the first with a pair of runs, as Adam Schmitt led off with a single, moved to second on a sacrifice by Ron Carr, and scored when Mike Thomas reached on an infield error. Singles by Sam Long and Steve Eirich sent Thomas home to make it 2-1.

The Rams knotted the score with a single run in the top of the second frame, scored when Mike Bittinger reached on an error and later scored on another error.

The score remained 2-2 until the bottom of the fifth when the Campers got a lead-off walk by Nick Yoder, who stole second, went to third on a second-base steal attempt, and scored the winning run on a ground-out by Schmitt.

HR - Jordan Uphold (Southern).

Danny Lindner earned the win on the mound, as he allowed only five Ram hits and walked just one in going the distance. Taking the loss was Warnick, who scattered seven singles, fanned two batters, and also walked just one.

The only multiple-hit efforts were by Warnick with two singles and Allegany's Long, also with two singles. The win was the third in a row for the Campers, who have a 5-2 overall mark and a 4-1 record in the WMIL.

In the Rams' victory over Meyersdale in Saturday's Easter tourney, Josh Bosley led Southern's 16-hit attack with a triple, a double, and two singles, with two RBI while Jason Weaver sent home four runs with a triple and a single, Everd added a triple and two singles, Chris Bittinger contributed two singles and two RBI, and Jordan Uphold rapped a home run.

Bosley, who pitched the first six innings, was awarded the win after getting relief from Mike Bittinger. Chad Huffman led Meyersdale's 17-hit effort with a double and two singles, while Jeff Hobbs hit three singles and drove home four runs and Mike Paulman also finished with three singles.

Weaver was the top hitter for the Rams in the title game win over Petersburg, as he smacked a home run, a double, and a single to plate three runs. Uphold and Bosley each finished with two singles and one RBI.

Uphold pitched the first six innings for the Rams and was relieved by Mike Bittinger in the seventh. The pair allowed just five hits, including two doubles by Jonathan Hawk.

The loss was just the second in seven games for the Vikings, who defeated Meyersdale in the tourney behind a five-hitter by John Moyers and Jake Spicer, and a three-single performance by Jeff Feaster.

It was a two-out, two-run single by Mike Bittinger in the fourth inning of the Rams' game with Fort Hill on Monday that broke a scoreless tie and was enough for the Rams to hang on for the 2-1 win. Bittinger, who took the mound in the fourth inning, was also the winning pitcher.

Warnick pitched the first three innings for the Rams before yielding to Bittinger, who walked just one batter and struck out two over the next four innings. Tommy Welsh pitched well for the Sentinels, as he allowed just five hits, two of which were by Bittinger and two by Everd.

Setting up Bittinger's game-winning hit were Uphold, who led off the fourth with a single, and Bittinger's twin brother Chris, who reached on an error.

Fort Hill rallied for one run in the top of the fifth when Welsh hit a solo homer, but that would be the final run of the game.

Jimmy Barrett had two singles for the Sentinels, who dropped to 6-3.

Last night's match-up with Westmar in Lonaconing also required some late-game heroics, as the Rams trailed 5-3 going into the sixth inning. However, they put three runs on the board in that frame and kept the Wildcats scoreless the rest of the way.

Jason Weaver tripled to lead off Southern's sixth. Two runs scored later when a ball was dropped in the outfield.

Weaver also had three singles to go with his triple, while Derek Everd hit a triple and two singles and Mike Bittinger, who earned the win on the mound, had a pair of singles.

Josh Broadwater, who took the loss on the mound for the Wildcats (6-5), had two singles, as did David Tyler.

The Rams will have another busy week, as they are scheduled to entertain cross-county rival Northern Friday, host Hampshire on Saturday, play at Keyser on Monday, and host Allegany next Wednesday.

Huskies Win Hancock Tourney Before Topping Mountaineers

The varsity baseball team of Northern High School captured first place in the Hancock Easter Tournament Saturday by edging Williamsport, 8-7, in their opening game and then blanking Hancock, 3-0, in the title contest. The Huskies rode their momentum to Frostburg last night to record an 8-4 WMIL victory over Beall and elevate their record to 6-5.

Going into the final inning of the game against Williamsport it appeared that the Huskies might have to settle for a lesser finish in the Easter tourney, but with two outs, Coach Phil Carr's squad rallied for two runs to take an 8-7 lead and then held on defensively in the bottom half of the frame to secure the win.

The Huskies held leads of 2-0 and 4-2, were down 6-4 after five complete innings, tied the score at 6-6 in the sixth, and were behind 7-6 after six to set the stage for the seventh-inning rally.

Scott Sisler led off the Huskies' half of the seventh with a walk. After two strike-outs, Joey Wilhelm drew a walk, after which a wild pitch advanced Sisler and Wilhelm to third and second, respectively. Matt Settle followed with a single to score Sisler and tie the score.

It was a double-steal attempt by Wilhelm at third and Settle at first that resulted in the winning run. Settle took off for second on a pitch and Wilhelm went for home on the catcher's throw to second.

Sisler went the distance on the mound for Northern, from which he struck out seven, walked three, and allowed nine hits. Three Williamsport pitchers gave up a total of 11 hits.

Pacing the Huskies' offensive effort were Fritz with two doubles, Zach Rawe with three singles, including a two-run single in the sixth inning, Sisler with three singles, and Corey Sisler with a two-run single.

Williamsport was led by Scott Acre with a homer and two singles and Jeff Grable with a double and a single.

Fritz fired a two-hitter in the contest against Hancock, which was a pitchers' dual since Derek Hoffman and Doug Gaither allowed only three Husky hits.

In going the distance, Fritz faced only 25 batters (four over the minimum for seven innings), struck out nine, walked two, and allowed just two singles.

The Huskies scored all three runs of the game in the fifth inning, as Dennis Martinez led off the inning with a single, which was Northern's first hit of the game. Fritz and Jeremy Reed then drew walks to load the bases, Rawe and Sisler also took four balls to force two runs home, and Chris Herman added the insurance run with an RBI single.

Williamsport defeated Hancock in the other game of the tournament.

Jeremy Reed fired a four-hitter yesterday through the first six innings and also rapped a run-producing double to lead the Huskies to their 8-4 win over Beall. The Huskies held an 8-1 lead going into the bottom of the seventh, when they halted a Mountaineer rally at three runs.

Scott Sisler, Denis Martinez, and Adam Bach each finished with two singles for the Huskies, Zach Rawe ripped a two-run single, and Chris Herman provided a double.

Beall's three-run seventh featured a run-producing double by Robert Neilson. Jeremiah Laupert finished with two singles and one RBI. The loss dropped the Mountaineers to 5-6.

The Huskies will play again Friday in Oakland against Southern. They will host Hancock on Saturday, entertain Flintstone next Monday, and host Beall on Tuesday before traveling to Westmar next Thursday.

AN ACE ON THE MOUND for Southern High School's girls' varsity softball team is Jennifer Teagarden, pictured above firing a pitch in yesterday's game against Preston County. The Knights managed to get just four hits off Teagarden, but they also drew 10 walks and went on to win the game, 8-7. Connecting with the ball and demonstrating excellent form in the photo below is Southern's Mika Myers. The Rams, coached by Dave Bosley, are 3-4 on the season and will attempt to even their record this Saturday when they host Westmar. Photos by John McEwen.

Southern Girls Defeat Savage, Lose To Beall And Preston

The Southern High girls' softball team played three games in three days this week and finished 1-2 in the process, as the Rams topped host Mount Savage Monday, 8-5, were nipped by Beall on Tuesday, 15-14, in Frostburg, and were edged by one run again yesterday, 8-7, by visiting Preston County. The results left Coach Dave Bosley's team with a 3-4 overall record.

Jennifer Teagarden earned the win on the mound for the Rams Monday against Mt. Savage, as she fired a four-hitter, and she aided her own cause at the plate by smacking a triple.

The Rams were up 4-0 with a run in the first and three in the third, and took an 8-2 advantage by scoring four runs in the fourth. The Indians rallied for three runs in the bottom of the seventh, but could get no closer.

Leading the Rams' six-hit effort was Shelly Winters, who tripled and singled. Kristina Hardesty plated three of Southern's runs with sacrifice flies.

Leading the Indians' hitting was the losing pitcher, Laura Booth, who hit a double and a single for two RBI, while Jenny Folk added a run-producing single. The loss was only the second in eight games for Mt. Savage.

The Rams had a 15-9 lead going into the bottom of the seventh inning against Beall on Tuesday, but that's when the Mountaineers recorded seven runs with seven singles to pick up only their second win in nine starts.

The seventh and winning run in the seventh inning for Beall was recorded by Sarah Bittner, who came home on a single by Nancy Williams.

Leading the Rams' 15-hit performance was Teagarden, who took the loss on the mound. She finished with a double and two singles, while Jennifer Sanders contributed three singles, Donnelle Dick and Carrie Filsinger each singled twice, and Kris Hardesty chipped in with a double.

Pacing Beall's offense, which produced 16 hits, was Krissy Jackson, who drove in four runs with a pair of triples. Heather Tharp had three singles and Williams had a double to go with her game-winning single. Shannon Hetz and Amber Ballases each hit two singles.

Abby Workman went the distance for the win on the mound.

Teagarden allowed only four hits by Preston County and struck out eight yesterday afternoon, but had some control problems and allowed 10 walks. Getting two of the Knights' hits was Rachel Henry, who had a double and a single.

Leading the Rams' eight-hit effort was Teagarden, who finished with two doubles and a single, while Kristina Hardesty stroked a pair of singles.

The score was tied at 7-7 after four innings, but Preston picked up one run in the fifth and held the Rams scoreless in their final three at-bats. Elisa Winston went the distance to earn the win for the Knights.

The Southern junior varsity team hammered the Preston jayvees, 18-5, to improve its season mark to 4-3.

Southern will play again Saturday at home against Westmar, beginning at noon.

Huskies Fall To Westmar In Softball, 16-5

The girls' softball team of Northern High School was hammered by host Westmar on Tuesday, 16-5, as the Wildcats out-hit the Huskies by a 21-5 margin.

Sara Preston hit a double and three singles to lead the Wildcats, while Mindy Fazenbaker and Ashley Kitzmiller each had a triple and two singles, winning pitcher Andrea Gattens aided her own cause with two doubles and a single, and Mandy Beeman contributed a double and two singles.

It was the fifth win for the Wildcats in eight starts and upped their Western Maryland Interscholastic League mark to 4-2.

The Huskies were on top 4-2 after three and one-half innings, but the Wildcats rallied for five runs in the bottom of the fourth and put seven on the board in the bottom of the sixth.

Gattens went the distance and allowed only five singles, with Brook Brenneman getting one of those singles and scoring a run for the Huskies.

Northern will try to get back into the win column today against visiting Allegany. The Huskies will host Salisbury on Monday, entertain Mt. Savage on Tuesday, and travel to Beall next Thursday.

Maravich Hurls Three-Hitter, Lakers Split Pair With Essex

Freshman right-hander Mike Maravich tossed a three-hitter for the Garrett Community College men's baseball team in a 10-0 opening game victory during a Tuesday doubleheader at Essex. The Lakers momentum faltered in the second game, however, which they dropped 8-2.

Maravich, a Pittsburgh, Pa., native, was on target throughout his complete-game win, shortened to five innings by the 10-run rule. The stocky 5'11, 207-pound pitcher had six strikeouts and three walks on the day. He was helped at the plate by Joe Cusato, a freshman outfielder, who drove in two runs and scored twice as he hammered out a triple and a single. Sophomore Jason Davis drove in three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly. GCC scored five runs in both the third and fifth innings, and for the game were able to take advantage of 11 walks and four errors by Essex.

In the second game Essex came looking for revenge early, taking a 4-0 lead in the first inning. Rusty Miller and Charlie Killmayer had two singles each, and Danny Miller, Kevin Davis, and Tony Monegan each doubled for Essex's Knights. Pitcher Mike Omgeley threw a six-hitter for the hosts.

GCC's offense was led by Brian Hayes, whose single drove in both Laker runs. Cusato added three singles of his own. Chad Ord started on the mound for the Lakers, and was relieved by Denny Rulli in the fifth inning.

The action left Garrett with a 16-7 overall record, and in second place in Division I play in the conference with a 8-4 JUCO record. Rulli and Chris Powell are the team's home run leaders, with seven and five respectively, while Powell has 26 RBI to Rulli's 25. Rulli has been ruling on the mound, carrying a 3-0 record, 17 strikeouts, and a 0.89 earned run average (ERA) into the Essex doubleheader. Michael Johnston had a 12 strikeouts and a 1.87 ERA, and Ord had a perfect 4-0 record with 24 K's and a 1.88 ERA prior to his Essex loss.

The Lakers travel to Frostburg today for a matchup with the Bobcat junior varsity. Then a Saturday doubleheader in Mc-Henry against Anne Arundel kicks off the remainder of the season, with 13 of GCC's next 16 games from that point happening on the Lakers home field.

Southern Jayvees Blank Knights

The Southern High junior varsity baseball team crushed visiting Preston County this past week, 12-0, as Jason Finch and Jared Fike combined on a one-hitter and amassed 15 strike-outs.

Finch also paced the Ram offense by recording a double and two singles, and scoring four times. Mike Shahan had a solo homer and a double, while Fike contributed a triple and a single.

It was the second win in as many starts for the Rams, who were slated to play at Beall last night; however, results of that contest were not received.

Weeks Qualifies For Mid-Atlantic Nat'l. Tournament

Jason Weeks, an 11-year-old Southern Middle School student, has qualified for the Mid-Atlantic Wrestling Association's Eastern National Championships, which will be held this weekend in Ithaca, N.Y. As a third-year wrestler for the Southern Mat Club, Weeks will be making his first trip to the nationals. He qualified by winning four of five matches and finishing in third place out of over 30 athletes in his weight division.

"Jason set the goal of qualifying for the nationals and he set his mind to achieving that goal. He worked extremely hard with his sights set on New York," said Coach Buck Lillier. "I don't think he has stopped smiling since he qualified on Friday."

In addition to qualifying for the nationals this season, Weeks has also won 45 matches, pinned 25 opponents, earned 11 first place trophies at tournaments and overall, and won 22 trophies for fourth place or better. "This guy is an excellent wrestler and a hard worker," stated Coach Dave Taylor. "Winning at this level and qualifying for the nationals is something he should be very proud of."

Pen Mar League 50 Years Old; Teams Sought

The Pen Mar Baseball League will be playing its 50th consecutive season this year and is continuing its search for new teams in the tri-state area. Teams returning from last year are Fairmont, Oakland, Cumberland, Hyndman, and La-Vale.

Current managers have reported heavy interest from players wanting to play baseball and there are not enough teams to accommodate them. "The deadline is fast approaching," said John Culp, league president, "so if you are interested in entering a team or playing on a team, call league officer Terry Helbig at 800-662-6573 or 301-334-4491."

Over half the league is made up of active college baseball players and is "very competitive," according to Helbig. There will be a meeting this Sunday, April 19, at 1:30 p.m. at the Grantsville Holiday Inn along U.S. Rt. 68.

Native Bears And Visiting Tourists Subject Of DNR, Rental Agent Talk

Approximately 20 real estate agents who manage vacation rental homes in the Deep Creek Lake area met with wildlife specialists from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources recently to discuss strategies in dealing with concerns of human visitors to the County about the black bears who call this region home.

"It was a very positive experience," commented DNR spokesperson Patty Manown Mash afterwards. "We discussed and shared ideas back and forth among the participants, and it went really well considering it was the first time we had tried this."

The meeting was focused to solicit input from real estate rental agents because a large proportion of "nuisance bear complaints," made to DNR ranging from a mere sighting of a bear to actual damage to trash receptacles, come from the Deep Creek Lake area. According to Steve Bittner, a DNR wildlife biologist who specializes in bear research, 40 percent of the nuisance bear calls received by DNR last year came from within one mile of the Lake, up from 24 percent in 1996.

According to DNR, many of those calls come from year-round Garrett County residents who are witnessing the natural results of improper trash disposal on the part of some vacationers who are not aware of how their actions create a potential food source that draws bears close to homes. It appears, wildlife specialists noted, that many vacation home renters who may spend only a week or weekend here through the summer are not familiar with bear habits and or knowledgeable about bears' natural habitat in which they are vacationing.

A committee formed at the meeting, made up of Nancy Railey of Railey Realty, Kenny Harding of Deep Creek Refuse Service, Rodney Glotfelty of the county's Solid Waste and Recycling Program, and Clarissa Harris, of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division. The committee will be examining how other locales have successfully dealt with concerns raised over native black bears, especially in the Poconos region of Pennsylvania, where bears, tourists, and year-round residents have co-existed successfully for decades.

Some of the possibilities the committee and DNR will be examining include creating secure "user-friendly" trash receptacles, which can be easily accessed and properly utilized by visitors while at the same time keeping bears from seeking a meal in the garbage. A large orange sign designed to educate tourists about bear habits and the necessity of removing all outdoor food sources has been published for display in vacation rental properties.

"Throughout western Maryland over the last two years," Mash said, "23 percent of all our nuisance bear calls concerned garbage and trash, and 16 percent concerned damage to bird feeders. That means almost half the calls we get about bears could be virtually eliminated through proper management of what is drawing bears into contact with people — food smells from garbage, and bird seed intended to feed birds. It's just a matter of education and prudence.

"We're also amazed and, frankly, saddened," she added, "by the number of visitors who put food out to purposely draw bears in for a photo opportunity. It's not fair to the bears or the year-round Garrett County residents who may live nearby."

Mash emphasized that "Maryland law prohibits the feeding or baiting of bears to a particular area, and this action carries a possible fine of $500 for the first offense. People who witness such activity are urged to call the Natural Resources Police at 301-777-7771 or 1-800-628-9944 immediately."

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

Maryland's spring turkey hunting season opens this coming Saturday. A regulation change this year is that the DNR has legalized blinds for the spring season. In the interest of safety, turkey hunters are encouraged to wear orange while traveling to and from their blinds and to mark their presence by placing an orange band in a tree near the blind.

Bagging a wild gobbler is a remarkable achievement. Two young businessmen who have made a successful enterprise of helping turkey hunters to be successful are Tom and Greg Neumann, owners of Penn's Woods Products. In a conversation last week, they passed along their thoughts on what it takes to be successful and safe as well.

First step: Find a place to hunt and be sure you have permission before you scout it. The key thing to look for is sign of recent turkey activity. The best time of day? Experts disagree. Many believe that you have to be in the woods by dawn and any hunting after 9 a.m. is pointless. But, Tom and Greg tell us that they have had most of their success between 10 a.m. and noon. Much of their hunting is guiding and filming, so success is important to them.

The ability to "call" is the mark of an experienced and successful turkey hunter. They know how to call, when to call and, very importantly, when not to call. If a turkey is responding and getting closer, stop calling—the bird is coming to you. Calling now, particularly loud calling, may spook the bird. At least as important as calling is the ability to remain motionless. If a turkey picks up any motion at all, he will become wary and might go the other way.

Maryland law requires that a tag be completed and attached to the turkey before removing it. Anyone entitled to hunt without a license must obtain or make a field tag of their own and check the bird. The tag must bear the hunter's name, hunting license number if applicable, date, and county where taken. All harvested turkeys must be checked at a checking station within 24 hours.

Successful turkey hunters will like this recipe for Cajun Deep-Fried Wild Turkey supplied courtesy of the National Wild Turkey Federation.

Ingredients:
1 (10-15 lb.) unstuffed wild turkey
5 gallons of peanut oil
2 tablespoons of Cajun seasoning
1 stick of butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon of garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper (optional)

Pour peanut oil into a 10-gallon pot. Put the pot on a propane cooker and heat the oil to 375 degrees. The turkey should be completely thawed and dry. Tie two cotton strings around the carcass so the bird can be easily lifted out of the oil. Carefully submerge turkey in hot oil. Deep fry for 3½ to 4½ minutes per pound and cook until the turkey floats to the top. Remove the bird from the oil and immediately dust heavily with cajun seasoning. Melt butter or margarine and add to it the garlic powder and cayenne, if desired. Brush the turkey with the butter mixture and allow to cool 20 to 30 minutes before carving.

INTRODUCING YOUNGSTERS TO OUTDOOR SPORTS

Why not make it a priority this year to introduce a youngster to your favorite outdoor activity? If you do, here are some things to think about. Whatever the sport, the youngsters' initial experience should be short, comfortable, and filled with action. For example, if the outing is a fishing trip, it is important that the neophytes have a positive experience. That is, they better catch some fish. Pick a pond or hole that you know has a good supply of panfish. Bluegills, sunfish, bullheads all make for thrills for kids. If you take them to Deep Creek Lake, the ideal place to find panfish is around the myriad of docks.

If their new experience is in the shooting sports, start them with a .22 or light gage shotgun. Go to a controlled shooting range. If it is a day of hunting, a commercial hunting preserve offers a controlled situation and there will be game.

ARCHERY LEAGUE REPORT

D&B Sport Shop has finished its winter indoor archery league and, as reported last time, the probable winners became the actual winners. Congratulations to Jamie Streets, Mike Droppleman, and Ricky Jones. Also, Dan Milavec said that with the break in the weather, they have been able to get their 3-D outdoor range open and operating.

Larry Iden at AMC reported that they have not yet determined their archery champ. And, if anyone is interested in competing in the National Interactive Target System tournament, they can do so by shooting a round on the AMC range and having it entered into the national competition. It costs $7 and archers can win some very exciting hunting trips. For more information, call AMC at 301-387-7064.

FISHING ACTION PICKING UP ON DEEP CREEK LAKE

Word is that anglers are taking trout on minnows, meal worms, and maggots; and bass on power worms, grubs, and minnows. Last week a 39 3/4 inch, 18 lb. 4 ounce northern was checked in at AMC. It was taken on a shiner way up in the Pawn Run shallows.

Police Report Criminal Arrest

Maryland State Police at the McHenry Barrack reported a criminal arrest on a warrant in Friendsville Tuesday.

Arrested was Wayne R. Casteel, 44, Friendsville, who had been charged with assault, destruction of property, and failure to appear for an assigned court date. The charges involved an incident that had occurred Sept. 3, 1997, in Friendsville.

Police said information had been received that Casteel was in Ken's Tavern in Friendsville. He was located there and arrested without incident on Tuesday. He was held in the Garrett County Jail, but later released on $20,000 bond.

CDS Arrest

Police reported the arrests last Saturday of Matthew S. Doyle, 24, and Charles J. Altemose, 29, both of Bethlehem, Pa., on Route 219 near Cove Road.

The two were stopped at 9:55 a.m. for excessive speed and found to be in possession of a suspected controlled dangerous substance and CDS paraphernalia, police said.

Doyle was charged with driving while intoxicated, driving under the influence, failure to display license and registration, driving without a license, driving an uninsured vehicle, negligent driving, consuming alcoholic beverage while driving, and possession of CDS.

Altemose was charged with possession of CDS and paraphernalia.

The Crime Solvers of Garrett County organization is currently seeking information about the whereabouts of several weapons stolen in January.

The Donald Hinebaugh residence was burglarized in January and firearms were taken in the incident. The Garrett County Sheriff's Office has made arrests in the case and some of the weapons have been recovered. Those items not yet found include a Marlin .22 semi-automatic rifle, a Marlin .22 bolt action rifle with Weaver scope, a Winchester 12-gauge bolt action shotgun (model 110E), and a XI Legend compound bow.

Persons who have information about any of these weapons are urged to contact Crime Solvers at 301-387-1975. Callers do not have to give their names nor do they have to appear in court. Rewards of up to $1,000 are available to persons who provide viable information.

GCC Wildlife Club Sets Events, Notes Raffle Winner

The Garrett Community College (GCC) Wildlife Club has announced its schedule of coming activities.

Tomorrow, April 17, the Wildlife Club will participate in a meeting of the Maryland/Delaware Chapter of the Wildlife Society at Woodmont. On Saturday, April 18, the club will be canoeing on the Youghiogheny River, and on Friday, April 24, and Saturday, April 25, the club will be camping at Swallow Falls State Park for the end of the year cookout and get-together.

Wildlife Club members and students in GCC's Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program are conducting a survey of breeding saw-whet owls throughout the county from now through next month. Details may be obtained by calling Kevin Dodge at 301-387-3067 or Sarah Crouse at 301-387-5450.

The club drew the name of a fund-raising raffle recently, and Ralph Bee of Oakland won the $100 prize. In thanking the community for its support, a club spokesperson noted that the birdhouse sale will continue to be conducted as an ongoing fund-raiser to raise money for future trips and activities. For further information on how to purchase a hand-made birdhouse, interested persons may call Dodge or Crouse.

DNR Reports Record '97-98 Deer Harvest

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin has announced that a record number of deer were taken during the 1997-98 hunting season in Maryland. Hunters harvested a total of 65,519 deer, including a 64,009 white-tailed deer and 1,510 Sika deer. The previous record was set during the 1995-96 hunting license year when 60,602 whitetails were reported taken. This year hunters took 31,920 antlered white-tailed deer, and 32,084 antlerless white-tailed deer. The reported Sika deer harvest included 746 antlered and 763 antlerless Sika.

- Bowhunters took 12,919 deer compared to the previous record set during 1996-97 season of 13,588.
- Firearm hunters harvested a record 40,792 deer. This topped the previous record set during the 1995-96 season of 39,721 deer.
- A record 11,808 deer were taken during the muzzleloader season compared to the previous record set in the 1996-97 season of 9,099.

OCYF Safety Project Unites Varied Efforts

The Garrett County Office for Children, Youth and Families has united the efforts of a variety of county agencies and organizations in implementing its Personal Safety Initiative. Funded by the Maryland Children's Trust Fund, the initiative sets up multiple cooperative projects.

Project coordinator Susan Athey-Oxford of OCYF said her agency prefers to work with networks. Among those groups involved in the current undertaking are the Ecumenical Youth Ministry and Pandora's Box.

Pandora's Box, a student theater group sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department, was featured at the Family Violence Prevention Forum scheduled for today. Encouraging youth participation in project design and implementation is integral to the Personal Safety Initiative, Athey-Oxford stated. "Youth have insight that is often lost in our adult-world rush to put together projects for youth, instead of with youths, she said.

The Personal Safety Initiative (PSI) makes use of resources throughout the community, she noted. Elements of the PSI include the family violence prevention forum, 20 individual personal safety safaris, an automated phone survey, a youth mini grant contest, a family violence prevention web site, system-wide family violence data collection, billboard design and development, and financial support for Pandora's Box.

The goals of the project are to draw attention to violence as a social disgrace and to develop remedies, concluded Athey-Oxford.

Thief To Spend

bond. The defendant is currently in the Garrett County jail awaiting his sentencing.

In addition to the count to which he pleaded guilty, Lipscomb was charged with four counts of first degree burglary, four counts of felony theft, and eight counts of malicious destruction of property. State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch said these charges were not prosecuted in light of the fact that he has no prior record and because he was instrumental in solving the burglary cases. She said the charges to which he pleaded guilty were appropriate.

"Under this plea, he does face up to 110 years," she noted.

The victims in these burglaries included Alvin Coulter, Bruce DeAtley, Gary Nolan, Charles Meyers, Barry Bryant, Alireza Mohadjer, Michael Thomas, and Vincent Piccirillo.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered in another theft case last week. John T. Plummer, 39, Salisbury, Pa., pleaded guilty to fourth degree burglary and felony theft. Sherbin revoked his bail and remanded him to jail pending sentencing.

Plummer was charged in connection with a break-in at the Grantsville area homes of Brent Turner and Cassandra Sobota. Numerous tools were stolen in the June 1997 incident, according to the court report.

An Oakland man pleaded guilty to second degree assault and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered. David A. Ridenour, 34, was arrested in January after he allegedly accosted a juvenile in Oakland.

According to the report, a complaint was filed on Jan. 1 by a young girl in Oakland who said an apparently intoxicated man, later determined to be the defendant, had approached her and a friend making suggestive remarks. While doing so, Ridenour allegedly placed his hands on the girl in the area of her ribs and she pushed him away.

Sentencing for the defendant has been postponed for 30 days, according to the report. He is in jail awaiting the judge's decision.

Jail time for a local woman was ordered in court two weeks ago. Julie D. Loughrie, 21, Terra Alta, W.Va., was sentenced to six months in jail for her part in a January burglary. Loughrie was convicted by a jury last December of two counts of accessory after the fact, and Sherbin ordered six months of jail time for each count, with the terms to run concurrently.

Loughrie was reportedly the driver of the vehicle that brought two men to the Robert L. Gnegy residence, who proceeded to break into the home and steal cash and other items. The defendant then came back approximately 15 minutes later and picked them up, according to the court report.

Because women are currently not able to be housed at the local jail because of space conditions, Loughrie is serving her time at an Allegany County detention center.

In court proceedings last week, a Glen Burnie man entered an alford plea of guilty to the charge of malicious destruction of property. Eugene P. Kress III, 23, was accused of damaging a 1991 Jimmy vehicle that belonged to Bradford K. Ward. The incident took place in Jan. 1994, according to the court report.

Sherbin sentenced Kress to one year in jail, with all but time served (21 days) suspended. He also placed the defendant on one year of supervised probation.

A Jefferson man entered a guilty plea to violating his probation and Judge Fred A. Thayer reimposed part of his original sentence. William J. Rollins, 23, was charged with probation violation because he was arrested in Frederick County on an assault charge, according to the report. His original conviction in Garrett County was for marijuana possession, driving under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol (DUI), and driving with a revoked license. These offenses apparently occurred in January of 1996.

His original sentence was for two years and 30 days in jail, and Thayer reimposed that sentence and then suspended all but 30 days. The sentence will be served by Rollins over weekends in his home county.

Sherbin Denies Sentence Reductions

According to the state's attorney, two convicted child abusers approached Judge Sherbin last week to request sentence revisions, but he denied the requests.

Roger L. Moats, 26, was sentenced by Sherbin in January to a total of 20 years in the Department of Corrections for two counts of child abuse. He is also serving two concurrent four-year sentences for two counts of child pornography.

In denying Moats's request, Welch said the judge commented upon the nature of the crimes, the impact of these crimes on the victims, and his duty to protect the community.

Jackie K. Glaze, 57, also requested a sentence reduction and was denied. He was sentenced by Sherbin in January to 25 years for two counts of child abuse. Citing the nature of the offenses and his prior record, Sherbin determined that the sentence as originally imposed upon Glaze was an appropriate penalty and no new information was provided to persuade him to grant a revision.

PAP

I walked up on the mountain today.
I needed time to get away.
To find some answers, I did seek and at last put my mind at peace.

To the top, my feet did climb to hear
Pap speak just one more time.
Oh, the answers I received
Softly blooming through the trees.

I seemed to feel his presence near
Softly whispering in my ear.
You foolish one, he seemed to say.
My body is gone, but I'm here to stay.

I see your smiles, I feel your tears.
So just remember, I'm always here.
To watch and lead you on your way
And help you through each lonely day.

When you see flowers and blooming trees,
Your thoughts will always turn to me.
Although, I'm with the Angels above,
You know you'll always have my love.

DELTA KAPPA GAMMA GIVES TO HISTORICAL SOCIETY — The Alpha Alpha chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma (DKG), a women's organization for retired teachers, recently donated funds to the Garrett County Historical Society. The money will be used to help the historical society defray the costs incurred in the moving of the county museum, which is now located in downtown Oakland in the Professional Building. In addition to local interests, the DKG supports teachers who travel to the United States from other countries, and provides scholarships to deserving local educators. Members are kept apprised of current teaching issues, as well as information concerning those who are retired from the profession. Pictured in the front, left to right, are Martha Kahl, treasurer of the historical society; Jean Grose, DKG parliamentarian; and Dorothy Cathell, secretary of the society. In the back row, same order, are DKG members Alice Eary, Dorothy Spaid (second vice president), Anna Bishop (treasurer), and Carole Slagle.

BITTINGER NEWS

Another of Bittinger's "Grande Dames," Martha Glotfelty, recently injured herself in a fall at her home. She was treated by Dr. Alvarez and is suffering from a compound fracture of her shoulder and a broken wrist. She is recuperating at home but is pretty uncomfortable with her disabled arm. Martha was getting ready to go to Accident to play the piano for a senior citizens' gathering when she slipped and fell. She has never stopped doing service for others.

Easter Sunday dinner guests at the Julius and Karmen Carey home near Frostburg were Gary, Carolyn, Evie, and Troy Morris, Lonaconing; Brad Green and Catherine, of Hampton, Va.; Agnes and James Carey; Darin Carey and son Ethan; Billy, Susan and Lydia Powell, all of near Frostburg; Dwaine and Lisa Platter, Adam and Amanda, of Smithsburg; Linda Oester, Ida Reckner, Jim and Donna Glotfelty; and Tom, Cheryl, Taylor and Tim Glotfelty.

Pam Poholsky, Murrysville, Pa., recently visited the Lenny Poholsky household.

Sheila and Bill Southerly took an Easter dinner to her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Resh, Grantsville. They also took with them a couple of the Reshes' great-grandchildren, Tyler and Landon.

Family Easter dinner was served at the home of Ruth DiPaolo. Present were the Sussman family, the Rodney Glotfelty family, Barry Glotfelty of Frederick, and "Pappy Dale." They all enjoyed the ham, turkey, shrimp and various other dishes, including pie. Also following dinner, an Easter egg hunt was enjoyed by the "herd of children" out on the lawn. Later Sunday afternoon, Ruth's brother, Donald Buckle, from Madison, Va., arrived to spend Sunday and Monday with the family. Also drop-in visitors were Lillian Reckner, McHenry, with her granddaughter, Michelle Pullski, Allentown, Pa.

Kevin and Carol Bass and children traveled to Anderson, S.C., to spend the Easter holidays with his parents, Bill and Barbara Bass, and his grandmother.

Lesa Whittemore, Greg and Madeline, flew out to Las Vegas over the holiday to visit her parents and other family members in "Fun City."

The entire Sussman family visited with Molly Vick on her mountain-top home near Aurora, W.Va. She has the best view I have ever seen around here. It is just breathtaking.

Ferne Beachy visited Wilbur and Hilda Bowser recently.

Aaron Stanton celebrated his 20th birthday on Sunday with other Easter dinner guests at Lenny and Sally Poholskys'. Attending were Dave and Nancy Beachy, Blair Buckel, Clay and Lucretia Stanton, Ferne Beachy, and Sam, Cindy, and Lea Stanton.

Rodney Glotfelty, Robbie, Blakely, Darryl, and Elliot, and Barry Glotfelty attended the Pirates' and Marlins' baseball game in Pittsburgh on Saturday. The Pirates won another big game over the Marlins.

The Easter holiday came and is now over. Like Christmas, it feels good when you manage to get through it. Holidays are great, but sometimes it seems as if they are packed with pressure. Can your family perform well in every way? With Easter that means a new dress-up outfit for the girls. All three of them were decked out for church on Easter Sunday in new dresses and shoes and even an Easter hat. I believe in the Easter hat and I even bought myself one at a yard sale and decorated it up with some daffodils and a few wild flowers; simple, but elegant. But as far as a new outfit for me, forget it. I never did like to do that and I don't like to buy new clothes for myself. I just don't like to dress up.
